ITALY AND THE VATICAN.

Efforts of Austria to Bring About Better

ROME, Jan. 26.-It is learned from vatican sources that a few days ago Cardinal Serafino Vannutelli had a long and grave interview with the pope on the subject of a reconciliation between the boly see and Italy. The interview was prompted by the emperor of Austria, who is personally interested in the matter. The recent speech of Count Kalnoky was the starting point of diplomatic action to secure this desired reconciliation. Austria, it is understood, asks the pope to agree to the participation of Catholics in the Italian parliamentary elections and a modification of the present favorable attitude of the holy see toward France.

change her inimical attitude toward the vatican to one of more friendly character and to put an end to the religious persecution of the Catholics. Austria has a triple end in view: To save the triple alliance from discredit in the Catholic world, to prevent the vatican from going over to the side of France and to arrest the radical movement in Italy, which might in time threaten the position of the monarchy. The Italian court and government have signified their approval of rapprochement on the lines laid down. King Humbert and the Italian ministers, however, insist that the Catholics should first open the way to a satisfactory arrange-

Story of a Series of Awful Crimes Related by the Perpetrator,

VIENNA, Jan. 26.-The sensational trial of Frank Schneider and his wife, Rosalie Schneider, was continued today and many new and startling facts in connection with the revolting crimes alleged to have been committed by the couple were brought out during the proceedings.

The prisoners are charged with having murdered and robbed eight servant girls, and the hideonesses of the whole affair is intensified by the additional charge made against Schueider of having first outraged his victims before putting an end to their During the course of the trial vesterday was guilty of the charge of violating the girls, and also admitted that he had killed one of the unfortunate servants. He endeavored to throw the guitt of the other murders on his wife, whom he accused of decoying the girls to their fate on the protonse of giving them employment in her residence.

These charges made by the husband against his wife were the cause of an exciting scene by the guilty pair in the court room, both indulging in a violent exchange of

The production of these evi-dences of a terrible crime caused a shudder to run through the spectators and had a visible effect upon Schneider. The sight of the gruesome objects seemed to unnerve him. and he finally broke down, and the prosecu-tion succeeded in getting him to confess that he was guilty of murdering Rosalie Klein-rath and the other unfortunates. Amid the most intense excitement the prisoner described in allits horrible details his method of strangling the poor girls who were lured to their death in his house. He said he had not employed chloroform in any in-stance. His victims were always conscious when he attacked them, and he was assisted in his horrible work by his wife. His wife, he declared, used to hold the hands of the struggling girls while he grasped thom by the neck and choked their lives out. At this point Mrs. Schneider interrupted her husband by excitedly shouting: "I am your next victim; I never took part in the Medical evidence was produced to show the great strength possessed by Schneider. This testimony was brought out for the parpose of showing that Schneider was so strong that he did not need the aid of his wife to grip the throats of his victims and choke them to death.

Schneider here volunteered to tell how the murders were committed, and dramatically went through the blood-curdling performance. He showed how he used to selze the struggling victims by the breast with his left hand and with his powerful right hand clutch them by the throat and thus strangle the poor creatures.

In concluding his confession Schneider said that he had not killed the first woman said that he had not killed the first woman he had outraged and robbed because he had not at that time had the practice in the method of strangling which he afterwards acquired. ITALIAN LABORERS IN A PERILOUS FIX lowed to Sea on Garbage Scows the Tugboat Becomes Disabled, and the Men and Bonts Are Driven Out to Sea.

New York, Jan. 26 .- The tow boat Webster, and two scows belonging to the department of street cleaning, are drifting out to sea. The steamboat is beyond the control of her skipper and crew. She has not been seen since 9:20 o'clock this morning, when she was signted by the Rockaway life saving station. At that time tshe was signaling for assistance.

This much was known late this afternoon, but since then the lookouts on the Long Island coast report that while the Webster was struggling in the teeth of a fifty mile gale her hawser broke and became tangled in and about her propeller. Thus she was at the mercy of a terrific sea and, bobbing helplessly, she began drifting out to sea. The greater terror, however, was about the garbage scows, which had been towed out into the scows, which had been towed out into the ocean, as is the custom, to be dumped of their refuse. On these scows, it is said, there were at least sixty Italians, whose help is required in dumping the scows. These help-less creatures were seen by the outlooks to be moving about frantically, crazed no doubt with fear in their terrible situation.

