NEWS FROM COUNCIL BLUFFS.

Matters in the Northwestern Yards Resume Their Normal Status.

PLENTY OF MEN TO DO ALL THE WORK.

Old Employes of the Company in Executive Positions-No Quest'ons Asked Save as to Ability of Applicants.

Yesterday morning all signs of disorder about the Northwestern passenger depot had vanished, and things were running, if possible, more smoothly than on the day before. All the vacancies that were made by the summary discharge of the dozen switchmen on Thursday morning had been filled. The trainmen had been performing the switchmen's duties in accordance with an agreement that had been entered into by them and the company when the fractious hands were discharged. The men who were appointed to fill the vacancies were without an exception experienced railroad men, most of them having been connected with the Northwestern in some capacity or other. Among them were several who had been engaged in the prospective strike. The fact is pointed to by the officials of the road to show that the move was made out of a desire to reorganize the department rather than to make war on any set of men.

In every case the applications of the men who wanted to be put in to fill the vacancies were considered simply with respect to the qualifications for the position, and the question of their previous record was not taken into consideration at all, that is, if the statements of the officials can be trusted implicitly.

Fred Westerp was appointed to the posi-ion of yardmaster. He was formerly con-ected with the Northwestern at this point, but was removed in order to make soom for a conductor who had lost an arm in the service. He was sent to Boone, but after a short service he was discharged upon the demand of the switenmen's union, Westrip being a non-union man. The fact of his appointment is considered a fair indication of the policy that may be expected to be taken by the company in the future.

General Agent M. J. Alworth said yesterday: "In the past the switchmen have had everything their own way. Every demand that they have made has been conceded, but we have called a halt. The men who have been appointed understand that they are expected to obey, and not to command, and I don't think we will have any trouble with them. There was no agreement made be-tween them and the company, but it is un-derstood pretty perfectly, I think, just how matters stand."

The move is universally conceded by rail-The move is universally conceded by rail-road men to have been one of the boldest that has ever been made by any railway com-pany toward its employes. When the switch-men were discharged, the officials at this point had not the slightest idea whom they would put in to fill the vacancies. Had it not been for the fact that the war was one between the switchmen on the one side and the company and the trainmen on the other. the company and the trainmen on the other, the company must have been badly crippled and the public subjected to considerable annoyance. But the trainmen went in and worked with a will, and the result was that the work was done without a hitch.

Old, Old Story. Sheriff W. C. Delashmutt of Mills county was in the Bluffs yesterday, searching for three men who relieved a Mills county farmer of $1,500 last Wednesday. The victim was Aaron Lewis, who lives about five miles south of Silver City. Lewis received a visit from a young man last Tuesday. The young from a young man last Tuesday. The young man stayed over night at the farmer's house, and while there learned that the farmer had some wealth. On Wednesday two other men called and they induced the farmer to go to Hillsdale on some pretext, where he drew $5,500 from the bank. A game of cards followed and $1,500 was secured, when they left. Officers there will also the property of the secure when they left. Officers were notified and a hot chase followed, but they escaped. One of the men was in this city Wednesday evening, and is known, but the other two are strangers. The First Railroad Train. George A. Haynes of Salida, Colo., was in the Bluffs yesterday. He was formerly county recorder of Pottawattamie county, and one of the first things he did on arriving in the city was to hunt up the office and see how much it had changed since he did duty there in 1867. In looking over the books he found a record that he had made on January , 1867, the day when the first railroad train attered Council Bluffs. It was over the Northwestern railroad, and he watched the great event take place from the window of the court house, which was at that time on Upper Broadway. He had a fine view of the train as it stood upon the tracks at the local depot, the lower part of the city being all a vast wilderness of nothing. He was greatly interested in noting the various changes that had taken place since his removal.

SALOON KEEPERS MUST PAY Else the Injunction Lawyer Won't Get His Fees.

A decision has been rendered by Attorney General John Y. Stone which will prove of interest to all who are in any way interested in the enforcement of the prohibitory liquor law, and especially so to those who are taking an active part in the closing of the saloons. The decision was in reply to a list of questions which were sent to him by S. P. Van Dyke, county auditor of Benton county.

One point which was raised was whether an attorney who had succeeded in getting a defendant convicted of the offence of maintaining a nuisance, and in having the custaining a nuisance, and in having the customary attorney fees taxed up to the convicted party, could hold the county responsible for the fees in case the salaonkeeper had no money and had to pay his fine by boarding it out in the county jail. In answer to this question, the attorney general said that the attorney fees were not mentioned among the other fees in such cases which by law are to be taxed up against the county, and that it was his opinion that if it had been the intention of the legislators to slow the attorney fees to be taxed up in that way it would have been so stated in the law.

