ADAMS WAS A HIGH ROLLER.

His Peculiar Money-Making Schemes Landed Him in the Penitentiary.

WILL ANSWER FOR AN OMAHA OFFENSE.

He Tells a Queer Story of the Method Taken by the Rock Island Sheriff to Secure Vengeance.

Edward A. Ise, alias Charles Adams, the man brought back from Joliet by Captain Mostyn to answer to a charge of forgery, tells a story that puts the ex-sheriff of Rock Island in an unenviable light, and it is corroborated by Marshal Miller of Rock Island and Captain Mostyn. The story is a long one, but it is told by ise substantially as follows: He was the son of well-to-do parents in an eastern state, and was sent to Princeton to complete his education. About three years ago, when he had reached his senior year, his father met with financial reverses and he was compelled to abandon his college course. Shortly after-ward a severe attack of nervous prostration left him with a most pronounced impediment in his speech, but he started out to earn his

After working for a while as a bookkeeper, he went to Long Branch and began playing the races, but he piaced his money on the wrong horses, and before long was dead broke. He fell in with a man who claimed to be an actor, and this individual proposed a scheme by which they could make some money. Ise was in a condition where a money making scheme looked very attractive, and at once entered into it. He was sent out as advance agent for the actor, and the game was for the actor to forward a check to his agent in care of some hotel. When the agent arrived there the check was n waiting for him, and the hotelkeeper was expected to cash it in anticipation of securing expected to cash it is house. The scheme the whole company for his house. The scheme was successfully worked in Baltimore, but nothing has been heard from the authorities. f that city regarding the matter, and it is of known to what extent it was worked

Ise struck Omaha about fifteen months go and stopped at the Windsor. It was not ong until he had succeeded in having two heeks cashed by Messrs. Prince & Schlank, and then came a day when the advance agent disappeared and with him Sol Prince's $75 vercoat. The thing that galled Prince was overcoat. The thing that gailed Prince was to think that he had insisted on Ise taking the coat. Ise was having his own coat cleaned, and as it was a raw, chilly day, Prince would not allow his guest to go out without proper covering. The coat was recovered by Cap-tain Mostyn when Ise was arrested in Rock Island a year ago.

It is because of the occurrences following his arrest in that city that Ise is filled with indignation, and the local authorities are a little sore on the same point. Sheriff Silvis entertained a spite against the Ne-braska authorities, and Ise was made to suffer for it when that official made his petty attempt to "get even."

Ise had floated two of his checks there and tried to work off another when he put up at the Negus hotel in Rock Island. The pro-prietor could not cash it, but Ise was arrested by Marshall Miller and held as a fugitive from justice to await the arrival of an Omaha officer.

Captain Mostyn secured requisition papers, which were forwarded to Springfield and then to Rock Island where they were in the hands of the sheriff when Mostyn arrived. Miller wanted him to have the prisoner, but as there was an unfriendly feeling between Miller and the sheriff the latter opposed it, and endeavored to have Negus file a complaint against Ise so that he could be held there. The landlord refused, holding that there was no case against Ise, but the sheriff prevailed on the night clerk, a young fellow named Blum, who knew nothing about the case, to sign the complaint. When the prisoner was taken before the police magistrate, that official severely scored the sheriff, saying, "You have held this man for eleven days without filling a complaint, and now when this Nebraska officer comes for him you rush in here with this complaint.

I will have nothing to do with will have nothing to do this rotten affair," and he tore up the complaint before the eyes of the officer.

The sheriff hustled the prisoner to a justice shop across the street where a new com-plaint was filed, and inside of ten minutes the defendant had waived examination and been held to the district court in the sum of $5,000. The sheriff provided Ise with an attorney and on advice of the latter he pleaded guilty to a charge of an attempt to utter forged paper, being given to understand that the penalty would be thirty or sixty days in jail. When he was arraigned the state's attorney was so drunk that he could not appear in court, and the defendant's attorney. fendant's attorney was so well corned that he addressed the court without rising. Another attorney had to be pressed into duty to represent the state. To Ise's great surprise he was told that an attempt to utter worthless paper would receive the same punishment as in case the attempt had been successful and was sentenced to a year in the penitentiary. When Captain Mostyn de-manded to know why he had been treated in that way, the sheriff explained by saying that he had to go to Nebraska once after a prisoner, and he wasn't treated right, and he had been waiting for an opportunity to play back the same way. Another reason was that it was a matter of dollars and cents with him, as he got so much for feeding the prisoner, and a certain sum for every appearance in court as well as a mileage for taking a prisoner to the penitentiary, and he wanted all he could get. The Nebraska authorities did not kick about the matter, but concluded to have the prisoner just the same and Captain Mostyn was on hand to receive Ise as he left the doors of on hand to receive ise as he left the doors of the filinois penitentiary.

