It does not matter where I go, whether to the post library, the barracks of the soldier, the Indian agency or among the cosy quar-ters of the officers of the post, there you find a copy of THE BES. If all the numerous subscribers in this section get as much pleasure reading their copy as I get out of mine, they must experience a great lot of happiness.

I read with interest today, the excellent account of the advent into the world of THE BEE and gradual growth into its present shape. The article was most attractive reading for its friends. This post was visited on Thursday of last week by Captain Torrey, who I suppose is the most extensive cattle owner in the state of Wyoming. The captain is a most agreeable gentleman, entertaining and pleasant to meet and looks every inch like the thorough business man that he is. The captain, until a few years ago, was an officer in the United States army, holding the rank of captain in the Thirteenth infantry. While in the service he came to this section of the country under orders from General Augur, who com-manded this department and established this post in the year 1871. He selected the site and built the post and commanded it for some years. Shrewd business man that he the years, shrew dusitess man that he Captain Torrey saw a good busi-iss opening in cattle raising, he resigned from the army which he had served long and faithfully. ness.

His stay at the post was short, after which he went to his ranch, seventy miles north of this place.

Today at 10:30 a. m. Captain William Baird, at the head of Troop B of Sixth United States cavalry, rode into the gar-rison. The troop comes from Fort Myer, Va., where it has been for the past two years. was accompanied by Assistant Surgeon W. B. Banister, United States army, whose sta-tion is Washington barracks, D. C. The troop is sixty strong and are a fine-looking body of young men. The garrison is so small that the arrival of this troop is bailed with joy by Company F. Eighth infantry. Now games of football, baseball, and no doubt some matches to show which are the most proficient marksmen, are in order. First Sergeant Davis, the very popular and excellent orderly sergeant of Company F, Eighth infantry, very thoughtfully arranged matters so that when the cavalry arrived today they found a bountiful repast awaiting them which, shortly after arrival, the brave

It was a pleasure to see Captain Ray's Indian soldiers watching with interest every movement of the white troopers and wondering, I suppose, how long it would be before they would themselves become proficient. Lieutenant F. V. Krug, Eighth infantry, arrived today from Tacoma, Wash., where he has been tooking up some business interests. Mr. Krug leaves in a few days to go before the army examining board at Fort Omaha and is going to make a strike for a pair of first lieutenant shoulder straps. May he win them. SHARPSHOOTER.