A second point was whether a county at-

A second point was whether a county at-torney was entitled to his usual per cent of the fees in cases which he had not helped to prosecute. The attorney general decided that

The third point was, when a fine is imposed but not paid until after January I, when the county attorney who presecuted the case has retired from office and his successor has taken his place, which attorney is entitled to the fees, the one who prosecuted the case or the one who is in office at the time the fine is paid! The decision of the attorney general was that the county attorney who held office at the time the fine was imposed was the one who was entitled to the importance, save to county attorneys throughout the state, or to the members of the county boards who have to allow the fees to the county attorneys, but the first is of more general interest. It is thought that the decision of the attorney general in regard to that point, while it does not carry with it the force of the absolute law, will yet have a force of the absolute law, will yet have a great deal to do with keeping lawyers and others from going not the saloon closing business for the sole purpose of making what fees they can out of the saloonkeepers. It has heretofore been thought that the attorney fees can be taxed up to the county in case they cannot be collected from the convicted parties, but the fact that the fees must be paid by the convict or by no one will undoubtedly be adopted as the rule of action by the county boards throughout the state, and will consequently put a stop to a large per will consequently put a stop to a large per centage of the injunction business that is in dulged in in the cities.

Change of Management.

The Hotel Grand changed hands yesterday it noon, the firm of Cragin & Co. stepping out and the firm of Kimbali & Champ stepping in. The change created but little surprise, as it has been an open secret for several days past that such a change would be made soon. Ever since last Sunday rumors of various sorts have been floating around the city, and have been discussed freely on the street corners. These rumors were not at all complimentary to the managers of the hotel, but as they were unsubstantiated by proof it was decided that the best thing for the hotel, the city, and all their residences. other parties concerned, was that nething should be done by the owners of the building which would add to the publicity of the matter, but that the managers should step quietly down and out.

Ever since the hotel was opened it has more than paid expenses. That this was so was a surprise to the owners, as it was sup-posed that it would be necessary to run it at a loss until its reputation should become es-tablished. But instead of that the books have shown an amount of business that surpassed all expectations and compared very favorably with the Omaha hostelries. Messrs, Kimball & Champ managed affairs from noon until last evening, when the an-nouncement was made that the management of the hotel had been offered to Mr. George Phelps, and had been accepted Mr. Phelps was formerly connected with the Ogden house, at a time when it was in the height of its glory, and is well and favorably known to traveling men throughout the Mr. E. A Troutman was appointed head clerk, and the new force took possession

BUYING CAR LOADS.

The Entire Product of Factories Taken.

Where do all the goods go? The many teams and employes needed to con-duct so large an establishment. Young folks just starting housekeeping.

It is easy to catch a suggestion of the way in which it is possible in such a large establishment as The People's Mammoth Installment Company to get any sort of household goods not only on an easy and convenient credit, but at prices quite as moderate as at any of the cash houses and often even lower.

The immense storage space at command enables the firm to buy goods in very large quantities, and being a center frequented by so many the goods are rapidly turned over. Such large quantitles as are purchased by The People's Mammoth Installment Company command large discounts, and that of course, means lower prices for the purchaser.

This is illustrated in regard to furniture, probably the most expensive of the departments dealt with. Men were seen on Saturday bringing in immense numbers of large and queer looking parcels all carefully padded and packed in the most careful and scientific manner. It proved to be a carload of furniture coming in. "Is this anything unusual?" the intelligent and well informed head of that department was asked.

"Not at all," was the reply; "we always buy furniture by the carload, and moreover, take the entire product of several large furniture manufactories in different parts of the country." Point-ing to a very attractive and artistic group of parlor furniture he added: You see that $45 set of furniture in seven pieces so exquisitely upholstered. Well, many wonder how we can sell it at that price. The fact is we are the only house that has it; we take all that can be manufactured, and by rapidly disposing of it are able to sell it at that

The several parts of the building of The People's Mammoth Installment Company's establishment devoted to furniture make it look like a number of good-sized furniture establishments hidden away under one roof. There is furniture both in front and rear of 613, in the front and rear of 615, immense areas of furniture in the front and back basements, acres of furniture stored on the upper floors, and furniture on the landings of the stairway and almost all over the house. One of the leading buyers for the concern commenting on this said: "I am often astounded at the way in which such masses of furniture appear and disappear in an establishment like this. You come here today and you see a long line of bedsteads, an avalanche of chairs and a perfect kaleidoscope of household furnishings. You come tomorrow and they are all gone and others have taken their place different in style and finish and wholly unlike them in form.

