Wells Not to Blame.

Yesterday's arrests contained an account of the case of H. M. Wells of the Judd-Wells investment company in Chicago, on the charge of dissolving of the firm property for the purpose of defrauding the creditors. W. H. Kuepfer, the assignee of the firm, was seen yesterday by a Bee reporter and gave a full explanation of the affair, setting Mr. Wells right in every particular.

"I appointed Wells my agent to take charge of the property of the firm in Chicago," he said. "Some of the firm's creditors went on to Chicago and tried to get possession of the property to satisfy their claim. I had no right to settle the claim under my instructions from the court, and Mr. Wells had no right to give up the property without instructions from me. I had ordered the lumber which was at the bottom of the controversy to be sent to this city, and the only thing for him to do was to send it according to my instructions. The arrest was evidently made for the purpose of building Wells into paying off the firm, but it failed to work."

NEWS FROM COUNCIL BLUFFS.

District Court Will Consider the Ordinance for Fining Saloonkeepers.

LEGALITY OF THE MATTER TO BE TESTED. Narrow Escape of Boatman from Drowning—A Woman Under Bonds to Keep the Peace—Wells' Arrest Explained.

The city ordinance which gives the judge of police court power to impose a fine on the keepers of disorderly houses is to be given another whirl this morning in district court.

William Disaver was arrested about a week ago, charged with the maintaining of a disorderly house. He pleaded guilty before Judge Metcalf and was sentenced to pay a fine of $4.00, in default of which he was sent to the county jail to board the amount out with Sheriff O'Neill. It has long been a question whether the city ordinance authorizing proceedings of that kind is legal, and Disaver consulted Attorneys Dalley and Aylesworth as to the steps that should be taken. Yesterday afternoon the matter came to a head, and a writ of habeas corpus was sued out in district court for the release of Disaver.

The ground upon which the writ is asked for is the illegality of the ordinance. The attorneys claim that the city has no right to punish officers of any kind, except in so far as that right is given it by the statutes of the state. They further claim that there is no such thing as a disorderly house mentioned in the statutes, so that no law relating to the subject can be passed by the city. The question will be heard before either Judge Smith or Judge Hagner this morning at 9 o'clock, and the matter will be decided.

The city ordinance above referred to is to be tested to its limit in the case of a boatman. Captain W. A. Hays was arrested several days ago on a charge of keeping a disorderly house, and was held in jail $4.00 a night before he was taken to the police court held for the special purpose of hearing his case. He at once gave notice that the case would be tried before the district court. He has retained the legal services of George H. Hewitt, and the case will be pushed to the farthest limit. The outcome of the case will be watched with great interest, from the fact that when Attorney P. E. Seabrook left the city the saloonkeepers and a good share of the city's business of the city lay back and congratulated themselves that they would not be troubled any more by such proceedings. The ordinance has been in vogue in all the principal cities of the state ever since the passing of the prohibitory law, but the question of its legality has never been decided by the supreme court. Whichever way the case is decided this morning, it will be applied to the stock of the city, and the amount of litigation is likely to result from the opening up of the subject.

Point of a Loan Institution.

COUNCIL BLUFFS, Ia., June 23.—To the Editor of the BEE: It has always been something of a mystery to me that the local newspapers, usually so prompt to praise and boom all local institutions, should overlook one of the greatest enterprises, not only in Council Bluffs, but in the entire west, when we mention the important improvements and enterprises of the city. I refer to the United States Masonic Benevolent association. It has only been in the case of George Bryson against the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy railway company. As grounds for the motion were given the fact that the jury members who tried the case on its first hearing, stating that the verdict they had rendered had been in the nature of a compromise, and had not been according to the weight of the evidence.

THE ASSOCIATION.

The association, which was rock-rooted from the first and has been every day increasing its membership, is now numbering 85,000 instead of 85,000. The more I look into the plan of this magnificent institution the better I am pleased with it, and the prouder I become of the fact that it is a Council Bluffs institution, organized by Council Bluffs men and brought to its present wonderful stage of development by Council Bluffs brains and energy.

