

SHIRT WAISTERS to the BOHE!

Commencing tomorrow (Monday) and continuing indefinitely, we will inaugurate an

OVERCOAT SALE

That will quicken the sleepers, arrest the bargain hunters and paralyze competition that are overloaded with high priced goods. We mention a few lots as an index to the onslaught made throughout an entire line of the finest assortment, the most complete workmanship, most handsomely finished and only real form-fitting garments shown in Omaha this season.

Eight different styles and shades in extra fine Meltons, embracing blacks, blues, seal browns and medium dark and light gray colors, our own make and recognized as the best fitting Overcoat in the market, and sold throughout the entire season at the uniform price of $20, NOW REDUCED TO QUICK SELLERS AT $15.

These garments are all of the latest cuts, box backs, tape seamed with fly fronts, patch collars, with heavy satin sleeve and honest silk serge and Italian linings. No such bargain has ever been offered in Overcoats.

Eight different styles, embracing all our $15, $16.50 and $18 Overcoats, placed in this extraordinary inducement sale at the uniform price of $12.50. This line embraces black chevots, short and dress lengths, box backed, tape seamed, with back and shoulders heavily satin lined and heavy cashmere skirt linings, just such goods as are now the rage in merchant tailor circles. Neat dark, medium dark, steel and light gray cassimeres made up in the highest style of the art and trimmed to perfection; have been leaders all the season at $16 and $18, now reduced to $12.50.

Ten different styles in dress, half dress and general purpose or all around Overcoats, have been selling the season through at from $13.50 to $15, embracing meltons, cassimeres in plain goods, and novelties in wide wale patterns, chinchillas in all shades, black beaver and numerous fabrics not herein mentioned. This entire lot we place on sale tomorrow morning at $10.

The people of Omaha are well posted with our method of doing business from the very beginning, and fully realize what a genuine cut in prices means when our name appears at the bottom.

This opportunity is one in a lifetime. Come early. Come quick.

HALF-AND-HALF GATE RECEIPTS.
Whisperings of the Flying Wheel—Indoor Baseball Rules and Clubs—Bouts with Bare Knuckles, Etc., Etc.

There is every evidence that Omaha will make an last heroic effort this coming season to restore her lost prestige, for it must be confessed she was one of the sorriest failures as a baseball town in 1890 that could be found in the whole blooming country. On no less than two or three occasions she came within an ace of quitting like a steer, and it was only the faltering hope of pulling out what they had already fired into the hole that stimulated them to continue on to the close of the season. The result was the club sunk just $2,500 good in dollars, and talk about mad March hares, hot horns and crazy talk, you ought to have attempted to talk baseball about that time to Dick McCormick or Ed O'Brandt. Good evening!

Now, however, they are peering into the future through rose-colored specs and are as garrulous as mocking birds, and as bright as a May morning. Uncle Dick, as the genial president of the association is better known, has turned over his interests in the club to his sons Harry and Secretary Brandt, and the two youngsters will make a rustling firm. If they adhere strictly to the policy already outlined they will create a big baseball boom here.

There isn't much of interest transpiring in Western association base ball affairs just now, but that matters will receive an impetus of some kind or other within the next six weeks there is little doubt. One thing can be depended on, however, absolutely, and that is that the circuit will remain just exactly as it is. St. Paul, Minneapolis, Milwaukee, Sioux City, Lincoln, Omaha, Kansas City and Denver, unless the franchise of one of these cities is purchased by some one else. Every club is in good condition, without a penny of indebtedness to the association, and all talk about crowding out Sioux City, Lincoln and Denver for Detroit, Toledo and Indianapolis is the veriest hush. The three mentioned will be in it at the start at least, although I apprehend the same old season of doubt and uncertainty as to Sioux City and Lincoln being able to last over until October, the former in particular.

So far as a bustling metropolis is concerned, the future has a very lowering aspect for the corn palace town, and it isn't likely her citizens are going to unbuckle to any measurable extent in the interests of baseball, at least not until the clouds now hovering along her horizon roll by. The defeat of prohibition in this state was a awful knell to the bright and active little city up the river. Drive a pile or two here.