One week there may be more walnut, another oak preponderates and even the oaks vary as much as though they were not the same wood. The material from which these articles for human comfort and convenience are made may come from forests a thought and convenience are made may come from the same wood. forests a thousand miles apart and one design may be from an English model another from a German. Often, when I buy by the carload and see it coming in, I wonder where we are going to put it or where it is going to go, but in an incredibly short time it vanishes, I cannot tell how nor where.

ing. As he was about going up stairs with the writer of this article he pointed out one of the latest novelties in bedroom convenience yet devised. It was a folding bed that combinea a bureau and dressing case and wardrobe. It was in dark oak and really a wonderful con-trivance. There was a revolving glass and adjustable drawers, by means of which a man could shave in bed or a lady make the preliminaries of her toilet before arising. Then with one movement the bed was closed, the wardrobe opened and a complete dressing case on the other side disclosed. When altoget shut up the affair with its plate glass mirror doors and graceful outlines was as ornamental a piece of furniture as could be seen anywhere. The price was $100. Grouped with it were several other handsome articles. After a sur-vey of the departments up stairs, lo and behold! on coming down a transforma-tion had taken place. The ingenious piece of household mechanism had been sold, and being required immediately by some one wanting to have a home celebration of their own, had been shipped and was on the way home along with other articles that had stood near

WOMAN AND THE HOME. Her Interest in the Beautiful Things

Now Available for Furnishing. Interesting as it is to a man, the great credit establishment of The People's Mammoth Installment House is even more so to the ladies, who always have had the greater share in home building, for while the man provides it is the housewife who furnishes and preserves. Usually she is the more economical member of the family. From cellar to the topmost floor there is not an inch of this great cosmopolitan bazaar that does not appeal to woman and her domestic aspirations for a cheerful and comfort-

And in this connection it is not inappropriate to consider that, no matter what her nationality, it is woman who has exerted the greatest influence in bringing about not only the develop-ment in the beauty of the belongings of the home, but in fostering and extending the keen appreciation which brings them into such general application.

The influence of women in bringing about all these modifications of the household menage has been a powerful one. From the day when religious in-fluences succeeded in prevailing upon the barbarous man, who was in the habit of making himself the husband of as many wives as he could afford to care for, to imitate his neighbor, who was the husband of but one wife, they made the marriage ceremony a thing of splendid note, with the use of their most sacred and memorable rites.

From that hour home became sacred and developed into a shrine of beauty, where sanctified affection sat enthroned. Possessing the ability to manage her husband's affairs and to entertain his guests, the mistress of the place, having her way in most things not unreasonable, soon came to win him to procure for her all the garniture that rumor whispered her some other lord had brought his dame from the Levant, from the Moors in Spain, or, later, out of Burgundy. And so she procures, piece by piece, her square of carpet that has come all the way from Persia to be sold in one of the yearly fairs not too far off; her flowered leather from Brabant, to hang before the high back of the great elab orately carved seat, to get which and her noble dresser made she had such ado. She would not have had much difficulty, though, in her work had her personal influence been less; for there were few nobles of any importance who, before the end of the fourth Crusade, had not made their journey into the east, or into Africa, and had not be come accustomed there to unheard of splendor, had not admired and desired it themselves, had not brought home such things as were transportable, and when they had told their wives the story, it was for the women to procure the rest for themselves. All this household daintiness and elegance as revived in modern times is to be seen exemplified in the comprehensive display which The People's Mammoth Installment House has arranged with so much taste and public spirit. No greater mistake could be made than to suppose that the majority of this furniture is common stuff, glued board that come apart under the exigencies of heat and knock-around wear. An hour in The People's Mammoth Installment House's establishment will convince the most skeptical that it is not the tawdry any common that people who purchase on credit or installments as a rule select. On the contrary the purchasers who draw a little on the future, and ask that their earning capacities be taken into account as an element of credit, usually seek to get things of the better class, things that will last and have serviceable qualities as well as enduring beauty. Scat-tered through the great establishment and especially in the art furniture rooms on the second floor of the new building, there are to be found as handsome pieces eral collection in the best establishments of the city. Interesting as is the extensive furniture display in the floor below it is all eclipsed by the elegant examples of the skilled upholsterer's art and the attractive designs in weed and brass and other combinations on the floor above. Just at the head of the stairway is a suite of Parlor Furniture, covered with the finest Axminster Rugs, the price of which is $225; while the first suite, no two piece alike, and all covered with the finest Silk Brocatelle in blue, eeru and ole pink, which forms such a striking part of the furnishing of the model parlor, is marked $325. Each suite contains five pieces. The floors of these bijou apartments are rug-covered, and Onyx Tables, Elegant Cabinets, holding bric-a-brac, Doulton and other China, and Hanging Pictures and Graceful Portieres and Curtains, all add to the attractive and artistic conception of what a pretty parlor of furniture as may be seen in any gen-

