

14 SUPERSTITIOUS STATESMEN.

Senator Hanson's Election Foretold by the Goddess of Liberty.

LEGISLATORS WHO DREAM DREAMS.

A Thrilling Story in Connection with Callahan's Scheme of Nullification—Frank Hutton and the Goddess of Liberty.

(Copyright, 1901, by Frank L. Campbell)

Washington, Feb. 28.—Three-fourths of the great men of our country are superstitious. Away down in the souls of the most practical statesmen, generals and scholars lurk prophecies which disturb their owners fully as much as those of the wildest magicians of the past.

The Washington monument is 555 feet high. It rises against the blue sky, a great white shaft, and it towers nearly two hundred feet above the capitol dome which stands on a hill about a mile away.

Senator Hanson, who was the head of the police department in President Arthur's cabinet, is said to have the most lucky rabbit foot in Washington. He got it two or three years ago in Chicago, and from it probably comes his success and that of the big paper, the Washington Post, which he is making so valuable.

General Frank Hutton, who was the head of the police department in President Arthur's cabinet, is said to have the most lucky rabbit foot in Washington. He got it two or three years ago in Chicago, and from it probably comes his success and that of the big paper, the Washington Post, which he is making so valuable.

Senator Logan was to a certain extent a believer in dreams. He thought it was bad luck to dream of his teeth, and he dreamt of these just before his death.

President Lincoln had a dream which he believed prophesied his assassination. He was lying on a couch in the chamber when he awoke he saw his picture in the looking glass opposite him.

During his last illness, which was reported at the time, and which he thought foretold his death. Just before he slipped and fell he had the same kind of presentiment, when he was first made president.

How Washington warned Callahan. "The most remarkable dream I have ever heard of was that which is said to have been related by John C. Callahan to Bob Toombs and others at just about the time when he was preaching nullification and secession in South Carolina.

link blotch on the back of it. I know it is an optical illusion, but I can't help seeing it." Senator Callahan did not continue, and Frank Hutton said that what was your dream like, senator? I am not superstitious, but I think there is sometimes a great deal of truth in dreams.

Callahan turned a shade paler and then said: "I don't object to telling you. It was, it seems to me, absurd in the extreme. I remember that I was in my room writing and that I had given orders that no one should disturb me. While I was in the busiest part of my work the door opened and a visitor entered. He did not speak a word, and to my surprise and indignation he calmly took a seat on the other side of the table opposite me. As I looked up I saw over the top of his lamp I saw that he was wrapped in a thin cloak which especially concealed his features.

"I started to speak when he broke in in some way, and my room writing and that I had given orders that no one should disturb me. While I was in the busiest part of my work the door opened and a visitor entered. He did not speak a word, and to my surprise and indignation he calmly took a seat on the other side of the table opposite me.

General Frank Hutton, who was the head of the police department in President Arthur's cabinet, is said to have the most lucky rabbit foot in Washington. He got it two or three years ago in Chicago, and from it probably comes his success and that of the big paper, the Washington Post, which he is making so valuable.

Senator Logan was to a certain extent a believer in dreams. He thought it was bad luck to dream of his teeth, and he dreamt of these just before his death. He was lying on a couch in the chamber when he awoke he saw his picture in the looking glass opposite him.

During his last illness, which was reported at the time, and which he thought foretold his death. Just before he slipped and fell he had the same kind of presentiment, when he was first made president.

How Washington warned Callahan. "The most remarkable dream I have ever heard of was that which is said to have been related by John C. Callahan to Bob Toombs and others at just about the time when he was preaching nullification and secession in South Carolina.

How Washington warned Callahan. "The most remarkable dream I have ever heard of was that which is said to have been related by John C. Callahan to Bob Toombs and others at just about the time when he was preaching nullification and secession in South Carolina.

though $10,000 was nothing to him. "Here's my certified check for the amount." Hutton was astounded, but he took the check and said that what was your dream like, senator? I am not superstitious, but I think there is sometimes a great deal of truth in dreams.

