

DETECTING THE ISSUE.

Voters Engaged in the Duty of Selecting Men for Office.

FIRST TRIAL OF THE AUSTRALIAN LAW.

Delays Occasioned by Ignorance and Incompetence of Some Officials.

ATTEMPTS TO OBSTRUCT THE ELECTION.

Democrats Are Disheartened but Lose None of Their Defiant Boldness.

OPPOSED TO REPUBLICAN CHALLENGERS.

Tried to Vote Colored Graders—Experience of Women at the Polls—Scenes and Incidents at the Booths.

Yesterday the voters of Omaha had their first experience with the Australian ballot and the Australian election law, this being the first election held since the new law went into effect.

There is a great difference of opinion as to whether or not the new plan is a success. Some of the voters declare that it is just the thing, while others pronounce it an intolerable nuisance.

The day opened cool and chilly and not once did the sun show its face through the heavy clouds that overcast the sky from early morning. This in no wise dampened the ardor of the politicians and ward workers. They were on hand early, eager for the fray, but it was not long until the realization that their occupation was gone and that political leg man was a thing that had been relegated to the rear.

Delay in Opening the Polls.

The polls in the eighty-eight districts should have opened promptly at 8 o'clock, but there was an inexcusable delay upon the part of some of the officials in the manipulation of the election machinery.

The special policemen appointed by Mayor Chamberlain to guard the polls were detailed and instructed to be at the offices of the city and county clerk at an early hour to take to the respective precincts the books, ballots and boxes, but not until after 7 o'clock did a guardian of the peace appear at either place. This was the cause for a serious delay, and in many instances the outlets were not turned over to the judges and clerks until after 9 o'clock.

Slow Work at First.

After the machinery was once set in motion the voting continued without interruption, but the work for a time was slow and laborious.

The judges in nearly every precinct kept the voters waiting while they signed up the tickets and a great deal of time was lost in hunting through the registration lists for the names of the voters after they had announced themselves.

The voters were slow as well as the judges and clerks and as a rule it took the average voter from ten to fifteen minutes to go through the three tickets.

Keep the Voters Waiting.

In most of the precincts the voters heeded The Bee's warning, that fraud might be attempted upon the part of some of the parties connected with the canvassing boards. They took some balls with them to the polls, and then made exact copies of the ballots as voted.

Shortly after the opening of the polls the democrats grew bold and resorted to the most disreputable tricks to steal the election. They realized that it was a losing fight and were willing to resort to anything to bring their candidates to the front.

They were loud in denouncing the republicans and openly invited the masses of the foreign voters who had traded Osthoff for other candidates. Osthoff heard the noise just before he went out to put in a couple of hours tracing the register on his behalf, after which he spent the greater portion of the day closed with the clerks.

Admitted Osthoff's Defeat.

In the Seventh ward the democrats themselves circulated the report that Osthoff was beaten, and as soon as the word was conveyed the party went into the streets and their strength in an effort to defeat J. W. Eller for county judge. They gave their reasons and said they would turn the voters and the clerks to the streets, and if they could do that they would want him and contest the balance of the election. They were very noisy and their proceedings before King and there win what they had lost on the day of election.

"Closed Election Day."

Around the city offices presided over by democrats, everything was as quiet as the grave, and this being the case of the windows: "Closed Election Day."

The chiefs pulled down the curtains, in their own offices, and when they went out to work, after which they went out to log for Osthoff, and the balance of the democratic ticket.

It was an uphill fight, and many of them deserted the old ship long before the dinner horn sounded.

Chairman Birkhauer of the Board of Public Works joined forces with Plumbing Inspector Dennis and Ed Norway to oppose the democrats. At noon they had a mutual admiration meeting and voted the democracy a dead duck in the Seventh ward.

President Lowry of the city council made a desperate attempt to pocket his ward, but even with the aid of his judges and clerks the ward came up a democracy.

The Fifth (Osthoff's) ward was a rule road for a democracy majority that reached up into the hundreds, but it is not that way this year and money that is put up by the republicans that it will break even and refused and fined the voters.

Trouble at Various Polls.

In the Fifth district of the Seventh ward the special policeman appointed by Tom Lowry deserted his post shortly after the polls opened and left everything in the hands of the democratic mob. The regular officer on the boat refused to restore order, and Chief Seavey was compelled to call two officers from the regular force to bring about order.

The First precinct of the First ward was wholly in the hands of the democrats who captured the polls and refused to allow the republican challenger admission. A visit by a republican central committee and a threat that the whole outfit would be arrested brought the gentlemen to time. Out in the Eighth district of the Fifth ward, when the democratic tickets were being distributed, the voters asked that to be removed. The police paid no attention to the demands and all day long the fellow was allowed to annoy the voters.