Went in Search of Assistance. The tug boat H. S. Nichols, with two other scows, which had been discharged of garbage, anchored her tow and then started to the assistance of the Webster. The captain of the Nichols concluded, however, that with his own aachored scows in extreme danger and the chances of reaching the Webster against him he would do better to come up to the city at once to report and secure help. So the Nichols turned her nose cityward and steamed home in the breast of the gale. She would have done better had she clung to her own scows on which, as on the already drifting out seaward scows with the Webster, there were about sixty human souls, most all Italians.

Scarcely was the Nichols out of sight when her tow of scows were besten from when her tow of scows were beaten from their anchorage by the tumult of furious seas, and with their human freight were blown rapidly out to sea by the almost hur-ricane which was sweeping off the land. The first news of the grave bappenings off the Long Island coast came up from the Reckaway outlooks to Commissioner Brennan of the street cleaning department. A dispatch stated that two steamboats, each with several scows in tow, had been sighted off Rockaway beach in the morning. Later, a second dispatch said that one of the steamboats with its tow had disappeared off shore while the other had anchored her scows under the beach and sailed for this city. Steamers Sent to the Rescue.

Late this afternoon the statements con-Late this afternoon the statements contained in the dispatches were confirmed by the arrival at this city of the department's steamboat. Nichols, which reported that it and the Webster had been blown out to Rockawav during this morning's gale and that the Webster and its tows had afterwards drifted out to sea and dispansared. The sixty Italian laborared disappeared. The sixty Italian laborers em-ployed upon the scows of the department, the captain said, had been left on the two the captain said, had been left on the two scows which the Nichols had left atanchor in Gravesend bay. These men were in open scows in a high sea and a gale of wind. It was probable that any moment they might be blown or washed off the scows and drowned. The captain of the Nichols said that he had been unable to rescue the Italians because the waves and wind were so high that it was unpossible for him were so high that it was impossible for him to approach the scows without greatly endangering his own boat and them. The cap-tain did not know that already his tow had dragged its anchors and was then plunging and drifting out to son.

Commissioner Brennan was at first disposed to send the Nichols back for the Italians. He decided, however, to send the out to search for the Webster, as at that time she was apt to be more in need of asdistance than the Italians on the scows in Gravesend bay. This was done. The Nichols and Desoris are out searching for the Web-It is not known how many Italian laborers are on the scows towed by the Webster, but it is thought that there must be at least as many as are on the scows in Gravesend bay, namely: sixty, besides the captain and crew of the Webster. These will, with the men on the Webster and those on the scows, aggregate 125 men who, at last reports, were at the mercy of the gale and beavy seas. It s thought that these men are on the open

Bee Bureau of Claims

Equal with the interest of those having claim against the government is that of INVENTORS, who often lose the benefit of valuable inventions because of the incompetency or inattention of the attorneys employed to obtain their patents. Too mach are cannot be exercised in employing competent and reliable solicitors to procure patents, for the value of a patent depend; greatly, if notenticely, upon the care and skill of the attorney.

With the view of protecting inventors from worth less or careless attorneys, and of seeing that inventions are well protected by valid patents. Triff 8.3d BUREAU has retained counsel expert in patent practice; and is therefore prepared to suits, etc., etc. If you have an invention on hand send THE BEB BURKAU a sketch or photograph thereof, together with a brief description of the important reatures, and you will be once advised as to the best course to pursue. Models are not necessary unless the inven-tion is of a complicated nature. If others are in-fringing on your right, or if you are charged with infringement by others, submit the matter to THE BURKAU for a reliable OPINION before acting on the matter.

ment by participation at the polls. Other-wise nothing can be done. The interview with the pope lasted an hour and a half. The pope promised to consider the arrangement proposed. Doubtless he will wait with a view to discovering the reason of these overtures of the Austrian court. It is already known that Austria, supported by Germany, will endeavor to bring about the election of Cardinal Vannutelli as Leo XIII's successor to the pontifical throne, while Mgr. Galimberti would be his secre-tary of state. It is believed in vatican circles that the pope, while accepting a promise and concessions, will not yield to the de-mands of Austria and Italy, but will continue to maintain his attitude of reserve, awaiting