Lincoln's prospects are much the fairest, her only drawback being a numerical insufficiency to draw back such a team as they must have to continue as part and parcel of the Western association. But don't let anyone think for a moment that, pray, that the capital of Nebraska men are made out of the sterling stuff; they are enterprising, intelligent and liberal, and generally carry to a successful issue anything they undertake, as great, big, overgrown Omaha has learned to her sorrow on more occasions than one.

Another potent element in Lincoln's favor is that Dave Rowe is at the head of her team, Dave will surely give affairs such a momentum down there that it alone will likely carry the club through the season.

The Quicker Out, the Better. The mingled cry of warning and distress that wells up from the depths of Kansas City's thoracic region over the fear that the American is about to gobble up Milwaukee creates only a feeling of disgust with those familiar with Milwaukee's importance as a helpful factor of the Western association. The quicker Milwaukee gets out of the Western association the better, for here she has always been a disturber and disintegrator. It may sound strange to some one interested in the Western association, above all others, talk in this style, but the belief is an honest one, fearlessly spoken, and in the general words of Captain Henry, "if this be treason, make the most of it." Instead of being one of the best cities in the association, as Kansas City is proud to believe, she is absolutely the very worst, and so far as fealty to the body as a whole goes, she cannot be mentioned in the same day with Denver, Sioux City or Lincoln. Early last spring, right in the midst of the most momentous era in the history of baseball, she put the constitution and rules of the Western association in defiance, absolutely and incalculably refusing to submit to President McCormick her guarantee of $1,000 that she would play the season out in earnest, and what was more, it was but a week previous to the opening of the playing season, and the National League and Brotherhood hostilities had opened up for a place in the American association and didn't know how soon she might get there. She merely kept her hold on the Western association as a means of existing until the opportune moment for her to desert her old confederates and go over to one of the older bodies. She has been wanting to get out ever since she got in and it is about time she had a little assistance from the rest of the line. The fact that she was an applicant at the last meeting of the American association at Louisville for admission to that body should alone be sufficient for any action the Western association might feel inclined to take.

First Bulletin for 1891.
KANSAS CITY, Mo., Nov. 26, 1890.—Notice is hereby given of the following matters: CONTRACTS.
With Kansas City—Elmer E. Smith, George Hargreave, William Hoover and James H. Manning.
Denver—Joseph Werrick and John E. Messitt.
St. Paul—C. S. Abbey, Michael J. Trost, J. H. McMahon, Fred Schmitt and G. H. McHale.
At the annual meeting of the Western association, held at Omaha on November 1, 1890, L. C. Krauthoff was elected president, secretary and treasurer of that body. His address is 427 Nelson building, Kansas City, Mo.
L. C. KRAUTHOFF,
President and Secretary.

Half and Half the Proper Thing.
There is quite a good chance that it will be "half and half" of the gate receipts next season after all. The association clubs have been canvassed and there is about an equal number for and against the percentage plan. Kansas City will strenuously oppose a change because she expects to again make money, and don't want to divide with anyone. She will be supported in her advocacy of a continuance of the guarantee system by Minneapolis and Milwaukee, and probably St. Paul. The Kansas City people are already at work on the Apollodis endeavoring to work for a tremendous next season, but just where this unparalleled boom is to come from, would be an interesting thing to have explained. Of course St. Paul will make a better showing next season than she did this, from the simple fact that she doesn't make a worse one, so far as any marvellous improvement is concerned, I for one can't see where it is to come in. Surely there are but few indications of it so far. However, that is neither here nor there. St. Paul, in her condition, would do a very foolish thing to vote against the percentage plan, and so would any of the other cities that matter. The percentage plan is the only feasible and equitable one for the Western association, and what Omaha, Sioux City, Denver, Lincoln and St. Paul should do is combine together and bring it about. The percentage plan assures unthreatened existence throughout the season, with the possible chance of making a little money. The guarantee plan means, after the season is a month or so advanced, smooth sailing for two or three clubs, and shallows, and bars and breakers for the balance.

