SOME VERY INTERESTING PROCEEDINGS.

Prize Picture Awarded—Some Enthusiastic Addresses—Mrs. Mary A. Hitchcock Re-elected President—The Day's Routine.

About the first thing taken up yesterday morning by the Women's Christian Temperance Union was the report of the committee on revision of the constitution and by-laws.

Several important amendments were recommended by the committee. A lengthy discussion arose over the retention of county presidents as delegates to the state conventions.

The matter of sending delegates to the national convention was a subject of discussion. The rule has been that districts having a paid up membership of 500 have a right to a delegate in the national convention.

The premium for the largest number of subscriptions fell to the Iowa union. The premium offered by the Union Worker was a handsome framed and artistically executed portrait of Frances E. Willard.

Mrs. Woodward favored the idea of permitting the district not having 500 delegates to have a representative at the national convention by paying a sum equal to the same as the dues of 500 members.

NEW YORK'S ARMED PROTECTOR.

The Monitor Mintonomah Will Soon Be in the Harbor. NEW YORK, Sept. 24.—New York harbor will have its first armed protector about October 1. The monitor, Mintonomah lacks only the placing of two great guns in the fore turret to be complete. The guns are done, and are already on deck of the Monitor as she lies at a dock in the Brooklyn navy yard. She is to be placed in commission at once, even if the work is not entirely completed. The finishing touches can be put on later. The big turreted monitor has a long history. She was one of the fleet of ironclads built toward the close of the civil war after the model of the famous little monitor, at the time Uncle Sam had for the second time in his history, the most powerful navy in the world, and the Mintonomah was the most formidable ship in it. Since then she has been practically rebuilt twice, and is now an extremely formidable ship. She is a battleship in one sense of the word, for there is no ship of war afloat in any water, which she could not meet with some chance of victory. But she is primarily a harbor defense ship. Her business is not to go out to meet an enemy in other waters, but to lie in wait for her, and to sink her. To sink a foe she would give a welcome word of her flag, for in every respect, except her armor, she is perfectly modern.

EMPEROR WILLIAM WOULD NOT BEGIN HOSTILITIES UNLESS FORCED TO.

LONDON, Sept. 24.—The Standard's Vienna correspondent records a discussion which was carried on at the table of Archduke Albert during the Austrian military maneuvers. The emperor, he says, is a man of peace, and to his mind, it was wise to allow a known enemy to complete preparations for war or whether it was not preferable to force a conflict. "No names were mentioned," says the correspondent, "but all understood that Russia was meant. Emperor William said emphatically: 'I do not believe that the enormous responsibility which modern warfare imposes must override all military theories. I would not begin war if conscious that, by delaying it, I could secure a single year, nay a single month, of peace by trusting in the success of my good cause. Even if the chances are equal, on both sides, there is much to be gained by having several months of peace.' The king of Saxony expressed himself to the same effect, pointing out instances where diplomacy had averted an apparently inevitable conflict. Archduke Albert also dilated upon the enormous responsibility of forcing a war, in view of the murderous perfection of modern weapons.' The correspondent says Emperor William's remarks made a deep impression on the high rank German and Russian officers present.

Prince Josaku Katsumata is a young Japanese student of Cornell university. He is of medium height and very intellectual, though not considered handsome. Miss Dunn is a niece of G. W. Dunn, a member of the republican state committee and a well-known politician, at present holding the position of postmaster at Binghamton. The prince, who has been at the university preparing himself as a civil engineer, had been betrothed to a Japanese girl, the bride to the land of flowers. The prince, who is at present in this city, is an excellent conversationalist on all subjects, speaking English perfectly. He is much attached to his handsome American fiancée, who is the recipient of numerous congratulations. The prince's betrothal to Miss Dunn is a family affair for years in direct favor with the Mikado.
