OMAHA LIVE STOCK MARKET

Supply of Cattle Rather Small and of Inferior Quality.

VARIATIONS IN PRICES VERY SLIGHT

Shipping and Export Buyers Wanted Good Heavy Stock and Paid Well for Anything in That Line-Little of Interest in Transactions.

OMARIA, April 1 .- Receipts for five days foot op 1c,027 cattle, 16,435 hogs, 2,476 sheep, against 12,021 cattle. 17,902 hogs. 4,088 sheep, the same five days last week. The supply of cattle was rather small and did not include a great many really desirable beeves. So far this week there has been a falling off in receipts compared with last week of about 2,000 head. The market continues monotonously steady and prices for the entire week have not varied enough to quote. Shipping and export buyers wanted good heavy cattle and paid firm prices for what few were here and would have bought more had they been on sale. There was also a fair demand from local killers for cattle of this grade. On the medium, and common cattle the local buyers had it all to themselves and were generally inclined to bid a little lower than Thorsday. The limited demand for feeders also had a depressing influence on the lighter grades of cattle and prices shaded lower. Trading was necessarily on the dull order but a fair clearnuce was effected. Good 1,251 to 1,50) pound steers sold at from $4.55 to $4.05, fair to good 1,000 to 1,250 pound steers at from $4.35 to $5.5; with common light stuff, largely odd bunches, at from $3.20 to $4.30.

The more desirable grades of cows and heifers sold at steady to strong prices. Ordinary grades were not quotably improved. Good stock sold from $2.50 to $3.15, fair to good from $2.10 to $2.61 and canners, as usual, from $4.41 to $2.09. Bulls, oven and stags were in fair demand and firm at from $2.50 to $3.50. Calves were mostly common and brought about steady prices at from $2.50 to $3.50. Calves were mostly common and brought about steady prices at from $2.00 to $3.00. Calves were mostly common and brought about steady prices at from $2.00 to $4.60.

Stockers and feeders were slow sale at prices be to be lower than Thursday and 15e lower than Wednesday. There was a very limited demand, and the supply being rather liberal, buyers could cheapen up very successfully. Representative sales: week have not varied enough to quote. Ship-

April Fool Came in the Way of Some Remarkable Changes. Chicago, Ill., April L-Whip-saw was the countersien today in the wheat pit. It was a sure enough April fool market for some of the big houses as well as the scalpers. There was a change of nearly 2c in the prices in less than two hours. This evening wheat and every article on the list shows an advance over the prices current which are still subject to speculative in-twenty-four hours ago. But wheat opened so weak as to be semi-panicky. The heavy closing last might and this depression which scemed to pervade the wheat market brought in a good many sellers, and the market brought in a good many sellers, and the market was from Not to like lower; May selling at from 17% to 17% to 17% to 18% of the market was from Not to like lower; May selling at from 17% to 17% to 17% to 18% of 18% heavily short. The champion short seller is reported to be less confident of his ability to cope with the corn crowd than with the people in the wheat pit. The market opened weak and he lower in sympathy with the depression at the same time in wheat. The sudden recovery in the latter had an immediate similar effect upon corn, which after selling momentarily he below the opening price, burged he from the low point and after a while humbed itself again, getting its back up to from 4 he to 40 he of the latter occasion, after having been to 50 he near the opening. The offerings were light and it took but little buying to put the price up.

Outs showed little independence of feeling and on important trading fluctuated with wheat and corn, closing at from he to he higher than yesterday.

The provision market in a general way followed the fluctuations in grain. The transactions were at the lowest prices of the day and the closing rates were the highest. Mitchell and Helmholtz were vigorous buyers in the interest of Wright, it was said. Pork opened 174c higher; lard is up 75c and riss 10c.

The estimated receipts for tomorrow are; Wheat, 105 cars; corn, 220 cars; oats, 1.6 cars; hogs, 13,00.

STOCKS AND BONDS.

