ANNOUNCEMENTS.

Sumday evening the Boston Howard Athengum specialty company, will open a four nights' engagement at the Boyd, and will present a bill surpassing any others. The New York World of September 23, 1890, contained the following concerning their opening in the metropolis:

"The Boston Howard Athenaum Star specialty company began a two weeks' engage-ment at the Bijou theatre last evening, and the house was full to welcome the old favorites and extend a friendly greeting to new comers. The Poluski Brothers gave a grotesque act very funnily. Conroy and Fox are an amusing pair, and the few minutes that Dutch Daly had to entertain and amuse the audience was so well employed that he had to prolong his time and spin it out with good music. The star of the troupe, however, is Cinquevalli, and he certainly is one of the most expert and graceful performers of the day. It is not alone as an athlete and equilibrist that he figures; he has now added music to his other accomplishments. The Boissette troupe also showed the versatility of their accomplishments and made a good impression. Taken altogether the Boston Howard antheneum company furnishes a magnifi-cent entertainment,"

On Thursday evening next Mr. Joseph Murphy, the legitimate Irish comedian will open an engagement of four nights at the Boyd. On Thursday and Friday nights he will appear in "Shaun Rhue," on Saturday night in "The Kerry Gow," and Sunday night the new play "The Donagh."

McKee Rankin and company begin a short McKee Rankin and company begin a short engagement at the Grand this afternoon, producing one of the great successes of the season, "The Canuck." The play is very much on the order of "The Midnight Bell" and "The Old Homestead," the scene in this case being laid along the Canadian border, the chief character being an old Canadian. While a very strong figure in the play, the Canadian, played by McKee Rankin, is not the only character around which the story revolves. character around which the story revolves. An old Vermonter has quite as much to do, and it is a question whether he does not bear
