GETTING DOWN TOREAL WORK

Nebraska's World's Fair Commission Preparing Estimates of Expenses.

WHAT IT WILL COST THE STATE

Another Appropriation of Considerable Magnitude Will Be Asked for Additional Displays-President Strang Not Heard From-Lincoln News Notes.

Lincoln, Neb., April 6.—[Special to The Brg.]—The Nebraska Columbian commission today demonstrated the fact that it has business ability and energy to use it. Although the results do not make a lengthy showing upon paper, yet the commission has today accomplished more real work and made more progress toward the matter of the state ex-bibit at Chicago than it has during the whole period of its existence.

When the commission met this morning it took up the matter of the settlement with President Strang; but it was stated that there were good reasons for the belief that Mr. Strang would be heard from during the day and consequently the matter was deferred. The matter of the plans for the state building was also deferred. The commission then settled down to the work of making an estimate of the actual necessary expenses that must be involved From now until the opening of the exhibition In 1893. The whole matter was thoroughly discursed, and a careful estimate made. It was as follows, the estimate being made to carry the work to March 1, 1893:

of the national commission, under the rules of the national association.

In addition to the above amounts the leg-islature will be requested to make an appro-priation to cover the expenses of maintaining the exhibit in Chicago during the fair. These expenses will be necessarily heavy, and the amount asked for will be $32,083.33. The estimate was based upon the most careful cal-culation and the commissioners all expressed themselves as satisfied that it was not an un-reasonable amount. A circular letter to the people of the state will be issued at once in Which the entire estimate will be given, showing just what each item consists of and Why it is necessary.

Preparing for Preliminary Work,

In order that no delay may be experienced in the matter of preparing exhibits for the fair, the commission appropriated the follow-ing amounts for the several departments for preliminary work, the amounts to be deducted from the amount asked for from the legisla-ture: Education, $1,500; agriculture, $1,500; ture: Education, $1,500; agriculture, $1,500; horticulture, $1,500; dairy, $500; apiary, $250; woman's exhibit, $1,000. These amounts were appropriated in order that the soveral departments may begin making their plans at once. The various state organizations representing the several industries of the state will be requested to take charge of the exhibits and the work of preparing them. These exhibits will be based upon the amount that the legislature will be requested to appropriate. As soon as any state organization shall signify its desire to commeace work the money appropriated for the preliminary work will be drawn. Where state organizations do not take hold of the matter the commissioner general will appoint a superintendent for that department.

No Word from President Strang.

Up to the hour of adjournment at 6 o'clock this ovening no word had been received from President Strang, who is still in Texas. Ex-Commissioner General Greer sent him an urgent telegram last night to notify the com-mission that he would start for Nebraska at mission that he would start for Nebraska at once. Late this afternoon a telegram was received from a friend of Mr. Strang at La Porte, saying that he could not be reached, but that he would probably be heard from before night. The commission thereupon deferred any action upon the matter until tomorrow. It is believed that Mr. Strang has already tendered his resignation to Governor Royd by telegram from La Porte. At 6 o'clock the commission adjourned until tomorrow morning. morrow morning.

The Sperk embezzlement case occupied the attention of Judge Foxworthy today. The principal witness today was Robert Dorgan, who testified positively that he had never had any conversation with Beahm at any place; that he did not have a speaking acquaintance with him. Knew Beahm and Cowgill by sight, but had no conversation with either of them or any one else raising Cowgill by sight, but had no conversation with either of them or any one else relative to the payment of any money to them. Did not have any conversation with Cowgill, in which he had told Cowgill that he had paid Sperk a part of the $5,000. This question was to the effect if he had not told Cowgill that at the Burlington depot on February 19, when the junketing party went to Denver. Beahm was again put on the stand and subjected to severe examination by Attorney Philpott. He denied having used any whisky or cigars in influencing senators. Witness said he did not pay a cent to Senator Collins. Sperk had offered Collins $500 to vote as he wanted him, Collins refused, and told Sperk to his face that he wanted nothing to do with him (Sperk). Witness and told Sperk to bis face that he wanted nothing to do with him (Sperk). Witness said he had never offered Collins any money or anything else. All that Collins did was for friendship to witness. Beahm had asked Sperk why he made that break. Sperk said he wanted to "cinch him." Sperk intended to pay this out of his own pocset, he was worth $75,000 and could stand it. Beahm emphatically asserted he had never used or attempted to use corrupt means with any attempted to use corrupt means with any member of the legislature. Witness was asked if he had been present at a conversa-tion between Dorgan and Cowgill at the Capital hotel, but this was ruled out at this Unusual Case in Court.

Judge Brown was engaged this morning in hearing a rather unusual case, in which Bridget Muthin sues the Western Union Telegraph company for $200 damages. Mrs. Mulin secured the services of Detective Pound in finding her husband, Daniel, who had mysteriously disappeared. The officer finally found out that Mutlin had last been heard of in Seattle, Wash, working in a lumber yard. A telegram was sent the chief of police at Seattle inquiring if Mullin was still employed there. The next day a telegram from Aspen, Colo., was synt to Detective Pound, which read: "H. is here. Dome on. Will meet you at Glenwood Springs. W. H. Fitzgerald."

The latter is city marshai of Aspen, and Judge Brown was engaged this morning in

Bprings. W. H. Fitzgerald."

The latter is city marshal of Aspen, and the telegram had reference to the presence in Aspen of Fred Hammond, whom Detective Pound wanted for forgery committed here. The telegraph company, however, sent the dispaten to Mrs. Mullin's house (the detective being out of town) and the messenger told her it was her telegram. She read it: "He is here. Come on." She immediately purchased a ticket to Seattle, not being well versed in the idiosyncracles of the modern telegram, but got it by way of Aspen. Of source she didn't find Daniel, and now