It was on this second trip that Mostyn learned how ise had been "kangarooed."

Ise will plead guilty here to the charge of forgery and endeaver to have the court take cognizance of his full story. He is an intelli-gent young man, and says he wants to turn over a new leaf. One term has convinced him that he wants no more of that life, and him that he wants no more of that life, and he is confident that he has sufficient ability to support himself in a straightforward manner. While in the Joliet penitentiary he was the record keeper and devised a complete new set of record books greatly simplifying the hitherto complicated system and simplifying the hitherto complicated system, and straight-ened out the old records of the 20,706 prison-ers that had been confined in the institution, as well as of the 1,416 convicts who were there when he left—He is an expert accountant and fine penman, and as his crookedness was all computed within any year, he does was all committed within one year, he does not want it to wreck his whole life.

The idea of going out of business has been brought about by a bill passed at the recent session of the legislature, which provides that the county board of each county may grant license for the sale of mait, spirituous and vinous liquors, if deemed expedient, upon the application by petition of thirty of the resident freeholders of the town, if the county is under township organization, and if not under township organization, and if not under township organization, then thirty of the resident freeholders of the precinct where the sale of such liquor is proposed to take place, setting forth that the applicant is a man of respectable character and standing man of respectable character and standing and a resident of this state, and praying that license may be issued to him. Such applica-tion to be filed in the office of the county clerk and upon payment into the county treasury of such sum as the board may re-quire, not less than five hundred ($500) dollars for each license, and upon the empliance with the provisions of this act.
Provided, such board shall not have power to issue any license for the sale of any liquors in city or incorporated village, or within two miles of the same. Provided, in counties having 150,000 innabicants, the county commissioners may also issue license within two miles of any city in

The law has caused consternation among most of the outside saloonists, and instead of showing fight, the county commissioners have an idea that most of them will be out of business, though some will take out their business, though some will take out their licenses, and make their places summer resorts for those parties who take a summer drive and a nip by the wayside. The law will be rigidly enforced, and those saloon men who will not peaceably submit will be proceeded against by the county board.

Yesterday he said: "I am in favor of giving the contractor another trial and then if he does not do his work, I think the city should hire men to clean the streets and charge the expense to the contractors' bonds. When the bond is exhausted, the city can buy machines bond is exhausted, the city can buy machines and do the work by the day, under the supervision of the board of public works. This plan would certainly be much cheaner and give better satisfaction," While upon this subject, the mayor had a word to say regarding the street and sidewalk commissioners. "My idea," said he, "would be to abolish both of these offices. I would put these departments under the control of the board of public works. Give one member the streets and the other the sidewalks. ber the streets and the other the sidewalks and make them responsible for their respec tive departments. AYERSTIVINDICATED. Jury Gives Himm Verdict Against the Sud Fire Office. Attorneys Ransom, Gurley and Marple are feeling exceedingly happy over the outcome of the case of Edward A. Ayerst against the Sun Fire Office insurance company that was submitted to the jury yesterday afternoon. This is the celebrated case noticed in I'm BEE a week ago, and which has been on trial ever since.

It was a suit on an insurance policy wherein the Sun Fire Office insurance company, the defendant, set up several defenses, among others, that the plaintiff. Ayerst, burned the property, the value of which was sued for in the suit. When the case was called the insurance company's attorneys stated to the jury that they would prove that the plaintiff. Ayerst, was an embezzler, and that he had been indicted for embezzlement. On the trial of the case they produced one witness who testified that he had heard one person speak in a derogatory manner of the plaintiff.

MOORE'S TREE OF LIFE

A desifter once for Kidney and Liver Complaints and all blood diseases. Does it pay to surfer when you can be cared by using Mosres True of Life into Great Life Remedy? Prices! par battle. Prepared and put up by Dr. J. R. Mosre.

TESTIMONIAL EMERSON, In., Dec. 10, 1870.

My Dear Mr. Moore.—For many years my wife has been a great sufferer from the very worst kind of sick headache, and has tried a great many so-called remedies, but without any good results. A neighboring minister. sreat many so-canted the special properties of the same supposed results. A neighboring minister, who had been greatly benefitted by it himself, advised the use of your Tree of Life. She at once precured a bottle, and now after 6 months, can conscientiously recommend it as a valuable medicine which according to the nature of the case, will ward of greatly relieve or radically cure sick headache.
