

THEY JUST MISSED DEATH

Six Laborers in an Excavation When a Building Topped Over.

THIS WALL WOULD NOT STAND ON AIR

Earth Had Been Dug From Beneath It and No Braces Were Put In—Undertaker Gring's Narrow Escape From the Building.

Six laborers, who were at work for W. E. Sweeney near Seventeenth and Farnam streets, are still trying to figure out how near they came to being killed about 10 o'clock yesterday morning.

As is well known, the excavation for D. C. Patterson's new three-story business block is just about completed, and work on the foundation is to begin at once.

Mr. Gring was in his office at the time and heard the cracking of the timbers as the wall began to give way. He started for the door, but before he could reach it the wall went down with a deafening crash and the roof and ceiling were precipitated into the room.

The falling mass struck Mr. Gring and knocked him through the plate glass window of the front wall and out upon the street. His right leg was badly bruised from the knee to the ankle, but otherwise he escaped unhurt.

It seems that the men had dug under the wall in several places, intending to put bracing under it, but that when they were working at another place a short distance in the rear, the wall collapsed.

The undertaking men were totally wrecked, and the stock is more or less damaged, but to what extent could not be ascertained yesterday as it was dangerous to attempt to enter the wrecked building until the threatening walls had been torn down.

Mr. Sweeney kept his men at work all day removing the debris and pulling down the threatening partitions of the building.

Building Inspector Tilly spent most of the day superintending the work of clearing the debris and to make sure of the stability of the front walls of the low brick structure.

IT'S AN EDUCATIONAL WORK

Efforts of the Alliance to Enlighten the Tillers of the Soil.

WHAT FARMER POWERS HAS TO SAY

Instruction on Economical Questions and Information Concerning Laws of Life Given the Grangers—No Fusion Protable—Not a Political Party.

Hon. J. H. Powers of Cornell, candidate for governor of Nebraska on the independent ticket at the election of 1890 and an active worker and ex-president of the National Farmers alliance, was seen yesterday at the Jennings hotel by a Bee man.

Mr. Powers is a prominent Presbyterian church and attended services in the morning at Dr. Harsha's church.

"Our meeting in Chicago last week was devoted strictly to business," said Mr. Powers when asked about the deliberations of the National Farmers alliance.

"The general feeling was that of encouragement among the representatives of the alliance who attended the meeting. The outlook, I believe, is favorable for prosperity and steady growth of the alliance.

We now have eight states thoroughly organized and five more states partially organized. The alliance is now a national organization.

Consolidation Not Probable. "Oh no, that is a matter that has been spoken of from time to time, but of course it is not a matter that people seem to think could or should be done, but are not easily accomplished.

Do you think these farmers' organizations are having the desired effect upon the legislation of the country?

"Now, that is a question which is naturally debatable, but I am convinced, however, that the farmers' movement has done a great deal to stimulate and shape public sentiment on political questions.

Will the farmers alliance, all over the country, support the people's independent party candidate for president?

"There never was any apprehension among sensible men as to the result of that difficulty. There was no reasonable excuse for war. The disparity was too great between the two countries to think of there being a war between them."

What will be the leading issues of the approaching national campaign in the estimation of the leading agriculturists?

"I can speak for myself, but not for others. I think the most important issues so far as the farmer's interests will be concerned, and I might say the country, will be the money question, transportation and the ownership of land."

Are all the alliance leaders favorable to the free coinage of silver?

"There is a difference of opinion to some extent upon free silver coinage. The alliance is not deeply interested in the question of the money question as some people profess to believe.

PHILADELPHIA RECORD.

Her sobbing shook the court room and her tears of no mean size covered in a great stream down her cheeks and to the floor.

A LEAP YEAR IDYL.

This is the way the girls do it in Detroit, according to the Free Press: "Be mine," she cried dramatically, as she sank on one knee before him.

"I have long loved you, and now I can rest no longer—I must know my fate. Sweet creature, say the word that will make me the happiest of women."

"I don't want to be married," he answered. "Marrying I'm too young and couldn't take care of a wife. Take some one else's name, let go of me. I don't want to be kissed."

"Oh, you great big ninny," she said, banging the furniture. "I was only rehearsing for a leap year party. I wouldn't have you if you were worth your weight in gold," and she bounced off in a huff.

