Preliminary Hearing of Nick Fox Postponed Until Next Week.

HOW TO CLEAN A VERY DIRTY STREET.

Plan Proposed to Remove the Top Dressing from Twenty-fourth-Secret Society Matters-Magic City Notes.

The preliminary trial of Nick Fox, the murderer, will not be held this morning, as previously arranged, but has been postponed until next Tuesday. The reason given for this postpone want the fact that Fox has not recovered sufficiently from his loss of

The news of his wife's death has been kept corefully from him for fear that on learning it he might tear open the stitches in throat and allow himself to pleed to death, thereby cheating the gallows out of a Needs Cleaning.

"If any street in the city needs attention it is Twenty-fourth street, now the main thoroughfare in the city," says Mr. Persons, "It is a disgrace to the city to allow the mud and filth to accumulate on the pavement the way It is now. But little real benefit is received from the pavement the way things are now. At a very slight expense the city could have this fifth shoved into the gutter with a diag-onal scraper. A couple of men with a span of horses could run the fifth into the gutter from A to N street in half a day. The rains would do the rest. An occasional trip of would not be rest. An occasional trip of this kind would keep the street in fair condition at a trifling cost and would not only add to the cleanliness of the city, but would facilitate matters in the commercial line and also leave a good impression on the stranger who comes into our city either by carriage or motor. Another thing that this great street needs is the lowering of the sidewalks to a line even with the top of the carbstones. If this is not done soon somebody will be suing the city for damages for a broken arm or leg."

Yesterday the girls working in the Adams boarding house at Twenty-seventh and N, discovered the fact that somebody had been through their rooms and taken all the money and lewelry belonging to them. They believed that a fellow giving the name of B. F. Bowman had been in that part of the house and consequently suspicion was fastened on him. A man was therefore sent to Bowman's room, where he was found asleep. The police say that an examination of his pockets disclosed the missing articles. Accordingly Bowman was arrested on the charge of theft and was taken to the lock-up. Before his arraignment all the stolen ar-ticles were returned and the prosecution withdrawn. Judge King therefore dismissed

Death of a rs. Keenan The numerous friends of Mrs. Alice Keenan, wife of Mr. A. M. Keenan, the merchant, will be shocked to learn of her death yesterday afternoon. She had been married just nine months to a day and the union of the two was regarded as an unusually auspicious one. Three or four weeks are Mrs. Keenan fell through a defective side walk after night and received injuries tha resulted in her death. Mrs. Keenan was 25 years of age and a lady of such estimable qualities that all her acquaintances were warm friends.

Grand Army Installation. On the evening of January 4 will occur a public installation of the newly elected officers of the Robert R. Livingstone post, No. 282, Grand Army of the Republic, in conjunction with the local Sons of Veterans camp and Woman's Relief Corps. Captain Hart, adjutant of the post, will act as master of ceremonies. A large turnout is expected, and everything indicates that the event will be a memorable one.

ANNOUNCEMENTS.

Mr. Roland Reed and his excellent company will open their New Year's engagement at Boyd's new theater this evening in Sidney Rosenfeld's comedy, "The Club Friend," which was written specially for Mr. Reed last season. The eastern press say that artistically speaking this play is the best that Mr. Reed has yet presented to the pubic, and that his company interpret it admirably. "The Club Friend" will be played this evening and on Saturday afternoon and evening. On New Year's afternoon and evening and Sunday evening Mr. Reed will uppear as Captain Abner Tarbox in "Lend Me Your Wife." His char-cterization of the retired old mariner is as breezy and artistic as was Florence's "Captain Cuttle," and they are not at all dis-similar. Mr. Reed has always been a great favorite with Omaha audiences, and the advance sale of seats which opened yesterday morning indicates that he still retains

FOR THE SOUTH SIDE PARK.

Commissioners and Citizens Discuss Propositions for Pleasure Grounds.

GURING ON THE SYNDICATE TRACE.

Much Opposition to its Purchase What the Partisans Said-Mayor Cushing Has Some Ideas

The Board of Park Commissioners held a meeting yesterday afternoon to consider routine business and some new propositions for park bonds. the vicinity of Ninth and Sackett streets for $57,100. This was a new proposition and the land offered came as far west as Ninth street. Thomas Murray offered four acres lying between Ninth and Teath streets, and consecting the Clark lands with Tenth street for $1,500 per acre.

