Nebraska Particularly Will Feel the Effects of the False Policy-Sweeping Reductions Made in All Appropriations Regardless of Legitimate Demands.

> WASHINGTON BUREAU OF THE BEE, 513 FOURTHENTH STREET, WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 27.

The house appropriations committee mem-Sers are determined that in their remaining appropriation bills they will live up to their idea and policy of "reform." Mr. Dockery, who is chairman of the subcommittee for the District of Columbia, will report his bill to the full committee on Monday morning and expects to have it in the house by Monday afternoon. He claims that he will save $500,-000 on the bill this year, and it is characteristic of the democratic party that the principal reductions in the appropriations are made in providing for free schools in the District of Columbia. No less than $200,000 is thus cut out of the school fund.

Judge Sayres, who is in charge of the sundry civil bill, expects to have that bill in the house by the end of the week. He has made the most sweeping reductions in it that are made in any appropriation bill and claims that he will "save" $10,000,000. There is no particular cut at any point, according to his statements, but every item has been reduced from last year's appropriations. There are practically no appropriations for public buildings, and the house has before it now a resolution providing that there shall be no appropriations made whatever for public buildings.

Both Mr. Dockery and Judge Sayres claim that they will get their bills through the house practically as they will come from the nouse practically as they will come from the committee and they will not in confer-ence permit the senate to make any sub-stantial increase. The enterprises in and developments of the west will receive a serious setback by the appropriation bills prepared by this bouse. ARMY OFFICERS AS AGENTS

One of the Clauses of the Indian Appro-

Mr. Dingley, in a Resolution, Charges the Democratic Congress with Avoiding Real Issues-Silver Matters-General Washington News,

NEW CLASS OF AGENTS FOR THE RED MAN

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 27 .- The house oday, in its consideration of the Indian appropriation bill, authorized an innovation which, if concurred in by the senate, will be of great interest to Incian agents and officers of the regular army. After two hours debate an amendment, proposed by Mr. Bowers of California, was adopted, provid ing that the president may appoint officers of the army to act as Indian agents when vacau-

On motion of Mr. Holman a further amendment was adopted providing that such army officers, white acting as Indian agents, shall be under the orders and direction of the secretary of the interior.

How army officers will receive this innovation is a matter of great speculation among congressmen today, as officers of the regular army have always been very jealous of their independent position and may resent being transferred from the War department and placed under the orders of the civilians of the Interior department. There are many representatives, however, who maintain that the change will be a welcome one to the offi-cers, and that under the proposed regime the Indians will be much more fairly treated. It is pertinent to state in this connection that western army officers have already con-tended that the troubles with Indians for years past have been attributable to the Indian agents and the Indian problem would never be solved until the wards of the nation were placed under the charge of the army nen and the War department.

The committee of the whole was presided over by Mr. Bynum of Indiana and the unendment of Mr. Bowers was the first one today proposed for the bill. On a standing vote the committee agreed to Mr. Bowers mendment-83 to 40 ment, as amended, was adopted-yeas, 123 Although the amendment was agreed to by the committee Mr. Peel of Arkansas gave notice that he would ask a separate vote upon it in the house. He thought that this was too important a matter to be legislated upon without greater, deliberation and con-sideration than had been given to it.

The committee then passed on to the con aderation of the clause appropriating $100, 000 for the construction and repair of Indian day and industrial schools and on motion of Mr. Lynch of Wisconsin an amendment was adopted providing that all schoolhouses erected under this appropriation shall be built on the reservations or as near the boundary of the reservation as may practicable.

Mr. Reed Presents His Views.