Traders Again Treated to Some Depressing Influence. New York, April 1.—The stock market to-day was treated to another depressing influence in the shape of the renewal of the outward movement of gold, but the narrowness of the speculation and the remarkable tenac-Ity with which stocks are held prevented any material decline outside of the few stocks fluences. The announcement, while not unreasonable, was at least unexpected, that a large shipment of sold was likely tomorrow, was quickly followed by the announcement that the colo had actually been engaged. The effect was to check the slight upward movement in progress in the general list and to intensify the weakness of the two we kest stocks—New England and Sugar, Losses among the other prominent stocks, however, extended to 1 per cent and over, the temper of the dealings being for some time decidedly weak. The most discouraging thing to the buils, however, was the utter failure of the market to raily effectively, and especially in those stocks which are known to be subject to bear attacks from day to day.

tively, and especially in those stocks which are known to be subject to bear attacks from day to day.

In regard to Sugar and New England, there was no news of a character to have any positive influence upon them. Among the rest of the list Lake Shore and Missouri Pacific showed most weakness, though Roading came again to the front and score I a decline on a large basiness. The distursements for interest dividends during the day were not offset by the shipments of gold, and while there were some efforts to cover shorts in the afternoon, they were of little effect and even Manhattan lost a portion of its late substantial advance. The trading in the late dealings was light but no material recovery took piace and the market finally closed duil but heavy and at or near the lowest prices of the day. The general market throughout was dull and fluctuated within the usual narrow limits and while inclined to advance Just after the opening, yielded to influence of the gold shymnents and fell away below the open ng orices. The final changes are invariably losses, the most important among which were New England. 3% per cent: Sugar, 2% per cent: Lake Shore and Reading each 1½ per cent: Lake Shore and Reading each 1½ per cent: and Union Pacific, Atchison and Manhattan each 1 per cent.

New York, April 1.—In regard to today's shipment of gold to Europe, the Post says: The renewal of gold exports to Europe was unexpected and hence was of uncommon value as a bugaboo for professional speculators. Exchanges were below the normal gold ship ping point, but they are no lower than they were, while last month's shipments of $.000,000 were going out. So far as it is a mere question of money supply, there is no reason to suppose that a very much lar er outflow would be feit at all in our market. Our city banks now hold in specie and legal tender nearly $4,000,00 more than a year ago and it is now becoming more and more difficult to put out this surplus anywhere in ioans. Unfortunately the clearing house does not distinguish in its weekly reports the kind of money held by the banks. The comparison's therefore unsatisfactory, for it cannot be learned how much of the years' increased surplus consists in silver currency. A vague fear that we are sending gold to the foreigners while replacing it with new silver currency, is the one reasonable ground of uncasiness at the gold exports.

Chicago Live Stock. Cuicago, Ill. April I.—[Special Telegram to The Bre.]—There was no radical change today in prices of cattle. The market was firm and nothing more. It was quiet and it took sellers the greater part of the day to empty the pens. Cows and helfers were sal-able at $1.25 to $1.30 for inferior to extra quali-ties.

empty the pens. Cows and helfers were salable at $1.25 to $1.50 for inferior to extra qualities, and there were sales of bulls at $1.50 to $1.50. The ranze of values for dressed Leef shipping and export steers was $1.15 \(\tilde{D}_1 \). There were extremely few trades at over $1.50, and only a few hundred head changed hands below $1.25, the prevailing prices being $1.256,100 for cows and bulls, and $3.6561.35 for steers. Stockers and feeders were in good demand at $2.5525.75. The general market closed steady.

Hoos—The market was higher and somewhat excited, so a marked falling off in the receipts was entirely untimed, and there was a lively scramble among buyers to secure their individual shares. The competition was so sharp that prices at once climbed to $4.90 or choice heavy, and medium weight sold at $4.90 for choice to fancy light. There were instances where hogs sold ise higher than yesterday and the advance was a good; round ide. The pens were emptied in quick order, and the close was firm at from $1.50 to $4.90 for heavy and medium weight and from $1.40 to $1.57\(\tilde{a} \) for light. Very little of the day's work was done below $1.75, the popular prices being $1.55.

No Full Length Portraits for Him. Thackeray was not a vain man, and he disliked vanity in others, and made it his subject of ridicule and sarcasm, says the Cleveland Leader. After long pleading his family induced him to have his portrait painted, and Lawrence, a famous London artist, gladly undertook the task. Soon after the picture was completed Thackerny chanced to be dining at his club, when a pompous officer of the guards stoped beside the table and said:

"Haw, Thackeray old boy, I hear Law-rence has been painting your portrait?"