The owners of Syndicate park also submitted a proposition to sell fifty acres, in-cluding the springs and lakes in the park at $1,000 per acre.

Mr. Her and Mr. William Paxton, Mr. B.
F. Smith and Mr. Herman Kountze were present to explain the proposition to the board. The gentlemen explained the lay of the land included in the fifty-acre tract. It gave an entrance on Twentieth street and included a good deal of high land. The tract offered extends to Twenty-second street on the west. The north end of the tract is about two and a half miles south of Farnam street.

Discussing the Proposition. During the session of the board there were several animated addresses made for and against the idea of purchasing Syndicate park. Mr. Joseph Barker argued very pointedly against the proposition. He said that the land was too rough for park purses and that the board should not dream of such a purchase,

Colonel Cornish also grew very carnest in condemning the land in Syndicate park as being unfit for a park. He said there was no tract of land within a radius of five miles that was so perfectly worthless, in his esti-mation, as that piece of land. It was too rough for manufacturing or for residences, and indeed he couldn't see what the land

Dr. Mitter reminded Colonel Cornish that the park commission was not looking for land to locate factories on; it wanted land for park purposes. Mr. Her took the matter very placidly and answered most of the adverse arguments in Omaha Land company ought to donate Syn-dicate park to the public.

Mr. Clark, who offered to sell land cast of Tenth street for a park, said he thought the South Omaha Land company should donate the Syndicate park lands. It would enhance the value of their lots adjoining to give this land to the city and have it improved.

Mr. Ben Smith completely turned the ta-bles on Mr. Clark by asking him why he didn't donate his land and profit by the rise in the value of adjacent property. Mr. Clark said he has proposed to Mr. Thomas Murray some years ago to join in the donation of a good sized park, but Mr. Murray had re-fused. Mr. Clark said the proposition was It was the opinion of nearly everybody present that it would remain open a long

HERE'S A PARK PLAN.

When a reporter of THE BEE entered the executive office yesterday morning he found the head of the cley government bent over a table and admiringly contemplating a potpourri of blue, green, black and brown on a white back ground. "Come 'round here'n Pil show you something." he exclaimed gleefully and the reporter obeyed.

"Now I want to know who can beat that,"

"Very pretty," murmured the visitor. "What is it?" "That is a park, and we must have it or omething like it before we can beat Minneapolis, It's an idea of mine, and I had a draughtsman make this sketch for me. There you see a lake nearly a mile long and a mile wide, and embracing a little over 600 acres. The water is from ten to twenty feet deep, and as clear as crystal. Two lines of rail-road go right by it, and it is less than five miles from this spot. Where is it! Right out here by Seymour park. I don't suppose they'll ever do anything about it, but accord to my idea its the most feasible in fact the only satisfactory way there is of getting a nice body of water for a lake, that has yet been devised. I am going to touch on the matter in my annual message."

The mayor became quite enthusiastic over his plan, and went on to explain the details. The green spots were little islands, twenty-four in number, all in a group on the west side of the take. They ranged in size from a small back yard to two or three acres, and were designed with especial reference to private picnic parties. Rustic bridges will connect them with each other (perhaps), and on the largest one, which in the middle, on next the lake is to big pavilion or hotel, with a wharf and pier. leading out into the water and crooking around to afford a shelter to the steamers launches and small fry craft when the surface is, unduly ruffled. Around the lake is a beautiful drive (that is it's beautiful if it's anything) four miles long, and shaded on either side by great trees. This is to be connected with the city's system of boulevards.

"You see," said the mayor, "we cut off th Little Pappio up here at the upper end of the lake and turn it off to the west to the Big Pappio, and then feed the lake by artesian wells, giving the very purest water.
"The street car line would be extended there and a five cent fare would enable everybody to reach it. The land can be bought now for about $150 an acre, and the total cost wouldn't be anything to what such a park would be worth. There one could find ice yachting in winter, and a beautiful drive with a breeze from the lake in the summer tractive at this time of year, but-The sentence wasn't finished, for the speaker lost himself in the rapture of his imagination as he again bent over the table and resumed his study of the scene before him.
