HE WASA WANDERING BOY. Elhert Milliken's Body Identifi d by

His Father. William S. Milliken, the father of the young man who was asphyxiated at the Hotel Faris the first of the week, arrived in the city vesterday in response to telegrams sent by the coroner.

He identified the body as that of his son, Carey A Milliken, who had left home three years ago, and from whom little had been heard for over two years. The boy was one of several brothers two of whom are now living about five miles north of Florence. The father lives in Nodaway county, Missouri, about twelve miles from Marysville, and will return there this afternoon, taking the remains with him.

That Hen Monstrosity. The hen monstrosity, purchased by Seltzer & Frey, and now on exhibition in their Q street saloon at Twenty-six th and Q streets, surprises every one who gazes on it. Mr. Seltzer bought the fowl from an Albright woman, paying $10 for it. The hen is large and speckled, fully developed, and perfect in every part except the face or front part of bone exposed, but instead has a reddish, catheriess face of flesh and bare skin, with large eyes, much resembling those of some some species of mankeys. The mouth and more are not unlike those seen on some persons, considerably drawn and wrinkled, large and well developed. The lower jaw bone is mort, but the flesh is long enough to allow it to hap water like a dog or cut. The last won deris the hen hus teeth.

Mansfield's Threats. The woman Belle Brandsu, who concealed the property stolen by Harry Massfield, alias August King, appeared at the police station vesterday afternoon with a letter from Mans field, maried at Westen, Ia. In the letter Mansfield made several desperate threats as to what he intends to do when he visits Omaha in the near future. He accuses the woman of causing his arrest, and promises to visither with dire vengeance. She is con iderably excited about the matter and claims to be very much afraid that Mansfield will number her. Mansfield makes sport of the Omaha police and the authorizies at the jail, and boasts in the letter that he is entirely too smooth for the entire gang.

Temmy Ogden's Mishap. Little Temmy Orden, ason of Mr. Joseph Ogden of this city, who recently went to Riverside Cal., with his mother on a visit, west out to chop wood on Thursday morning, and impelled by a carlosity to see a cross section of one of his phalanges, he cut his thumb off, but the sensation was not what he expected and he thought he would prefer to wear his thumbon his hand instead of on his watch chair, so her had it stuck on and tied un and it will probably grow so again