The head of the association is Judge J. R. Reed, who has just been appointed chief justice of the United States court of private land claims, then, who there is not a man in the country with a cleaner record for honor and integrity. All the other officers are gentlemen of equal integrity and high character. W. O. Wirt, first vice president and manager of the western department, is a gentleman whose ability as an insurance man cannot be questioned. Fred H. Brown, second vice president and manager of the eastern department with headquarters in Chicago, has an unusual business record and the experience of twenty years as an insurance manager. There is not a better known man in Council Bluffs than Secretary and Treasurer W. J. Jameson, and it is largely owing to his energy and steam-pressure energy that the marvelous success of the association is to be attributed. He is the working member of the association, and gets through with a routine business every day that would paralyze or nearly constipate individuals. He pulls off his coat and rolls up his sleeves when he comes into the office in the morning, but this is the only departure from his drawing room manner that there is when you will find him with a crushing grasp for your hand and a cheery smile that adds days to your life and makes you feel that there is something more than words in the brotherhood of man. Dr. T. B. Lacey, the medical director, stands at the top of his profession, and closely follows him in the office in the morning, but this is the only departure from his drawing room manner that there is when you will find him with a crushing grasp for your hand and a cheery smile that adds days to your life and makes you feel that there is something more than words in the brotherhood of man. Fighting the Waves.

Bert Evans, Mike Kildare and Charles Evans had an experience at Lake Manawa yesterday morning that will stay with them the rest of the season. They were crossing the lake when a stiff breeze was blowing. They attempted to tack, when the rudder suddenly broke. The weight of the boat had been thrown upon the rudder, and the giving way of the support capized the boat and sent the three occupants into the water head first. They were near the south shore when the accident occurred, and they at first thought they would be able to swim to the shore without much trouble, but the wind was from the south and a short trial convinced them that they would be flying in the face of providence for them to try to swim in that direction, and they at once turned back to the north shore. A young man named Thomas, who tends the boats saw their predicament and set out to help them. He helped them to reach the shore, and they were able to get out of the water without much trouble. They were very serious about the affair, but it is a little too soon yet for them to look at it in the light of a joke.

Put Under Bonds.

Mrs. Williams, the leader of the gang that has had some unpleasant notoriety during the past week or so because of the thieving that it has been alleged they are doing near the east end of the motor bridge, was arrested and taken before Justice Cones yesterday morning for a charge of threatening to kill Mrs. James Richardson, one of her neighbors, fled the information. Mrs. Williams was accompanied by the whole outfit that hangs out at her house, who came along to see that she got justice. Her case was heard by the Justice, after which she was put under bonds in the sum of $200 to keep the peace. She gave the bond required and was released.

out caught fire and the flames flashed up in her face and set her clothing on fire. By the assistance of some of the neighbors the fire was extinguished, but not until her hands and face and neck were badly burned. Her injuries are not considered serious.

IN SOLEMN SESSION.

Men Who Practice "Special" Medicine Conferred.

Five or six professional-looking gentlemen with patriarchal beards drove up to the Paxton about 10 o'clock yesterday morning. They proceeded at once to the cafe, where they were closeted in secret session about half an hour, after which they all re-entered the hotel lobby and dispersed. When approached by the Bee reporter they were both to give him any information. After fighting a series of questions for some time, the gentleman who posed as the leader vouchsafed the information that they were delegates to the continental congress of medicine and surgery being held here at present. When asked for a list of the delegates he replied that he was unable to furnish it, and knew of no one who could. None of his companions would tell what was the object of the meeting, by whom called, nor would they answer any other pertinent questions.

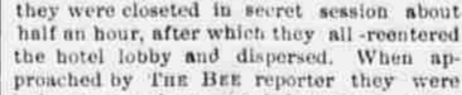

Early in the present month a conference was held in this city by a lot of doctors, who have been taboed by "regular" practitioners. This conference decided to call a meeting of its fellow countrymen for the purpose of perfecting an organization for the higher elevation of medical, surgical and scientific attainments; for the promotion of a more thorough and intelligent course among liberal physicians and "medicists"; to secure fair and equitable legislation, and advance the just claim of those who practice medicine and the different specialties of medicine and surgery in the estimation of the better class of the people.

In a conversation last evening one of the participants in the congress admitted that the meeting was called to take steps to legalize the liberal medical methods.

A meeting was held at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon and an organization perfected. Those of the congress still continue its deliberations with closed doors.