can be made. Beyond, on the left, is a library, the full suite of which is marked $75. the details there are also carefully thought of. It is a spot full of suggestiveness. To so many the library means much more than the parlor-a place where history brings up the past, where science pours out her secrets, where the great travelers of the earth sit down and speak to you, the gossipers of the courts whisper from behind their pages and the monarchs of the intellectual world step down from their thrones and becom our familiars. Fashion varies in the shape of bookcases as in everything else. but for those who do not care to build fixtures into a house the portable bookcase is most advantageous, and the book case combined with the writing desk most convenient. On the first floor in the 621 store there are a great variety o bookcases, some high and some low, and some so arranged that with a comfortable desk in the middle the bookcases project on each side and are made available without moving from the seat There are also a great diversity of library chairs, varying in price and suited to the greatest diversity of tastes. To the thoughtful observer, whether or not intent on purchase, a ramble through such a large and complete establishment as that of The People's Mammoth Installment House, with its avenues of elegant and serviceable accessories of the home, its congrega-tions of chairs, its accumulation of bedsteads and bedding and folding beds and an aggregation and variety of almost every known article of furniture be-longing to the household, it is in the highest degree interesting to contemplate the suggestions of achievement in the way of human comfort which they Though furniture may not be as 1mportant as temples or monuments, it has taken eras full of intense human interests in the movements of the world to produce these things. Relics of the crusades and of the renaissance may be seen in the forms of a single chair, Great have been the changes, since in Gothic times in the one great hall used for every service there was but a single chair, occupied invariably by the master of the house, and never surrendered by him except to some superior. Uncom-fortable though it was, and not to be compared with some of the easy affairs at The People's, in which one sinks at once into a doze, it was nevertheless the seat of honor. Remarkable has been the revolution, since even the prosperous are their meals from a cloth spread on the floor while partially supported by cushions, o which the fauteuil remains a relic. Throughout the first floor, but more especially in the buildings 615, 617, 619

North 16th street, there is to be found at The People's Mammoth Installment House's great establishment such a diversity of household furnishings as is saidon, seen under one seef. Freety seldom seen under one roof. Every-thing that belongs to the comfort and convenience of a home, from a stove or the humblest kitchen utensil to statuary or richly upholstered divans and lace curtains, are to be found here, not restricted for the wealthy alone, but available to all and the most moderate income by means of the credit system. The array of attractive furniture takes n a variety of styles, as well as diversity of forms, and any one wishing an ex-quisitely uphoistered parlor lounge, the equal in style of those in the very finest houses, can have it as easily as the plainest and most practical dining room

It is no unusual thing for young pe ple just beginning housekeeping to be furnished throughout entirely from The People's Mammoth Installment House's establishment, as they find it much more convenient, can make satisfactory arrangements and can have bet ter facilities by selecting everything needful at one place under the sam

Many a pretty and happy home has had its beginning in B. Rosenthal & Co.'s establishment, and many who have started in this way have continued dealing there, getting everything needful for the family as the years went by.

The situation of the establishment on this main business thoroughfare, with the Hanscom park and Twenty-fourth street motor cars passing the door every few minutes, within one block of the South Omaha and Sherman avenue motor cars, within a five-minutes' walk from the terminus of the Council Bluffs motor, makes it the center, to which not only the people of Omaha, but hundreds from various parts of South Omaha and Council Bluffs, etc., find their way.

Indeed, it may be said that the conven-ient credit system of The People's Mammoth Installment House has fully as great an appreciation outside of Omaha as in it. The number of regular cus-tomers from Council Bluffs and other parts of Iowa has been increasing with every year, and no other trade has been found more mutually satisfactory.

If the exterior of this extensive estab lishment is prepossessing and a key to the thoroughly businesslike and comprehensive character of the transactions of the concern, the interior is even

The vast spaces occupied by single de-partments; the hundreds of bedsteads, he thousands of chairs, the vistas of curtains, the avenues of wardrobes, the tiers of tables, extending quite as far as the eye can easily measure, and the whole interesting aggregation broken and varied here and there by displays of pictures, exhibits of bronzes and statuary, make up one superb and be-wildering spectacle of the artistic industrial achievements of the present day, made at once available to the most ordinary means, that when seen makes any one glad that he or she is living in the favored age and the favored land they are.