Mr. Reed of Maine presented his views on the Indian problem and advocated a proposition increasing by $300,000 the appropria-tion for the education of the redmen. The Indians must be educated as a whole. It was useless to take a child here and there and after educating him send him back to a savage tribe to again become a blanket Indian. There were today 30,000 Indian children The government was educating 20,000, but t was rich enough and sensible enough to educate ali. Ef-forts must be made to make them homogenous and they must be made one race-a race that had some idea of civilization and prog-

Mr. Peel made a sreech in general defense of the bill, dectaring that the committee on Indian affairs had faithfully performed its duty, and denying that it had in any way in jured the Indian service. Mr. Reed offered an amendment, increasing from $1.000,000 to $1,200,000 the appropriation for the support of Indian day and in lustrial schools, but it was lost, Pending final action on the bill, the committee rose and the house adjourned.

SILVER IN 144 AOUSE.

What Its Advocates and Opponents Propose to Do in the Matter of Legislation. WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 27.-As the result of an informal talk between the three democratic leaders on the committee on rules, Messrs. Crisp. Catchings and McMillin, a determination has been reached to bring in a special order on the silver question. It has been determined to make the Bland free coinage a special order for March l or 2, although this may possibly be changed. The purpose is to give the bill four days for consideration in the house. Within this time the bill is to be debated and brought to a vote. No order will be made fixing a time at which a vote shall be taken, at least for the present. The fact that the order only makes the silver bill a matter of special privilege for a limited period of time would perhaps make it possi-ble for the anti-silver men to prevent a vote by means of fillbustering tactics. It is said, nowever, that if necessary a rule would be brought in to bring the matter to a The rules committee is reluctant to fix a time at which a vote must be taken. It is thought by members of the committee filibustering will not succeed and that the knowledge that a rule will be brought in if necessary to check these tactics will be suffi cient so prevent a resort to this method of obstruction.

It is at present the purpose of Representatives Cockran of New York. Andrews and O'Neill of Massachusetts, and other antisulver men, to fight the special order of the rules committee at the very outset and endeavor to defeat it. While it is the purpose of the rules committee to report the order on of the rules committee to report the order on Monday, it is not intended to call it up for adoption by the house for some days A large number of members of congress were in conference with the speaker during

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 27.—A deficiency appropriation for the remainder of the fiscal year is needed by the Agricultural department to carry out the provisions of the recent meat inspection law, and it will receive early consideration from the committee Tuen there is a silk culture bill which has been in congress several years. The minority of the ways and means com-mittee today submitted their report dissenting from the house majority on the bill placing binding twine on the free list. It discusses at some length the action of the senate in 1800 in voting to place the article on the free list. This bill, the minority continues, pre-sents a good illustration of the folly of attempting to tinker with the tariff by piece-meal. In giving their reasons why they oppose the bill, the minority, in conclusion, says: "We oppose it because this industry says: "We oppose it because this industry is already established; because the removal of this duty would desiroy it, throwing thousands of men out of employment and rendering millions of invested capital useless and turning $2,000,000 in wages annually to the laborers of other countries. AFRAID TO PACE THE ISSUES,

Resolution in the House.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Fep. 27,-Dingley of Maine presented for reference a preamble and resolution reciting that the democratic party has determined, in order to avoid raising the direct issue on the principles which separate the republican and democratic parties in the approaching presidential election that it is necessary to make the people be lieve that there are questions at issue between the two parties as to whether the appropriations and expenditures of the governent shall be economical. The resolution then goes on to say that these so-called loaders of the democratic party, in pursuance of this plan and in support of their unfounded charges of wicked extravagance again: the republican congress, and their equally un-founded claims of superior honesty and economy for the present democratic con gress, found it necessary to defer all appro printions until the second session of the present congress, or until after the presiden-tial election, in order that they may be able to point during the cam-paign to the apparent reduction of appropriations in support of their charges and claims. That in order to further this pian of campaign it is inexpedient to provide for the construction of the numerous public buildings which congress intends to author-ize until the second session, after the presi-dential election shall have been decided and the necessity, which, as the democratic mem-bers seem to think, exists for pressing the false issue of economy in lieu of the real issues of principles which shall divide the parties shall have passed away.

ADMITTED TO BAIL.