IN THE TUNNEL. The chronicler of the Chicago Tribune avers: The train on the Fitchburg railway had just entered the long tunnel when the freight train from New England broke through the tunnel in the blushing glare of its fair bride:

"Eurydice, if I choose, peradventure, to kiss thee I'd like to know Hoosac going to prevent me?" "Ophelia," she replied, gently, "thou shouldst not trifle thus with the tunnel vorities."

Charged With Criminal Intimacy. Mr. and Mrs. James Hollister have been incarcerated for two nights at the South Omaha police station on the charge of criminal intimacy. The complaining witness is J. S. Haistead, an employe of Mr. Hollister's, and he alleges, as near as can be learned, the lady is not Mrs. Hollister, but Mrs. somebody else, and that her husband is living somewhere in Iowa ignorant of the whereabouts of his runaway wife; that she and Hollister had fallen in love with each other and contrary to the laws and moral customs of the land decided to elope and enjoy a quiet intimacy; that they first fled to Salt Lake and later came to Omaha. He declares that they have no papers to prove any marriage contract.

AN ECONOMIC LANDLADY. Boston News: Mr. Hoste (in a terrified whisper)—Nattie Doris, she's forthright through luncheon for all these people. How on earth am I to do? Mrs. Hoste—I'll get rid of some of them, dear.

Mr. Hoste (ten minutes later)—You're a rump, Mar! But how did you manage to get so many to go? Mrs. Hoste—I just whispered to them that you had consented to sing "Rocked in the Cradle of the Deep."

A CONSIDERATE PASSENGER. Brooklyn Life: Worried Mother (in railroad train)—I hope my baby's crying didn't disturb you. Old Bachelor (genially)—Don't worry, madam. Don't worry about me. I'm afraid, though, the noise is a sort of a wet blanket on those young people yonder.

NOT UP TO THE REQUIREMENTS. Puck: City Editor (sternly)—What do you mean by heading this item, "A Slight Mishap on the Twenty-third Street Line?" Assistant—Why, the man wasn't hurt; the car merely ran over his wooden leg.

INDIANAPOLIS JOURNAL: "You say this man had been drinking," said his honor. "Drinking?" "Yes, sir," answered Officer McGobbe. "You suppose? Don't you know whiskey? Aren't you a judge?" "No, y'r honor. Only a policeman."

AFFAIRS AT SOUTH OMAHA

Efforts Will be Made to Acquit Fox of Wife Murder.

HE IS SAID TO INHERIT INSANITY

One Thousand Dollars Has Been Contributed to Defend Him and His Case Will Have the Attention of Experienced Lawyers.

It is now learned positively that the line of defense for Nick Fox, the wife murderer, will be insanity. His attorneys found at the preliminary examination that the proof of his guilt was overwhelming and that the only way that he could save his life would be to plead insanity.

The Indian attorney who lives the Valparaiso, the home of the Fox family, has been looking up the records of the family for two generations back, and has secured evidence which it is believed will be sufficient to acquit the murderer. It has been learned that there are decided symptoms of insanity in the family, and that no less than three members of it have lost their reason. Each case was a violent one.

Fox's grandfather was insane for years and died in a mad hospital. A son of his, an uncle to Nick went violently insane when he was about 35 years of age, and while attempts were made to put him in a place of safety he killed himself. Another relative, a female, suffered also with dementia and was seized with a murderous mania. She spent several years in an asylum and finally died there.

Nick's father is firmly of the opinion that the son was suffering with insanity when the wife murder was committed. The man has enlisted the sympathies of friends and a purse of $1,000 has been raised to help acquit Fox. About half of this will go to the lawyer. The remainder will be used to defray the expenses of witnesses from Valparaiso to Omaha to swear to the insanity of relatives of the accused.

Mr. and Mrs. James Hollister have been incarcerated for two nights at the South Omaha police station on the charge of criminal intimacy. The complaining witness is J. S. Haistead, an employe of Mr. Hollister's, and he alleges, as near as can be learned, the lady is not Mrs. Hollister, but Mrs. somebody else, and that her husband is living somewhere in Iowa ignorant of the whereabouts of his runaway wife; that she and Hollister had fallen in love with each other and contrary to the laws and moral customs of the land decided to elope and enjoy a quiet intimacy; that they first fled to Salt Lake and later came to Omaha. He declares that they have no papers to prove any marriage contract.