In the Fourth district of the Eighth ward, the republican challenger was denied admittance, and was forced to remain outside the door.

but Chairman Smith of the city central committee was notified and he threatened the judges with arrest unless they ceased their opposition to the presence of the challenger. That he had destroyed the effort.

It was reported at headquarters that a man named Tivy who was acting as a judge in the Fourth district of the Eighth ward was a resident of the district.

In the Third precinct of the Ninth ward one of the judges started in by unfolding and examining every ballot voted, but was finally persuaded that he was overstepping his prerogative.

The Second district of the Third ward a judge, Timothy Dolan, was seen talking and influencing Ed Rice, a voter, and charges were made and he was challenged, but both were in their votes. Dolan was afterward seen repeating the operation, and the case was reported to the city central committee.

The first ballot was not cast until after 10 o'clock. The boxes belonging to the Eighth district of the Second ward were delivered there by mistake, and the mistake that ensued over changing them lasted half the forenoon, and until several prominent citizens went down and secured the correct boxes.

The first woman who cast a ballot voted in the Second district of the Seventh ward. Owing to a misunderstanding of the election law which allows a voter ten minutes in which to prepare his ballot, an attempt was made in some of the wards to limit the time to five minutes, but this was soon made known to headquarters, and challengers were instructed to see that no one was disfranchised in any such manner.

At Headquarters.

The political headquarters did not draw the crowds that they did yesterday. At the democratic rooms a few of the true and tried ones stood around, conversing principally upon the condition of the weather. When asked about the political outlook they reply that "it looks pretty fair," and "we do not admit that we are defeated."

The republican headquarters everything is hazy and bustle, few men being sent to carry their carriages and boys being sent to carry their umbrellas. The republican headquarters are very busy.

D. H. Mercer of the county and Dick Smith of the city central committee state that it is only a question of majority.

At noon it was discovered that the ballot boxes had not been taken to the polls and a requisition was made upon the city clerk O'Malley and City Clerk Groves for the old boxes that were used last year. Nearly one hundred of the boxes were sent out to the various precincts.

Ward Workers' Occupation Gone.

Perhaps the most noticeable feature of the practical illustration of the operation of the Australian ballot law was the inactivity in some places and the total absence in others of the ward leaders who had heretofore been such prominent figures at the polls.

The idea was very prevalent and was generally remarked that the passage of the law would result in the want of these ward leaders and political canvassers, as heretofore and forever their occupation is gone. There was no opportunity for the employment of their old methods of intimidation, and the few of them who showed up in their accustomed places looked and felt sadly out of place as they thought of the good old days when they had unlimited license to bulldoze and bribe their way to the polls.

There were none of the rolls of ones and twos or pocket full of silver cartridges to be slipped into the itching palms of the many who thought their vote was worth something. The voters were slow and laborious, and the caper perpetrated up and down the line to see that no slight of hand work was done in changing the tickets after his cheaply purchased tickets was headed for the polls. The officious and well paid bidder was not called upon to walk around the corner and dictate or scribble on a ticket, but the entire substitution of one for another, it was all new, and the change was a most novel and interesting sight.

Business Man in the City.

Probably the busiest man in the city was Chairman Dick Smith of the republican city central committee, under whose able management the election machinery was effected all over the city in preparing for the work of election day.

The work of preparation was not all, however, for the program to be carried out, and to keep track of what is going on in eighty-eight precincts is no small task, yet Mr. Smith got up at 5 o'clock, and he, too, heard directly from all the others and found time to listen to all complaints and provide means for relief. He did not allow the interest to flag, but kept his lieutenants on the move. To his efforts were largely due the fact that a large percentage of the business vote, and a little difficulty experienced by voters in preparing to deposit their ballots.

Arrested a Challenger.

At 11 o'clock the foreman of the Donohoe gang of graders was taken to the police station and furnished bail for seven of the gang who were arrested Monday for stealing. He took them to the First precinct of the Seventh ward and had them vote. He previously announced that these were seven straight democratic voters that the republicans had tried to steal by having them vote.

Mr. C. H. Thomas promptly challenged the votes of the graders and protested that they should not be counted.

He was arrested at the instigation of the democrats and taken to the police station.

At the Seventh precinct of the Fifth ward Mr. J. Maxwell of the republican challenger at the Seventh precinct of the Fifth ward came to the republican headquarters at 2 o'clock and said the democrats had run him down and he would not vote.

He said that he had been told by the democrats that they could not read and the judges were fixing the tickets for them. He protested against the sale of the business that looked crooked and the judges told him to shut his mouth and get out of there. He got so mad that he pulled a pistol and shot against him so he left the polls.

Refused to Let Women Vote.