Lillie Johnson, Accessory to the Murder of Freda Ward, at Liberty. MEMPHIS, Tenn., Feb. 27.-Judge Dubose

this morning set the public mind at rest for a time at least, admitting to bail Miss Lillie Johnson, who is enarged with being an accessory to the murder of Miss Freda Ward by Alice Mitchell! in this city on January 25 last. The required bond, $10,000, was promptly forthcoming, and Miss Johnson will spend Sunday at her quiet home on ance street, instead of in the gloomy jail of Shelby county. It was known vesterday that the decision would be given this morning, and long be-fore the hour set for the opening of court every seat and available bit of standing room in the criminal court had been taken. It was a curious throng that thus patiently awaited the entering of the judge, and the principal figure in this preliminary trial. A mixture of people of all classes and situations in life was here represented. A few ladies were present and their bright tollettes lent an air of cheerfulness to the scene. By the side of the secretary sat the staid matrons of so-ciety, and crowded uncomfortably near them was the colored dame, arrayed for the occa-A little before 9 o'clock a rear door of the

They took their accustomed places by the window in the corner of the room, to the left of the judge's seat. Miss Johnson was becomingly attired in a walk-ing suit of dark brown material and light hat. When she lifted her veil her countenance, though ghastly pale, bore a cheerful expression. She seemed to know, as if by ntuition, that the famous judge who has presided over so many sensational trials would that morning pronounce the words which would allow her to return, at least for a time, to her home and friends. A few minutes after 9 o'clock Judge Dubose, tall and spare, entered, and noticing that the prisoner and counsel were all-present, immediately took his seat. The habeas corpus case was the first business and it was at once proceeded with, the ruling being read immediately. It is as follows: The State vs Alice Mitchell and Little Johnson:

The defendants were jointly indicted, charged with murder in the first degree. On indictment thus found defendants being confined in the county jall awaiting tria', the defendant Johnson applies for bail on a proceeding of habens corpus instituted for that pur-

Whether she be entitled to ball, as demanded, involves a question of law, as well as of fact, which must be decided alone by the court. It is provided in the declaration of rights of the constitution of our state that all prisoners shall be ballable by sufficient sureties, "unless for capital offenses, when the proof is evident, or the presumption great." The obvious meaning of this lanzuage is that when the proof is evident or the presumption great, that the defendant is guilty of a capital offense, ball cannot be allowed. But to determine this applicant for ball must summon witnesses and the court proceed to fully investigate the case on the point as to whether the proof is evident or the presumption great; for the burden of proof is on the defendant to show that she has the constitutional right to be balled; that the proof against her is not evident.

Witnesses in this case have been summoned and fully examined, and without reviewing Whether she be entitled to ball, as debe basied; that the proof against her is not evident. Witnesse; in this case have been sammoned and fully examined, and without reviewing the evidence as presented it is sufficient to say that the court is clearly of the opinion that the proof is evident that the defendant aided and abetted in the commission of the erime with which she and her codefendant are charged—a crime the most shocking and malignant ever perpetrated by woman. However, the court may consider, on application for bail, the condition of the defendant's health affected by confinement in the county jail. If it appears that continued condnement would endanger the life of the defendant, she ought to be bailed, as the boiley of the law is not to punish unnecessarily those who are charged with crime before trial and conviction.

It appears from the proof taken in this proceeding that the defendant Johnson is a woman of about 29 years of age, who has been in precarious health since a mere child; that she suffers continually from headache, and often with nervous prostration, and the c'ose confinement in the almosphere of the prison would no doubt aggravate her malady and thereby endanger her life. For this reason, and for this alone, the court will grant the prayer of the petitioner and admit the defendant to ball.

Immediately after Judge Dubose had fin-

Immediately after Judge Dubose had finished reading his ruling the ball was fixed at $10,000, with Dr. H. L. Wilford and Hon. Martin Kelly as sureties.
Miss Johnson received the congratulations of friends and relatives, and immediately left the court room. A carriage was in waiting, and in company with her father and brothers the young lady was driven to her home on Vanco street, where the party ar-rived at a few minutes after 11 o'clock. It is evident that the state has in its pos-session evidence which has not been made public, which will hold Miss Johnson for trial on the charge of aiding in the murder instead of the mere form of a release from bail, as was sanguinely expected by her friends.