Mr. and Mrs. Hollister indignantly deny that there is any truth in these allegations. Mr. Hollister, who runs the feed barn formerly owned by Mr. Blum, has been a resident of South Omaha three months. He says that two years ago he was married to the lady in question in Chicago; that her maiden name was Nattie Doris. Unfortunately in moving the marriage certificate became lost and consequently can not be produced in evidence, but an order for a new one was sent yesterday to the county clerk of Cook county and a continuance of the case will be asked for until the document arrives.

Mr. Hollister does not believe that Hollister will appear to prosecute, and he knows it will be impossible for him to prove the case. He says the affair is not ended yet as he does not propose to go forward with the disgrace of having his wife imprisoned.

The chief of police says that the lady calling herself Mrs. Hollister has been making arrangements recently to get a divorce from the husband she left in Iowa.

Rider and the "Tamalies." To say "red-hot tamalies" to Morris Rider will make a very angry man. Rider has a remunerative position at Swift's, but Saturday evening he yielded to the siren voice of Jack Leonard, the vincerwurst man, and decided to do the "tamalie" with him. He started in all right, but in making the round of the saloons he imbibed too much and by midnight he had forgotten the business he was in and the vincerwurst outfit had somehow disappeared. A kind hearted policeman took Rider in charge and lodged him in jail for the night.

Live Stock Exchange. The preparation of telephone and telegraph messages was the subject of discussion at the Live Stock exchange meeting Saturday afternoon, and it was decided that the amendment to rule 9 of the rules should come up for final action at the regular monthly meeting Monday afternoon.

A GEM FROM MEXICO. Description of the Largest Opal Ever Found in the World.

The largest opal, it is said, ever found on the American continent, if not in the world, was placed on exhibition yesterday in the show window of a local jeweler, says the San Francisco Examiner.

It is 11 inches long, 5 wide, and 1 1/2 inches thick and came from Guerrero, Mexico. It is the property of Juan Goldman of 1000 Van Ness avenue, who is interested in the mine from which it came. The value of the specimen, according to the owner, is $10,000, but it is probably worth more than that.

The opal was found imbedded in a ledge of amorphous rock a short distance below the surface. It is of the mineral species known as girasol, or fire opal, which is found only on the North American continent and more extensively in Mexico than elsewhere. Humboldt brought from Mexico the first specimen seen in Europe.

Mr. Goldman's opal is supposed to weigh about 700 carats. Its exact weight cannot be told on account of the mass of rock inclosing it, but it is much larger than the 44,000 opal belonging to the Hungarian crown jewels exhibited at the London exposition of 1851, which only weighed 620 carats. But that one was of the class known as the precious opal, which, on account of its peculiar translucent hue, commerce places a higher value upon than on the fire opal.

From the center of Mr. Goldman's opal came out a fine stone 1 1/2 inches long and 1/2 wide and 1/4 in depth. The remainder of the stone can be cut up into a large number of varying sizes.

The largest opal heretofore discovered in America is the property of Mr. C. A. Gray of Albany, New York, and its value is said to be $5,000.

Small in size, great in results: DeWitt's Little Early Risers. Best pill for constipation, best for sick headache, best for sour stomach.

HAVE YOU THE GRIPPE?

Many People Have It and Do Not Know It How to Recognize the Symptoms and How to Treat It.

Hundreds of people have the Grippe who do not know it. Not necessarily the final stages, but the first stages. They feel pain in the head, and a bad taste in the mouth, get tired and despondent, have chilly sensations, limbs and muscles ache. In some cases these things are overlooked. In most cases perhaps they are considered simply a slight cold. In many cases they indicate the coming of Grippe.

There is but one thing to do when these symptoms appear, and that is to take prompt and vigorous measures, to fortify nature to repel the enemy. A little well directed effort at just the right time will accomplish very much more than labored efforts afterwards. There is but one thing to be done, and that is to use a pure stimulant, something that will promptly arrest and in no way injure, something endorsed by scientists, recommended by physicians, and popular because so efficient—Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey. Two years ago, and last year when the Grippe was raging, this was the standard remedy used, and recommended by the profession. It did more to prevent the Grippe than all other kind of recommended remedies. It preserved many people in health who would otherwise have been seriously sick, perhaps even worse. It is as efficient today as ever. It should be used by all who are called "whiskies" and every man may not be so efficient, and if any dealer asserts that such whiskies are the same, distrust him at once. There is but one medicinal whiskey, and that is Duffy's Pure Malt.

It is not to be had in a bad or inferior imitation of royal favor. Beware of cheap imitations of specialists.