At the Seventh precinct of the Seventh ward several women went to the polls to vote but the judges refused to admit them to the booth and refused to furnish them with ballots. Miss Hanna Roberts visited the republican headquarters and made complaint about the matter. She stated that she might get a mandamus and compel the judges to receive her ballot.

In some precincts the votes of the women were accepted on such local matters without protest.

In the First district of the Fifth ward the first ballot was cast by a woman, who carried a baby in her arms. She was allowed to vote, and her example was followed by a number of other women. In the Second district of the Fifth the judges were not so fatherly and refused the right of franchise to women under any and all circumstances.

They Dread Cold Weather.

Persons subject to muscular rheumatism have good reason for dreading the cold weather of the winter months. They will find much relief, however, if not a permanent cure by applying Chamberlain's Pain Balm. It promptly relieves the pain and in many cases has effected permanent cures. For sale by druggists.

THE HOPKINS TALKS.

He Says His Chances for Breaking His Mother's Will Are Good.

Chicago, Ill., Nov. 3.—Timothy Hopkins, the young California wild cat, arrived here today, ocure to San Francisco.

"I am not in the least discouraged," he said, when questioned upon the result of the first hearing of his contest. "If there was any advantage gained from the hearing it was in our favor. Our side was not heard at all, yet we have had the benefit of hearing much of the evidence from the other side. The question is as to whether the indications were not for a contest lasting years, and whether if such should prove that, he would continue to fight. Mr. Hopkins begged leave not to answer.

Unique Scheme for Supplying Chicago's Depleted Treasury with Available Funds—Another Plan for Filling the Vaults.

Chicago Bureau of the B. & O. Chicago, Ill., Nov. 3.

People who expect to visit the world's fair at night had better lay in a supply of blue goggles. Chief Electrician Sargent has partially completed plans for the interior illumination of the buildings by electricity and has already provided for over 19,000 lamps, with a capacity of 10,000 candle power. This enormous quantity of light does not include any of the exterior illuminations, nor does it include all the interior lighting.

The committee on grounds and buildings has knocked out the casino, which it had been intended should be situated on the shore, and has adopted an entirely new plan submitted by Designer in Chief Alton Wright. The committee has decided to build two additional buildings near the shore.

FUNDS FOR THE MUNICIPAL POCKETBOOK.

An important measure for the relief of the city's depleted funds was passed by the council last night in the shape of an ordinance empowering the mayor and comptroller to issue bonds in the amount of $1,000,000 upon the surplusage of the city fund. Now the commissioner of public works has another plan for swelling the municipal treasury.

The lines in interest have decided to abolish labor rates between Chicago and southern points, taking effect November 15.

SHOT FOR A DEER.

Sad Mistake Which Caused the Loss of a Human Life.

Frederick Springs, Colo., Nov. 3.—On last Saturday G. W. Price, son of Dr. Price of Chicago, and member of the firm of the Price Baking Powder company, A. C. Fischer of the noted Extract company of Chicago and J. E. Cobb of the Denver Omaha and Chicago company, with W. H. Hubbard of Spring Valley near Greenwood Springs, as guide, outfitted here and started for a two week's hunt on the Big Muddy.

Last night they camped in Jerome Park, at the head of Thompson creek, in Pitkin county, in a place called Duin's dugout. Hubbard of Spring Valley, who is a sportsman, and called out, "Who's there?" and called to the dog, but as the dog seemed frightened and ran away, Hubbard exclaimed, "Boys, I believe it's a deer; give me a gun quick!" and Cobb hastily handed him a rifle. Hubbard fired, and without further thought Hubbard fired two shots, one of which passed through the top of Price's head into his body, and causing his death in a few minutes.

The party returned immediately with the body to Jerome, where an inquest was conducted and all cause for the death was traced to the shot fired by Hubbard. Coroner L. G. Clark immediately summoned a jury and a verdict of accidental shooting was rendered.

Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 3.—Judge Ross of the state court today granted the motion of the defendants to instruct the jury to return a verdict of not guilty in the case of the United States against George A. Bart and Peccardo Trumbull, who have been on trial, charged with fitting out the Chilean steamer Itata with arms to cruise against the government of Chile.

The real cause of the trouble is that the indictment is defective, being framed under the neutrality laws, in not stating that a state of war existed between the United States and the belligerents and had been recognized as such. Second, the charges would not hold because the statute contemplated that war, also that a vessel coming to the United States to get arms and carrying them peaceably away was not fitting out any expedition that would be used in the prosecution of the war.

San Francisco, Cal., Nov. 3.—The strike of the union moulders which began in this city November 1st, ended today. The union voluntarily discontinued the strike off. The cause of the strike was the joint action of the fourteen large foundries in refusing to recognize the rules of the union, which they claimed worked hardships to their industry.