Miss Johnson's incarceration has told greatly upon her health. The young girl, pale and much emacrated, is now but a shadow of her former seif. Her condition arouses the deepest sympathy and causes great anxiety among her friends.

It is not known when the proceedings in the writ of lunacy in Miss Mitchell's case will be commenced: General Luke E. Wright, chief counsel for the defense, said that he thought it would be thirty days be.

This scale gives $1 more per ton for 12 per cent beets and 50 per cent more for 13 per cent beets than has heretofore been offered and it is expected that the average price will

A large acreage of beets has already been contracted, and, as stated previously in The Bre, it has been done without much solicit-ing. Little Elsie Gleason of Lincoln the Victim of a Rabid Animal. LINCOLN, Nob., Feb. 27 .- | Special to THE BEE. |- Eiste Gleason, a little girl of 10, living on East P street, was bitten on the hand this afternoon by a dog presumably mad. The little girl was playing with some companions near Fifteenth and R streets when the dog came rushing by, and as it passed her made a snap at her hand. Officers gave chase, and pursued the dog for several miles, but were unable to catch the animal; but it was shot at Fortieth and Washington streets by Rev. Mr. Hull. Five dogs belonging to various parties in the southeastern portion of the city were bitten and were immediately killed. The girl is under treatment by a physician.

St. Louis, Mo., disturbed dust of Music hall be to its pristine resting place, from which was rudely flung by the shouting throng of industrial reformers, some peculiar facts are revealing themselves in the clearing atmosphere. And they do not demonstrate particularly strongly that the recent conference was a spontaneous uprising of the downtrodden tollers of the earth, but rather that it was controlled and run by a few men whose executive abilities and perspicuity have shown them to be schemers of no mean ability. Indeed, to come down to cold facts, the entire affair, from the issuing of the call by the Ocala convention to the present day was coolly, calmly planned, and not only planned, but executed by a little coterie, whose names are J. B. Weaver, Ignatius Donnelly, Horman E. Taubeneck, G. F. Wenshburn, J. H. Davis, C. C. Post of Georgia and J. L. Norton of Chicago. And all this is learned directly from one of the leading schemers after the Ocale call went the leading schemers after the Ocala call went out and a conference at Cincinnati was held and the reform party thrown upon the world.

Opposed by Southerners. Without going into details, it is only necessary to say it early became evident that the southern element was strongly opposed to independent action, and that the leaders in this line were Dr. McCune and Ben Terrill of Texas and Livingston of Georgia. Those in favor of such action saw that something had to be done and quickly. At Indianapolis it became still more strongly apparent, and the promoters of third party action began to formulate plans. It was nothing more at first than that Weaver and Donneily should put themselves forward and draw the fire of the enemy, thus giving Wash-burn and Taubeneck an opportunity to concentrate their forces on the flank. How well the plan succeeded will be shown by this story.
At meeting after meeting the third party idea was pushed. In the supreme council of the alliance the issue was drawn on a pledge offered to support the action of the federated bodies. The southern leaders fought it, but were defeated. A proposition to request that all alliance congressmen should stay out of all the old party caucuses was carried, de-spite the efforts of Livingston et al.

Pulled the Wool Over Their Eyes. The committee appointed to call the na-tional convention had begun to evidence some peculiar characteristics. This mittee consisted of Terrill, Taubeneck Bannigarten. Terrill, its chairman, persistently neglected to call the body to-gether to formulate a call. Weeks passed, but no call; finally Taubeneck and Bannigarten conferred, and Issued and Bannigarten conferred, and Issued the call from Washington. In doing so St. Louis was selected, that the conference might be near Kansas and Nebraska, two strong alliance and third party states, and so be strongly influenced in that direction. About this time Terrill began to "hedge" by endorsing the call issued by the majority of Matters were now so shaping themselves that it was becoming necessary to destroy the influence of the southern lenders opposed to third party action, especially Livingston of Georgia and McCune and Terrill of Texas. Here the Washburn-Taubeneck party showed its finesse. With the aid of Post of Georgia and J. H. Davis of Texas the alliances of those two states were so worked upon as to come to the support of the third party, thus repudiating their existing leaders and leaving them without a constituency. As a result of this situation, which was planned for and deliberately worked out, Watson became the real leader of the Georgia alliance. Significance of the Georgia Contest.

