Eligibility of Women to Vote at School

Elections in Question. "There is one question I would like to hear discussed," said a prominent lawyer yesterday to a BEE reporter. "It is this: Can women vote at school elections under the operations of the Australian ballot law? I am inclined to think they cannot, for they cannot register, and the law is very strict with reference to the voting of parties who have not registered."

Half a dozen other attorneys were asked for an opinion upon the subject. They ap-peared to be somewhat uncertain as to the or more persons who are subjected to periodic attacks of bilious colic. In most cases for a day or two, or at least a few hours before the construction of the Australian law, but most of them thought that women would still be permitted to vote for school directors and members of school boards as they have in attack, it can be feit coming on."