Callahan turned a shade paler and then said: "I don't object to telling you. It was, it seems to me, absurd in the extreme. I remember that I was in my room writing and that I had given orders that no one should disturb me. While I was in the busiest part of my work the door opened and a visitor entered. He did not speak a word, and to my surprise and indignation he calmly took a seat on the other side of the table opposite me.

General Frank Hutton, who was the head of the police department in President Arthur's cabinet, is said to have the most lucky rabbit foot in Washington. He got it two or three years ago in Chicago, and from it probably comes his success and that of the big paper, the Washington Post, which he is making so valuable.

Senator Logan was to a certain extent a believer in dreams. He thought it was bad luck to dream of his teeth, and he dreamt of these just before his death. He was lying on a couch in the chamber when he awoke he saw his picture in the looking glass opposite him.

During his last illness, which was reported at the time, and which he thought foretold his death. Just before he slipped and fell he had the same kind of presentiment, when he was first made president.

How Washington warned Callahan. "The most remarkable dream I have ever heard of was that which is said to have been related by John C. Callahan to Bob Toombs and others at just about the time when he was preaching nullification and secession in South Carolina.

How Washington warned Callahan. "The most remarkable dream I have ever heard of was that which is said to have been related by John C. Callahan to Bob Toombs and others at just about the time when he was preaching nullification and secession in South Carolina.

How Washington warned Callahan. "The most remarkable dream I have ever heard of was that which is said to have been related by John C. Callahan to Bob Toombs and others at just about the time when he was preaching nullification and secession in South Carolina.

though $10,000 was nothing to him. "Here's my certified check for the amount." Hutton was astounded, but he took the check and said that what was your dream like, senator? I am not superstitious, but I think there is sometimes a great deal of truth in dreams.

Callahan turned a shade paler and then said: "I don't object to telling you. It was, it seems to me, absurd in the extreme. I remember that I was in my room writing and that I had given orders that no one should disturb me. While I was in the busiest part of my work the door opened and a visitor entered. He did not speak a word, and to my surprise and indignation he calmly took a seat on the other side of the table opposite me.

General Frank Hutton, who was the head of the police department in President Arthur's cabinet, is said to have the most lucky rabbit foot in Washington. He got it two or three years ago in Chicago, and from it probably comes his success and that of the big paper, the Washington Post, which he is making so valuable.

Senator Logan was to a certain extent a believer in dreams. He thought it was bad luck to dream of his teeth, and he dreamt of these just before his death. He was lying on a couch in the chamber when he awoke he saw his picture in the looking glass opposite him.

During his last illness, which was reported at the time, and which he thought foretold his death. Just before he slipped and fell he had the same kind of presentiment, when he was first made president.

How Washington warned Callahan. "The most remarkable dream I have ever heard of was that which is said to have been related by John C. Callahan to Bob Toombs and others at just about the time when he was preaching nullification and secession in South Carolina.

How Washington warned Callahan. "The most remarkable dream I have ever heard of was that which is said to have been related by John C. Callahan to Bob Toombs and others at just about the time when he was preaching nullification and secession in South Carolina.

How Washington warned Callahan. "The most remarkable dream I have ever heard of was that which is said to have been related by John C. Callahan to Bob Toombs and others at just about the time when he was preaching nullification and secession in South Carolina.

though $10,000 was nothing to him. "Here's my certified check for the amount." Hutton was astounded, but he took the check and said that what was your dream like, senator? I am not superstitious, but I think there is sometimes a great deal of truth in dreams.

Callahan turned a shade paler and then said: "I don't object to telling you. It was, it seems to me, absurd in the extreme. I remember that I was in my room writing and that I had given orders that no one should disturb me. While I was in the busiest part of my work the door opened and a visitor entered. He did not speak a word, and to my surprise and indignation he calmly took a seat on the other side of the table opposite me.

General Frank Hutton, who was the head of the police department in President Arthur's cabinet, is said to have the most lucky rabbit foot in Washington. He got it two or three years ago in Chicago, and from it probably comes his success and that of the big paper, the Washington Post, which he is making so valuable.

