Dr. Cranston of Cincinnati Talks Against Sunday Newspapers.

NON-SUPPORT OF THE CHURCH ORGANS.

Dr. Maxfield's Memorial for Laymen—Money for Camp Meeting—Candidates for the Ministry—Other Business.

Dr. Maxfield proved to the North Nebraska conference yesterday very soon after the session convened, that he was the special friend of the laymen of the church, by introducing the following memorial:

To the Bishops and Members of the General Conference Session at Omaha, May 1, 1891.—Dear Fathers and Brethren: The Board of Christian Education respectfully memorializes your honorable body to insert at the beginning of the paper on annual conferences the following paragraph:

The annual conference shall be composed of all the traveling preachers and—composed of laymen from each district within the bounds of each annual conference respectively, to be chosen as the general conference may prescribe.

Dr. Maxfield supported the memorial in a strong speech. He said he had left the name of laymen in the memorial to be recommended to the general conference to be able to enable the general conference to decide for itself upon that matter.

Dr. Maxfield also spoke of the work of the deacons. The report of the committee on campmeeting was presented, and it recommended the establishment of a class in theology, and that the conference examinations be held at the campmeeting grounds instead of at the conference.

ANOTHER STORE ADDED TO THE PLACE.

Display of Dry Goods of All Kinds—Rivaling in Richness and Beauty Those of Eastern Markets.

For the twentieth time last night N. B. Falconer, the dry goods merchant on Douglas near Fifteenth street, threw open his magnificent store for his annual fall opening.

The store was a flood of light and the patrons improved the opportunity while viewing the marvelous display of goods to indulge in their social converse and congratulation which are the chief charms of large gatherings.

The show windows had been decorated with the extreme of artistic taste and discernment. In one of them was a display of table linen, beautifully illustrated by an excellent table set.

Beautiful Silks Shown. Passing through the main entrance and into the new addition, the visitor was first introduced into the silk department.

Then came the white goods and a host of other well filled departments, and then the visitors were conducted into the book department. Long frames of capes and jackets extended from end to end.
