A Cruise to be Made in Search of Missionary Outlay. A PRISONERS' INGENUOUS ESCAPE. Developments in the Turmoil Will Cause—A Gambler Who Resists His Smartness—Lecher Richard's Flight—Lincoln Notes.

Lincoln, Neb., Oct. 14.—[Special to THE BEE.] A. R. Henry, a prominent member of the Adventist colony, was seen by a representative of The Bee this morning, and gave some additional facts relative to the disappearance of Elder A. J. Cudney. He states that the elder left Lincoln in the spring of 1888, and the objective point of his party was the Pitcairn Islands. The population of these islands is between one hundred and two hundred persons, and something over three years since they embraced the Adventist faith. The inhabitants are the descendants of the mutineers of the British man-of-war Bounty, who sought refuge there over a hundred years ago. Elder Cudney, who was one of the leading ministers, was sent in 1888 by the general conference to do missionary work there and in adjoining islands. The last heard of the elder was in July, 1888, when he chartered the Phebe Chapman at Honolulu, and sailed with his crew, expecting to complete the voyage in three months. Funds have been appropriated for a relief expedition, and a vessel, appropriately named the Pitcairn, built at San Francisco, will sail next Monday from that point in charge of Elder E. H. Dwyer, and a long cruise in the South Pacific will be made in search of the missing missionary, expecting to touch at all the islands where he could possibly have been shipwrecked. If he cannot be found Elder Gates will stay at Pitcairn to carry out the work assigned to Elder Cudney.

THE BUREAU JAIL. John Cox, a somewhat noted tough, who was sentenced about three weeks ago by Judge Hill to thirty days in the county jail, escaped from that institution some time Tuesday night and is still at large. Cox is a sort of partner of the notorious Danney, and was with him implicated in the theft of a gold watch from Eva Eastworth, a member of the denizens.

Cox has been confined in the big room on the second floor by himself, a number of other prisoners being confined in the large cage adjoining by some of the old-fashioned points which had been broken off, leaving only short stubs. He also secured the big iron trap of a door, both of which were fastened by means of a key used in pryling. The ceiling of the room is composed of a sheet of heavy tin or thin galvanized iron. Above this are iron bars and a common tin roof. Mr. Langdon, through these, and after he reached the roof it was easy work to knot his bedclothing and swing himself to the ground. Mr. Langdon, the jailer, is naturally much chagrined over Cox's unscrupulous disappearance, but in one of those things which cannot be guarded against, he has been in charge of the jail for six years, and this is the first time any one escaped from the place since he has been there. He attempted to get out the night before, but very anxious to recapture Cox, as he was simply an expense to the county and his time nearly out. It is probable that he will be in the county as Cox will undoubtedly keep out of it. There is a charge of hog stealing in Cox's county against Cox and O'Connor, but the evidence against Cox is very slight.

It is said that Squint O'Connor, Cox's partner, attempted to get out through the same hole that he was to large, and got nothing but his head out.

FIGHTING THE HEIMS. The interested persons doubting the truthfulness of the stories told by Robert and William Turner concerning the disappearance of their father's will have filed another petition in the county court. The document is signed by William Clark, Nathan Scott, the board of missions for freemen and the Presbyterian board of foreign missions. The petitioners declare that John J. Turner had actually made a will, and that he had either stolen or lost. A copy of the will was presented which the petitioners said, while not an exact copy, was a fair copy, and preserved the report and identification of the original document. They assert that in the will left by the deceased $4,500 was bequeathed to the Presbyterian board of foreign missions, Kervan Rothman, the old house-keeper, to have the use of the double house on North Twenty-third street, and the remainder of her natural life. On her death it is to go to the sons. The son, R. M. Rothman, died Saturday afternoon, and the father died, while all that William gets is his father's medical outfit and accounts. The reason for this is that the old man started the business in the grain business and gave the latter a splendid drug store.

He claimed that the will was made some time in 1888 and was witnessed by George A. Hagensick and Fred Smith.

The story told by the sons is that some burglars entered the house in the night, broke the safe, and after cutting it open, taking the will.