The anti-third party feeling having thus been practically stamped out, the steerers came to St. Louis and began their work here to control the convention. It was known that Livingston was coming, threatening to bolt if any action contrary to his wishes was taken, and herein lies the significance of the Georgia contest and the row over it in the convention ball. But to that reference will be made in chronological order.

The leaders now in the city began their work. They established outposts of confidential workers to warn them of any action which might be taken by any one of the nu-merous orders embraced in the big assemblage. The steering committee, as it may be called the names have already been given-received reports from these spies and planned accordingly. The first skirmish occurred on the first day, when Hayes of the Koights of Labor ettempted to make Terrill czar of the body by glving him power to appoint all committees, though he was neither temporary nor permanent chairman. How General Weaver headed this off is already a matter of history. If the scheme had been successful it is known that Terrili would have appointed only antithird party men, and so he, McCune ingston would have been in control. Weaver's action, however, put Marion Caunon in the chair, and thus the Washburn-Taubeneck element were again in the saddle, and then came Donnelly's resolution regarding the credentials committee, and it was passed and the third party men breathed still more

Fell Into the Third Party Trap. The next scheme was to spring a row in the convention and publicly show the southern anti-third party leaders to be without a constituency. This was done with the aid of the Georgia contest case. Three only of the five state-at-large delegates appointed by Livingston and his committee had arrived in town. The credentials committee filled the vacancies with two third party men-Post and Branch. In the meantine the national citizens' industrial alliance had, by the fine work of the steering committee, been nduced to put on its national delegation four

Georgia third party men. This, however, was not known to the Livingston element. When the contest report was made to the convention, Moses of Georgia, an anti-third party man, fell into the trap set for him, de-manding that the unit rule govern the newly fixed delegation—as had been ordered by the Georgia state committee, of which Living-ston was chairman. The matter was fought out as already known, but when the state delegation came to take formal action as a state delegation the Livingston men found themselves in the minority. They had, however, sprung the row in the convention, and without knowing it, had publicly shown themselves without a constituency. Carried Them in the Rush

The next step of these fine workers, who had so far had matters their own way, was to create such a third party sentiment of a public character as to carry the anti-third party men forward in the rush and so provent their voices being heard. This they did by still neeping Weaver and Donnelly before the body as targets, while they hems elves, having secured appointments as sergeants at arms circulated among the delegates, and passing word along to their true and tried men, kept the sentiment on their side. They had nearly reached the consummation of their hopes when a sudden move-ment by Powderly almost caused a stampede. On his motion an adjournment of two hours was taken. During this time the Willard minority platform was hurriedly put in shape was taken. During this time the Willard minority platform was hurrically put in shape and when the convention reassembled it was presented. Then ensued the confusion described in the despatches on the day of the occurrence. In the midst of it all Weaver himself lost his bearing, out righted himself just in time to call a halt by demanding to know how his delegation had voted him.

The third party men pulled themselves

The third party men pulled themselves together. During a few moments in which all the delegations spent in consultation, the so-called sergeauts-at-arms, succeeded in passing the word to their friends. Donnelly passing the word to their friends. Donnelly gided by his speech in smoothing the tangle and in an instant the platform was passed with a whoop. The third party schemers had won. And so the spontaneous "uprising" of the people declared for independent political action. It did, but it was by the will of the steering committee who, led by Washburn, Taubeneck, Weaver and Donnelly, had succeeded in making sentiment months before the convention, and keeping months before the convention, and keeping it in shape during all the hubbub.