Indoor Baseball Rules.
As Omaha has at last organized her league of indoor baseball, The Bee again lays before its readers, for the benefit of those not familiar with the new game, a synopsis of its rules and regulations.

The game was invented by George W. Hancock and Augustus J. White of the Farragut Boat club of Chicago in the year 1887. It can be played in any form which allows the necessary space for the bases. It is played with a large, soft ball and a bat which resembles a billiard cue, being 2 feet and nine inches long and 1 1/4 inches in diameter. The four bases are 14 feet square. There are nine rules which govern the game, as follows:

The pitcher's box shall be 6 feet long by 3 feet wide and 22 feet from home base. The bases shall be twenty-seven feet apart. Eight or nine men may play on a side. Only shoes with rubber soles can be used. Only straight arm pitching will be allowed. A batted ball inside of foul line is fair. A batted ball outside of foul line shall be foul.

Harrington for the Minneapolis team, and the probabilities are that he has got a cracking good man.

Look out for a panic on Wall street! The report comes from Milwaukee that Manager Cushman has invested $2,000 in real estate up there.

Ex-Prize Fichter John S. Barnes, former manager of the St. Paul's, now of the Spokane team, is in trouble in the far northwest. Been trying to bunco somebody; that's all.

Dave Rowe has moved his family to Lincoln, which doesn't look very much as though Lincoln was to be kicked out of this association. Trust Brotherhood Dave for staying qualities.

That old chestnut burr about Joe Herr's having retired from the diamond is on its tireless circumnavigation of the country. Herr has been in the stable for keeps these two years.

Tommy Kearna, with the Omaha's the greater part of last season, is wintering at Rochester, N. Y., where he will play next season, and it's dollars to doughnuts that he plays well, to boot.

Letters will reach President Krauthoff of the Western association if addressed to next season's bulletin. The prospect for the construction of a couple of handsome tenement houses at Melrose, Mass.

The first baseball bulletin for 1891 comes from the president of the Western association, which is a pointer that the Western is not to let any timely spring up under her feet during the present administration at least. The bulletin referred to will be found in another column.

The Sporting Times, in her new dress, is just as chic and just as pretty and just as interesting as she ever was. In fact, she just kicks the eternal striped socks off any other base ball sheet in the land. One thing is lacking, however, and that is a proof-reader who knows the map of the world from a character and.

Wally Andrews, who is wintering in Memphis, would like to try for Omaha again next season, but he is in fact, she just kicks the eternal striped socks off any other base ball sheet in the land. One thing is lacking, however, and that is a proof-reader who knows the map of the world from a character and.

Secretary Brandt is still negotiating with Danny Shannon to guard second and captain the team next season, and the cracks are all saying that he may be secured. Danny was a great favorite here in 1888, and would be welcomed back with open arms. While Omaha reserved all the men who engaged with her in 1891, there is no doubt but what fully one-half of them are booked for an early release. Among them are Cleveland, Hannan, Moran and Frazier, possibly O'Connor, Works, Canavan, Willis, Clarke, Eitel, Stenzel, Newman and Urquhart are those in the best standing with both the public and the management. Even so, who jumped us for the Brotherhood, is confidently expected to be returned, and with these men to build upon. Omaha's prospects are surely anything but poor.

It is an incontrovertible fact that the American association has always stood in the way of minor league representation in the board of arbitration and bids fair to go in the future. That organization will certainly oppose the elevation of the Western association to the dignity of "a party of the first part." Philadelphia Press. There has been a good deal said about the Western association making the effort to be placed on an equal basis with the League and American association, and she seems to be doing it, all her friends and patrons think for the idea of her paying tribute to a body like the American association was during the past season, extremely nauseating. However, if President Krauthoff is the power to whom the western enthusiasts are looking up to elevate this association to the altitude of the future, that organization will certainly pointed, that's all. President Krauthoff told the writer at the annual meeting in this city a month since that he considered the Western association much better off under the present status of things and it was not desirable for her to become a party of the first part to the national agreement for various reasons. What these were he failed to uncover, but as long as Krauthoff said so, I, for one, am willing to take his word for it. The points he overlooks in the interest of the Western association won't be big enough to impale a beef upon, any way, and there are little grounds for worry.