WILLIAMS WAS TOO SMART. Frank Williams, the tin-horn gambler, regrets the day he got smart and had himself released from serving a thirty-five days' sentence in the county jail through a writ of habeas corpus. Williams, however, was a mistake in the indictment under which he was sentenced, as he had merely charged his wife with being drunk, and the court had acquitted her. Williams pleaded guilty to the charge, still the upper court acknowledged that the lack of a more specific charge was vital and Williams was released. He had an engagement to marry a girl named Leafy, and Williams was tried for violating the state statutes against gambling, was found guilty and held in the same bonds to appear before the district court. In default he went to jail. Williams deeply regrets now that he did not keep still and flush his previous sentence of only thirty days.

RICHARD TAKES FRENCH LEAVE. The bondsmen of W. H. Rickard at DeWitt are becoming very much alarmed at his sudden disappearance. The fact that the deputy sheriff cannot get any clue to his whereabouts makes them believe that he has taken French leave and gone to a more congenial shore. Ever since he was arrested at Maud Ross, his latest victim, attempted to follow in the suicidal footsteps of Mollie Morford, an earlier victim of his, and a public sentiment has again risen against him, and the fear of two consecutive terms in the penitentiary is supposed to have prompted him to leave his bondsmen in the lurch.

MAY LEAVE THOSE AND AHEAD. The long drawn out case of Edward Cere v. Aaron May, in an action brought to recover $1,000 on an account which May claimed was outlawed, was ended this afternoon in the district court and resulted in a victory for the defendant. May's claim that it was not outlawed was based on the fact that he had gone to Hastings where May was in business and had sent about $25 worth of goods to his friends at Hastings, claiming the debt and claimed that this credit made the account a running one and that he did not come under the statute of limitations. May has also denied the debt and consequently is $11,000 ahead.

THE MULE POWER MUST GO. Between 11 and 12 o'clock last night, as the members of the city council, seated with the cars and the mules of the city, were on the point of adjourning, they were suddenly revived by an unexpected petition from the railway company for permission to use electricity on all its lines in the city. The petition created an outburst of enthusiasm, as the commercial interests of such a nature had been suspended, and the rules were suspended and the ordinance asked for passed, with the understanding that the proposed substitution of electricity for mule power is to be made inside of six months.

This unexpected awakening in the street railway company had been increased by the addition of $1,000,000 from eastern capitalists, and it is partly due to this that the proposed change is to be made.

DICK TURPINS ON THE TRAIN. A Daring Raid on a Car Load of Missouri Pacific Passengers. SEVERAL DEPRIVED OF VALUABLES. The Raiders Areat Length Driven Off at the Point of the Revolver in Courageous Hands.

Passengers who arrived in Omaha yesterday morning at 3:30 on the Missouri Pacific express from Kansas City, were prepared to relate a story of their experiences with a daring band of thieves. The raid occurred in the suburbs of Wyandotte.

Shortly after the train left Kansas City Wednesday evening a small boy passed through the Omaha car, carrying a box for the express. It was noticed that the boy who exhibited well-filled pockets in paying for papers, were immediately addressed by a man who followed the boy and requested to see the contents. The boy handed over his pockets and anything they could catch hold of.

The train was moving slowly and the passengers in the coach, the coachman, J. W. Dalbey, superintendent of terminals of the Missouri Pacific at Kansas City, was aboard, and taking the situation instantly, drew a revolver and raised on the thieves. Charles M. Hall of Caney, Kan., one of the passengers caught in the raid, succeeded in drawing his gun, and the thieves observing the weapon, jumped from the train before a shot could be fired.

When the passengers examined their pockets J. A. Howard, an old gentleman en route to Blair, missed a pocketbook containing $25. He had $200 in cash on his person which he failed to secure.

L. L. Combs of Nebraska lost $30 and a watch, while several passengers lost numerous articles of baggage.

The news by is supposed to have been employed by the gang in order to discover those passengers who had money while prohibiting the thieves from taking from the train after the thieves escaped.

Conductor Welch was in charge of the train and assisted in putting the thieves to flight. Go where you will, you will find people using Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup and unanimous praise for it.

It suffered most severely from rheumatism during winter. After using Salivation Oil two days the pain entirely subsided, and now I am a well man.