Senator Logan was to a certain extent a believer in dreams. He thought it was bad luck to dream of his teeth, and he dreamt of these just before his death. He was lying on a couch in the chamber when he awoke he saw his picture in the looking glass opposite him.

During his last illness, which was reported at the time, and which he thought foretold his death. Just before he slipped and fell he had the same kind of presentiment, when he was first made president.

How Washington warned Callahan. "The most remarkable dream I have ever heard of was that which is said to have been related by John C. Callahan to Bob Toombs and others at just about the time when he was preaching nullification and secession in South Carolina.

How Washington warned Callahan. "The most remarkable dream I have ever heard of was that which is said to have been related by John C. Callahan to Bob Toombs and others at just about the time when he was preaching nullification and secession in South Carolina.

How Washington warned Callahan. "The most remarkable dream I have ever heard of was that which is said to have been related by John C. Callahan to Bob Toombs and others at just about the time when he was preaching nullification and secession in South Carolina.

SANTA CLAUS SOAP. YOU ASK ME WHY 'TIS SANTA CLAUS? THE REASON'S PLAIN HOPE. AS GOOD SAINT NICK'S THE FAVORITE SAINT. SO IT'S THE FAVORITE SOAP. BRINGS JOY TO THE HEARTS OF ALL HOUSEKEEPERS. MADE ONLY BY N.K. FAIRBANK & CO. CHICAGO.

MAX MEYER & BRO. CO. Jewelers and Opticians, SIXTEENTH AND FARNAM STS. SPECIAL SALE OF FINE CLOCKS AND OPTICAL GOODS THIS WEEK. 100 Fine Mexican Onyx Clocks, $10 to $50. 25 Fine Black Marble Clocks, $10 to $50. 50 Fine Marbleized Iron Clocks, $6 to $25. 75 Fine Wood Clocks, Ebony, Oak and Walnut, all styles, from $2.50 upward. Hundreds of Nickel, Brass, Bronze and Fancy Novelty Clocks, from $1 to $25. Hanging Office Clocks, Self-Winding Clocks, Cuckoo Clocks, Musical Clocks, Grandfather Clocks; Clocks of every description, from $1 up to $500. 1,000 WATCHES, embracing every kind, from $2.50 to $1,000.

Dr. Eccles's Decision in regard to Complexion Preparations. They Are Not All Injurious—Strong Words of Praise in Letter from a Well-Known Physician. ROBERT E. ECCLES, M. D., 121 Dean Street, BOSTON, Jan. 25, 1891. London Toilet Bazar Co. Dr. Eccles's Decision in regard to Complexion Preparations. They Are Not All Injurious—Strong Words of Praise in Letter from a Well-Known Physician. ROBERT E. ECCLES, M. D., 121 Dean Street, BOSTON, Jan. 25, 1891. London Toilet Bazar Co.

MAX MEYER & BRO. CO., 16TH AND FARNAM STS., OMAHA, NEB. ESTABLISHED 1866.

NEW YORK DENTAL PARLORS N. E. Cor. 14th and Farnam Sts. DR. F. L. BROWNE. CURE FITS! $4.00

THE NEBRASKA FUGITIVES.

A Story of the Late Indian Uprising.

CHAPTER XV. THRU THE WOODS TO THE FOREST.

The crowd, yellow flames soon began to creep up through the interstices of the brush surrounding the two doomed friends, who stood seemingly as immovables as the trees to which they were clinging. A twitching of a muscle could be detected.

It was a horrible, almost unearthly spectacle, the fire growing brighter and fiercer, throwing fantastic shadows through the woods, lighting up the dark tree trunks with the vividness of noonday, the dusky half-lights of the twilight, and the brilliant gleams of the wildest delight and exultation, and the vast wilderness vibrating with all the din of hell's infernal orgies.

The fire now began to wave its forked tongues in terrible proximity to the faces of the prisoners. Cameron's hair and beard soon was scorched and smoking and would soon be in flames, and in a few moments more he and Scipio, too, would have been second victims.

