Council Bluffs Ahead.

Last fall the Council Bluffs gas and electric light company, on account of increased demand for electric lights, were compelled to enlarge their plant and increase the power by adding another 160-horse power engine.

Propositions were submitted by various manufacturers, but the owner was finally given to the Olden Iron Works in the city. The principal competitor was the Westinghouse company, and several of their high speed engines were already at work in the station.

The improvements put upon the Council Bluffs building added a contraption of an engine that would not only compete with the others but furnish the same power and effect a saving of 20 per cent. The engine was built and has been furnishing the power required to operate all the city lights since November 28. The final test has been made and the results are much better than was expected. It showed a saving of 35 per cent in the amount of fuel, and Mr.

Ogden by the terms of the contract also paid him for the construction of the engine. The electric light people are highly pleased with the machine and have given the builder a hearty written endorsement. The date for recovering the speed of the old and slower iron works record is so steady possible motion is so perfect that there is a variation of less than two-thirds of 1 per cent when the entire load of the machine is thrown on or off while running at full speed.

For the next week those elegant hand-painted tea pots with a pound of the finest sun-dried Japan tea, will be sold at each

Lund Brothers' tea room, 75¢ tea in the city, and there is not a dealer on this side of the Pacific ocean who can purchase the pots so they can be retailed at $1.

They make elegant presents. See them and you will admire and purchase them, 23

Main street.

Do you want an express wagon or boy?

bers of the Klamath Literary Society at her home, 115 North Ninth street, last Friday evening. The guests were attired in pillow cases, and whatever was more than made up by the amusement that was gotten out of the determining of who was who. Mr. George

Clarke was awarded the prize for the greatest success. The girls were given a gold pen.

They were about thirty persons, and a most enjoyable evening was spent.

THE NEWS IN THE BLUFFS.

The Trial of the First Liquor Injunction Case Still Unfinished.

A MIDNIGHT FIGHT ON SEVENTH STREET.

Change in the Management of the Motor Lines—Places to Worship

—Various Social Events

About the City.

The trial of the injunction case of Turner vs. Link & Schulte was resumed yesterday morning in instructive court. At the opening of court the audience was not so large as on Friday, but as the morning wore away the people kept dropping in and by noon the room was packed. The first hour of the morning session was occupied by the cross-examination of witnesses in proceedings for a change of venue in the case of C. E. Stone vs. the city. This is a cause in which the plaintiff seeks damages from the city for injuries to his property during an Indian creek overflow.

One line of ladies' spring weight jackets is being made, and a good many are on order.

The great craze this season in the wash line is going to be flannelites, lace and pineapples. The latter is a soft, light-colored material, with tiny flowers and stripes.

There is a great variety of lace, and the lace is very delicate.

Turner alleged that it would be impossible for him to have a fair trial in the city on account of the prejudice of the juries.