With Bare Knuckles.
Patsy Fallon of Chicago wants to match George Siddons against Danny Daly for $500, and will in all probability be accommodated. Siddons is the man who won on a foul from Tommy Miller at New Orleans some two weeks ago, and the man who also "dosed" Tommy White to a tune.

Jack Hightower, the gentlemanly young colored pugilist, recently defeated by the Black Pearl of Minneapolis, is booked for a finish fight tomorrow night, with Prof. Harris, another colored knight of Istitia, at Germania hall, South Omaha. They will consist for the sake of receipts.

Tom Eck, the well known professional bicycle racer, is now training pugilists at Minneapolis.

Harvey McGrew and Judge Shields are banging away at the quail up at Sioux City. There will be another old-fashioned turkey shoot on the beach at the east end of the bridge this afternoon.

There is little or no doubt but what indoor bicycling will prove a success in Omaha. It has caught on big in Chicago and the eastern cities, and if there is any genuine sport in it Nebraska's metropolis must have it, too.

The Council Bluffs Kille club held their annual election of officers last week. The selection being as follows: J. C. Tipton, president; A. E. Avery, vice president; J. C. Hoffman, treasurer; F. A. Sackett, secretary. For the executive committee the following gentlemen were elected: W. J. Lauterwasser, P. J. Mulholland and Charles Matraw.

Questions and Answers.
Please answer the following question in Sunday's Bee: Is a turkey the first prize and next high man second? A and B shake four aces each and next to them comes C with three aces and a pair of deuces. Who is second prize? W. H. Hubbard, Neb.
Carriss of the 20 cents. That's plain as mud.

Will you please state in Sunday's Bee whether the dealer in a game of high five has any right to a trump discarded by another player?—Hendler, City.

Certainly not.

J. M. T. Lincoln, Neb.—Cannot furnish you with the address of a pugilist you inquire about. He is a sort of a pugilist.

Will you please state in the sports column of Sunday's Bee whether a dog must be registered to be allowed entry at a bench show? and you furnish the field trial winners of Bob Gates? Did he ever take a prize on the bench?—Laverick, Council Bluffs.

Yes. In all shows held under the American Kennel club rules. No. No.

Who is the champion wing shot of this country? Was Fred Eber considered so? How long has he been maintaining his growth?—Hlegg On Blair.

J. A. R. Elliott of Kansas City. (2) Eber was the holder once of the American field cup, which is symbolic of the championship. (3) About twelve months, if not rounded by sickness.

In high five a hole, B holds seven trump and discards a five in order to get A. Can A count the best? Please answer in THE SUNDAY BEE.—J. S. Raymond, Natrona, Neb.

Beverin of the Buffs threatens to have a team in the field next season that will do them all up.

Managers of out-of-town clubs looking for talent next season would save trouble by Fremont has signed the Tichnor brothers, as well as a battery from Galesburg, Ill., for next season.

The different indoor teams will have a practice game of baseball at the Coliseum this afternoon.

Hughes and Ready, last season's Grand Island battery, put up a good article of ball in the Indiana and Illinois league the past season.

The report of the Missouri Valley team in its game with Omaha amateurs closes the second chapter in the infamous manner in which they (the Omaha amateurs) were robbed and coerced out of decided victories by that team last season, and sanctioned by their manager, who compelled teams to play under penalty of forfeiture of their guarantee, when the umpire's decision was so unjust as to cause indignant feelings among the spectators.

Lon Camp displays poor judgment in applying the word daze to the local amateur teams in general. His head now is about the size of a grain elevator, but when the season opens it will be about the size of a haystack. The people whom he called dazed are not so anxious to play professional ball as to follow a manager all over town and use all his eloquence upon him to sign with his team upon any terms, and then as his committee was not up to the mark to allow his reservation for next season. He will be only too anxious to play with the dules, who will give him the razzie dazie, so they say, anyway.
