Why it is Popular.

Because it has proven its absolute merit over and over again, because it has an unequalled record of cures, because its business is conducted in a thoroughly bonest manner, and because it combines economy and strength, being the only medicine of which "100 boses One Dollar" is true—these strong points have made Hood's Sarsaparilla the most successful medicine of the day.

Smitten by Omaha.

As an instance of the manner in which the delegates to the late convention of the International Funeral Directors' association which was recently held in this city, were impressed with Omaha, the following, but one of many extracts which might be produced, is presented. It is taken from the Press of London, Ont.:

"Mr. and Mrs. John Ferguson have returned from Omaha, Neb., where the former has been attending the annual convention of the United States Funeral Directors' association. It is a magnificent place, said he, simply grand; and they are splendid people Just think of it, he continued, as he warmed with his subject. Thirty-six years ago there wasn't a house there, while today you see a city of 143,000 inhabitants, containing some of the most magnificent buildings I ever saw, and eighty miles of street railway, with cable cars. While there Mr. Ferguson met a number of former Londoners, all of whom are doing well. Among them were Messrs. Charles Murray, James R. Dewar, Dixon (who many years ago ran a R. ANNOUNCEMENTS.

Bert H. Gonden, press agent of the Strauss orchestra, is in the city. He tells' of the great success of Strauss and his band in other cities and says the tour has so far been a continuous ovation. Strauss made his American debut at the Boston music hall on May 14, and afterwards played a season of 100 nights at the big Madison Square garden in New York. Every one has read of his great success in the east and it will be pleasing to know that the people of the west have taken to Strauss equally as cordial. In Minneapolis the Strauss engagement was spoken of by the Strauss engagement was spoken of by the daily papers as the greatest musical success in the history of the northwest. Over 60,000 people attended the seven concerts given in that city. Direct from Minneapolis the great Strauss went to Milwankee—the city of Germans and music lovers. In the CreamCity he metwith a perfect evation, the new Davidson theater being too small to heid the crowds. At all of the four concerts people were turned away. Then Strauss returned to Chicago, where a prior visit had served as the best kind of an advertisement, and drew all the people the capacious Auditorium would hold. Not only has the Strauss tour been an immense financial success, but an absolute artistic triumph. cial success, but an absolute artistic triumph. The best testimental of the artistic merits of the orchestra is the fact that the programme has been more than doubled by encores at every concert given in this country.

SCRAPERS OF MUD.

Judge Helsley Materially Increases the Force of Vagrant Workers. Under the skillful manipulation of Judge Helsley the Monday morning police grist materially increased the size of the street gang. Since the general cleaning up order was romulgated the force of alley scrapers has been altogether too small, and his honor at once set about remedying the difficulty. Insend of sending the evil-doers to the county jail-he inflicted fines and required the culprits to work them out on the street. Pat Dailey, otherwise known as "Sergeant," and William McAndrews, were each

LINCOLN'S MELANCHOLY.

His Sympathetic Nature and His Early Misfortunes.

Those who saw much of Abraham Lincoln luring the later years of his life were greatly impressed with the expression of profound impressed with the expression of profosition melancholy his face always were in repose.

Mr. Lincoln was of a peculiarly sympathetic and kindly nature. These strong characteristics influenced, very happily, as it proved, his entire political career. They it proved, his entire political career. They would not seem, at first glance, to be efficient as to political success; but in the peculiar emergency which Lincoln, in the providence of God, was called to neet, no vessel of comion clay could possibly have become the chosen of the Lord."

Those acquainted with him from boyhood knew that early griefs tinged his whole life with sadness. His partner in the grocery business at Salem was "Uncle" Billy Green of Tallula, Ill., who used at night, when the customers were few, to hold the grammar while Lincoln recited his lessons.

It was to his sympathetic car Lincoln told the story of his love for sweet Ann Rutlidge; and he, in return, offered what comfort he could when poor Ann died, and Lincoln's reat heart nearly broke.

"After Ann died," says "Uncle" Billy, "or stormy nights, when the wind blew the rain against the roof, Abe would set that in the grocery, his clows on his knees, his face in nis hands, and the tears runnin' through his ingers. I hated to see him feel bad, an I'd say, 'Abe don't cry'; an' he'd look up an' say, 'I can't help it, Bill, the rain's a fallin' There are many who can sympathize with this overpowering grief, as they think of a lost loved one, when 'the rain's a fall in' on her." What adds poignancy to the grief some times is the thought that the lost one some times is the thought that the lost one might have been sayed.

Fortunate, indeed, is William Johnson of Corona, L. I., a builder, who writes June 28, 1890: "Last February, on returning from church one night, my daughter complained of having a pain in her ankle. The pain gradually extended until her entire limb was swolken and very mainful to the teach. We gradually extended until her entire limb was swollen and very painful to the touch. We called a physician, who after careful examination pronounced it disease of the kidneys of long standing. All we could do did not seem to benefit her until we tried Warner's Safe Cure; from the first she commenced to improve. When she commenced taking it she could not turn over in bed, and could just move her hands a little, but today she is as well as she ever was. I believe I owe the recovery of my daughter to its use."

PROHIBITION A FAILURE.

How the Law is Not Being Enforced in Dubuque.

ecovery of my daughter to its use.

John Power, the well known master cooper who resides at 520 Center street, has returned from a week's visit to Dubuque and states that his experience there satisfied him that prohibition was a failure. Every saloon was wide open, day and night, and as liberally patronized as the owners could desire. There was no sneaking required to surreptitiously procure a drink. All one had to do was to procure a drink. All one had to do was to push back the lattice door in the front and the visitor found himself in a saloon frequently filled with people who seemed oblivious of the fact that such a thing as prohibition ever existed.

He also learned that there was a number of grocery stores which had a saloon attached in the rear, and that these also did a lively business mainly of the transporter.

ness, mainly of the "growler" order. In a number of instances the can was "rushed" by children. He also noticed a number of cases, in which the city and county officers themselves violated the law, and with the same impunity that citizens of private life did.

Mr. Power took a trip about ten miles in the country surrounding the city. On one road he found seven saloons each with a large road he found seven shooms each with a large sign setting forth the nature of the business. In all of these beer and whisky were to be procured but no light drinks, such as ginger ale, which Mr. Power uses exclusively, could be obtained. On another road he found five saloons which were but a counterpart of those already described.

To the Trainmen's Convention. A party of delegates to the convention of the brotherhood of railroad trainmen, which is to be held at Los Angeles, on the 22d inst., passed through the city about noon. Those in the party were S. E. Wilkinson, Galesburg, Ill., grand master of the brother hood, accompanied by his wife; George W. Clark and wife, Chicago; J. F. Cailahan, Worcester, Mass.; A. F. Duffy, J. H. Mo-Cann and A. F. Miller, Scranton, Ph.; William Sweney, Ashley, Ph.; James F. Marley, Wilkesbarre, Ph. The ladies in the party, Mesdames Wilkinson and Clark, are delegates to the Ladies' Auxiliary, a branch of the order.

The Clampitt Trial.

The trial of the case of the state against John H. Clampitt was commenced in Judge Clarkson's court yesterday afternoon. Clampitt is charged with having shot Charley Paul at Elikhorn one year ago this month. The shooter had his preliminary examination and was held to the district court, but before the trial he jumped his ball and fled to Baltimore, his old home, where he was afterward arrested by Detective Vaughn and brought back to this city a few months later.