SOUTH OMAHA NEWS. To the Pen for Horse-stealing. About two months ago George L. Smith of David City came to this city with fire in his eye and a revolver in his hand, and meeting John Blancher on the street, leveled his revolver at his head and made him throw up his hands. He then ordered him to get on his horses stolen by Blancher, and the sheriff of Butler county came and took the horse thief back to jail. Blancher was arrested in the district court at David City and was sentenced to the penitentiary for two years.

Injured by the Cars. Charles Elkins, a switchman on stockyards engine No. 3, while at work yesterday in the upper yards, was struck by a car and thrown upon the cinders along the track. He was taken to the hospital, and a train of cars was being pushed in the yard and in attempting to run around the front end Elkins met with his accident.

R. A. Merriman is building a residence on Twenty-third between I and J streets. Mrs. Sloan, wife of Mayor William G. Sloan, is much better and is recovering from her illness.

About thirty Omaha Masses came down Wednesday evening to meet with Miss H. M. Hoyle, at the home of Mrs. W. B. Passey, ex-congressman from the Bluffs.

Senator W. B. Allison was seen by a Bee reporter yesterday afternoon in Council Bluffs just as he was about to take the train for Shenandoah, where he was to deliver a political address to the citizens of that city.

How about the tariff and the McKinley bill? The tariff will be practically adjusted, and the McKinley bill will be practically all right. We had to change it a great deal, and it would be hard to recognize much of the original bill in it as it is now. If anything has been done, it is in the tariff. It is possible to draft a bill that will cover the whole ground and satisfy everybody from the state.

I am devoting most of my time to discussing the tariff, although I also review the work of the last congress, the silver coinage question, etc. But the tariff is the principal thing. Our bill will win in the end, and the people will say so, for the principle of it is right.

On my speaking every day, and there are but two days before election that I am not booked for a speech. I am feeling very well, and I am in the line of my duty. The outlook is very good in Iowa. I think we will carry every district but the Second. Davenport is a fine city, and I think the democratic countries. It looks to me as if Judge Reed would go back from here. He is an able man, and will make a fine district judge. This district is rather close anyway, at least the republican majority is nothing to boast of. We will have a pretty sharp sort of a fellow, bright and a good worker, but I don't think he will make it, from what I can see.

"This two years since was in the Bluffs before, and it has changed greatly in that time. The building of that motor line was a great thing, and it has done Omaha help the Bluffs. That is a great city on the other side of the river, and I have great faith in its future. Its strides of the last few years are almost surpass belief, and it can truly wonder at its growth."

"SWIPING" POTATOES. Commissioner Men and Grocers Annoyed by a Peep. The grocers and wholesale merchants who handle potatoes in Omaha have been troubled a great deal of late by petty thieves about the wagons and the cars while the vegetables are in the railroad yards or being hauled to the storerooms. Some of these petty pilfers have a unique method of getting possession of the potatoes. They slip under the wagons or the cars in the freight yard and punch out a potato here and there, or make a grab in an open car door for a few large ones. Usually they do not attempt to carry them away at the time, but simply rack them out upon the ground. Afterwards they come along with a basket and gather them up.

But they have better success even in getting the potatoes out of the wagons as they are hauled away from the cars. The boys and women who are engaged in this sort of business have long sticks with nails driven through the ends of them. They follow behind the wagons, and when the drivers are not looking they strike at the load, driving the nails into a potato or two and then deftly jerk them out of the wagon. These are dropped on the ground and the jabbing process is repeated as many times as possible before the driver notices the thief. Passing over the route with a basket or bucket they can gather up the booty.

Bates & Co. had a woman and two boys arrested yesterday for stealing potatoes in this manner. The positive proof was confined, however, to the taking of only three potatoes, and Judge Healey discharged the offenders with a little wholesome advice. A Bohemian lad who lives down near the Union Pacific bridge said that his folks had filed two large baskets full of potatoes in the last week, and they were beginning to fill the wash tub. He said they "swiped" them from the cars and the wagons.

MORTUARY. J. E. Eaton, a well known carpenter, died at his residence, 1613 Emmet street, at 3 o'clock yesterday morning. The remains will be interred at Forest Lawn cemetery at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon.

Some weeks ago Mr. Eaton made a trip to the mountains, and while there contracted mountain fever, which developed into typhoid, causing death. The deceased was forty-five years of age, and leaves a wife and one child.