"So he has," was the response.
"Full length?" "No; full length portraits are for sol diers, that we may see their spurs. But the other end of the man is the principal thing with authors," said

THE TRAGEDY OF THE ALAMO

How Sant, Anna's Thousands Beseiged a Texas Hardful.

A DESPERATE STRUGGLE FOR LIBERTY

The Long Terrible Fight that Ended in the Slaughter of Captain Travis, Davy Crockett, Colonel Bowle, and Every Man of Their Companions.

San Antonio is the oldest of Texas cities, and possesses historical and picturesque show places which in any other country but our own would be visited by innumerable American tourists prepared to fail down and worship, writes Richard Harding Davis in Harrer's weekly. The Alamo is to the southwest what Independence hall is to the United States, and Bunker Hill to the East; but the pride of it belongs to every American, whether he lives in Texas or in Maine. The battle of the Alamo was the event of the greatest moment in the war between Mexico and the Texans, when Santa Anna was president, and the Texans were fighting for their independence. And the stone building to which the Mexicans laid siege, and in which the battle was fought, stands today facing a plaza in the center of San Antonio. There are hideous wooden structures around it, and others not so hideous modern hotels and the new postoffice, on which the mortar is hardly yet dry. But in spite of these the grace and dignity the monks gave it in 1774 raise it above these modern efforts that tower above it and dwarf them. On the 23d of February, 1836, General Santa Anna himself, with 4,000 Mexican soldiers, marched into the town of San Antonio. In the old mission of the Alamo were the town's only defenders, 145 men, under Captain Travis, a young man 28 years old. With him were Davy Crockett, who had crossed over from his own state to help these who were freeing theirs, and Colonel Bowie (who gave his name to a knife, which name our government gave later to a fort), who was wounded and lying on a Their fortress and quarters and magazine was the mission, their articlery, fourteen mounted pieces, but there was little ammunition. Santa Anna de-manded unconditional surrender, and the answer was ten days of dogged defense, and skirmishes by day and sorties for food and water by night. The Mox-icans lost heavily during the first days of the siege, but not one inside of the Alamo was killed. Early in the week Travis had dispatched couriers for help, and the defenders of the mission were living in the hope of re-enforcements, but four days passed and neither couriers returned nor re-enforcements came. On the fourth day Colonel Fannin with 300 men and four pieces of artillery started forth from Goliad, but put back again for want of food and lack of teams. The garrison of the Alamo never knew of this. On the 1st of March Captain John W. Smith, who has found teams, and who has found rations, brings an offering of thirty-two men from Gonzales, and leads them safely into the fort. They have come with forced marches to their own graves; but neither do they know that, and the garrison, now 172 strong, against 4,000 Mexicans, continues its desperate sorties and its desperate

On the 31 of March, 1836, there was a cessation in the bombardment, and Captain Travis drew his men up into single rank and takes his place in front of

He tells them that he has deceived them with hopes of reinforcements, false hopes based on false promises of help from the outside, but he does not blame those who failed him, he makes excuses for them, they have tried to reach him, no doubt, but have been killed on the way. Sidney Lanier quotes this excusing of those who had deserted him at the very threshold of death as best showing the fineness of Travis, and the poet who has judged the soldier so truly has touched here one of the strongest points of this story of great he: oism.

Captain Travis tells them that all that remains to them is the choice of their death, and that they have but to decide in which manner of dying they will best serve their country. They can surrender and be shot down mercitessly, they can make a sortie and be butchered be fore they have gained twenty yards, or they can die fighting to the last, and killing their enemies until that lascomes.

He gave them their choice, and then stooping, draws a line with the point of his sword in the ground from the left to the right of the rank.

"And, now," he says, "every man who is determined to remain here and to die with me will come to me across that line. Tapley Holland was the first to cross

He jumped it with a bound, as though it were a Rubicon. "I am ready to die for my country," he said. And then all but one man, named

Rose, marched over to the other side. Colonel Bowie, lying wounded in his cot, raised hunself on his elbow. "Boys," he said, don't leave me. Won't some of you carry me across?' And those of the sick who could walk rose from the bunks and tottered across the line; and those who could not walk were carried. Rose, who could speak Spanish, trusted to this chance to escape, and scaling the wall of the Alamo. dropped into a ditch on the other side, and crawled, hidden by the cactus, into a place of safety. Through him we know what bappened before that final day came. He had his reward.