But suddenly, just as the fire had actually begun its scorching work upon the skin of the two prisoners, a tremendous explosion, with the thunderous explosion of a score or more of Winchester's, and half as many of the barbarous guns surrounding the scene, burst forth, and the ground was written in the last agonies of death. Then with maddened yells a large number of blue-coated soldiers fell to the ground, and the government scout, Bob, Jr., Mr. Barrett, and Bonaparte, the sergeant, burst from the encompassing undergrowth, and, bounding like the wind, they entered the arena, where the remaining Sioux stood aghast, with bulging eyes and faces filled with a fearful expectation.

So sudden had been this destructive onslaught that those about were filled with consternation, and stood as if petrified to the spot by some supernatural power, for a moment utterly incapable of raising a hand in their own defense.

The soldiers began to close still closer to them to realize their situation and with piercing screams of fright turned to the spot by some supernatural power, for a moment utterly incapable of raising a hand in their own defense.

BOY AND MAN.

A Story of the Late Indian Uprising.

CHAPTER XV. THRU THE WOODS TO THE FOREST.

The crowd, yellow flames soon began to creep up through the interstices of the brush surrounding the two doomed friends, who stood seemingly as immovables as the trees to which they were clinging. A twitching of a muscle could be detected.

It was a horrible, almost unearthly spectacle, the fire growing brighter and fiercer, throwing fantastic shadows through the woods, lighting up the dark tree trunks with the vividness of noonday, the dusky half-lights of the twilight, and the brilliant gleams of the wildest delight and exultation, and the vast wilderness vibrating with all the din of hell's infernal orgies.

The fire now began to wave its forked tongues in terrible proximity to the faces of the prisoners. Cameron's hair and beard soon was scorched and smoking and would soon be in flames, and in a few moments more he and Scipio, too, would have been second victims.

But suddenly, just as the fire had actually begun its scorching work upon the skin of the two prisoners, a tremendous explosion, with the thunderous explosion of a score or more of Winchester's, and half as many of the barbarous guns surrounding the scene, burst forth, and the ground was written in the last agonies of death. Then with maddened yells a large number of blue-coated soldiers fell to the ground, and the government scout, Bob, Jr., Mr. Barrett, and Bonaparte, the sergeant, burst from the encompassing undergrowth, and, bounding like the wind, they entered the arena, where the remaining Sioux stood aghast, with bulging eyes and faces filled with a fearful expectation.

So sudden had been this destructive onslaught that those about were filled with consternation, and stood as if petrified to the spot by some supernatural power, for a moment utterly incapable of raising a hand in their own defense.

The soldiers began to close still closer to them to realize their situation and with piercing screams of fright turned to the spot by some supernatural power, for a moment utterly incapable of raising a hand in their own defense.

MAX MEYER & BRO. CO. Jewelers and Opticians, SIXTEENTH AND FARNAM STS. SPECIAL SALE OF FINE CLOCKS AND OPTICAL GOODS THIS WEEK.

MAX MEYER & BRO. CO. Jewelers and Opticians, SIXTEENTH AND FARNAM STS. SPECIAL SALE OF FINE CLOCKS AND OPTICAL GOODS THIS WEEK.

MAX MEYER & BRO. CO. Jewelers and Opticians, SIXTEENTH AND FARNAM STS. SPECIAL SALE OF FINE CLOCKS AND OPTICAL GOODS THIS WEEK.

MAX MEYER & BRO. CO. Jewelers and Opticians, SIXTEENTH AND FARNAM STS. SPECIAL SALE OF FINE CLOCKS AND OPTICAL GOODS THIS WEEK.

MAX MEYER & BRO. CO., 16TH AND FARNAM STS., OMAHA, NEB. ESTABLISHED 1866.

NEW YORK DENTAL PARLORS N. E. Cor. 14th and Farnam Sts. DR. F. L. BROWNE. CURE FITS! $4.00