Three days after this, on the morning of the 6th of March, Sauta Anna brought forward all of his infantry, supported by his cavairy, and stormed the fortress. The intentry came up on every side at once be long black solid rows, bearing the scaling ladders before them, and encouraged by the press of great numbers about them. But the band inside the mission drove them back, and those who held the ladders dropped Hem on the ground and ran against the bayonets of their comrades. A second time they charged into the line of pullets, and a second time they fell back, Teaving as many dead at the foot of the ladders as there were standing at bay within the walls. at the third trial the ladders are planted, and Mexicans after Mexicans scale them and jump down into the pit inside, hundreds and hundreds of them to be met with bullets and then with bayonet thrusts, and at last with desperate thrusts, and swinging of the butt, swinging and about and beaten down and stamped beneath the weight of overwhelming and unending numbers. They die fighting on their knees, hacking up desperately as they are beaten and pinned down by a dozen bayonets, Bowie leaning on his bow and shooting from his cot, Crockettilighting like a panther in the angle of the church wall, and Travis with his back against the wall to the west. 172 men who had held 4,000 men at bay and the Mexicans open the church doors from the inside and let in their comrades and the sunshine that shows them horrid heaps of 522 dead Mexicans and 500 more wounded.

There are no wounded among the Tex-ans; of the 172 who were in the Alamo there are 172 dead.

With an example like this to follow it was not difficult to gain the independ-ence of Texas, and whenever Sam Houston role before his men crying, "Remember the Alamol" the battle was already half won.

It was not a cry wholly of revenge, I like to think. It was rather the holding up of the cross to the crusaders, and crying: "By this sign we conquer." It was a watchword to remind men of those who had suffered and died that their cause might live.

GAVE UP A HUSBAND FOR A WOMAN A Remarkable Case of Infatuation of One

Woman for Another. A most singular story has just come to light at Richmond by the separation of Charles Worral and his wife because of the strange infatuation of the wife for her sister-in-law, Mrs. Mactin Worral, a widow. The love that the women have for each other is like the love of Alice Mitchell for Freda Ward, and seems to be as strong and uncontrollable on the part of one or the other. Mrs. Charles Worrall is a woman of education and refinement. She is the daughter of James L. Pierce, a prominent merchant of Williamsburg. She at one time held a position in an Ohio college, and some time since was a teacher of penmanship in Earlham college, Indianapolis. Hersister-in-law with whom she became infatuated, is the widow of her husband's brother, who has been dead three years. She until recently held a position of bookkeeper and typewriter in the office of the Swan Manufacturing company of Richmond, Eighteen months ago this love-like intim tey between the wife and sister-inlaw began, and since then their conduct toward each other has been precisely the same as the billing and cooing of the most ardent lovers of the opposite sex. They could not bear to be separated and they would embrace and kiss and give the greatest demonstration of the unatural love they felt for each other. The husband's remonstrances were in vain and only served to intensify his wife against him, until finally his wife, rather than be separated from the widow, decided to leave her husband, and the widow threw up her position to go with the woman she so strangely loves. The husband and wife made an amicable division of their property, and a few weeks since the wife visited her parents at Williamsburg, but she could not be happy and contented away from the widow, and a few days since they left together and went to Loraine, O.

where they now are. Leading physicians who are acquaint-ed with the facts say that the love of the two women is precisely the same as that felt by Alice Mitchell for Miss Freda Ward. The ladies are each 26 years old and preposessing in looks and manners and above the average in point of intelligence. Physicians say that to separate them might result in a startling tragedy, that their love is purely Dewitt's Sarsaparilla cleanass the blood, A Screne Girl.

It takes a great deal to disturb the even tenor of certain well-ordered and serene minds, says Wide Awake, in illustration of which the following incident is given: An old lady living in a certain New England village was going down a flight of back stairs when she fell and went rolling to the very bottom of the stairs, where she burst open the dear and came rolling out into the kit-

Her servant girl, Jane, screamed in affright, and various members of the family came running into the kitcher breathless with alarm. Before any of them could speak a word the old lady lifted herself to a sitting position on the floor and, holding one finger warningly and sniffing at the air, said calmly: "Jane, them biscuits in the oven are burning and I know it!"
