

THE SPECULATIVE MARKETS

Wheat Continued to Have a Bullish Appearance Yesterday.

FROM THE OUTSET IT WAS STRONG

Farbridge's Efforts to Stagnate the Market Had Little Effect—Although Oats Ruled Firm There Were Few Transactions—Stocks and Bonds.

CHICAGO, Ill., April 7.—The wheat market seemed to wear away today. It was up in comparison with yesterday's close. Corn, oats, pork and lard all showed some improvement. From the outset, wheat showed a decided strength, and though rather nervous and having frequent minor reactions, held the advance very stubbornly even in the face of a resolute fight made by Farbridge. It is supposed to have sold a big order of wheat to the British government, and it is believed that he has attempted to make the market and keep it down. But his tactics had little influence on the market. It started bullish and held to its position with much tenacity. The public cables gave a stronger tone to Liverpool, and the late afternoon advance of 1/4 cent was also indications of a cold wave, which it was feared might prove injurious to the winter wheat. Reports from Minnesota said that the late storms had destroyed the last hope of wheat in the state and in the stock in the market that it would be a success. It was also stated that late sowing was always regarded as unfavorable for the outcome of the crop.

tain that two or three days is ample time for attending to such matters. The marshal was not disposed to be particularly communicative regarding the matter, as he does not regard it as a very agreeable subject. He could not say whether the Neal would be in the city, but it is believed that he did not know what had become of that apparatus, and in the second place, while he did not say so, he gave the impression that he was not pleased with the manner of its construction. Personally the marshal is in favor of having all executions take place within the penitentiary walls in New York, and believes, too, that there should be an official who should be in charge of such matters.

Another thing that the marshal does not believe in is a test of the rope, which he holds simply weakens it without giving the slightest advantage. He believes that the critical moment is when the convict is in the air, and that the test of the rope is a waste of time. He will therefore be put upon the rope on the day of the execution.

EE'S IN JAIL NOW. Festive Ed Hubbell Charged With Stealing Another Man's Unfaithful Wife. The erstwhile station agent of Portal, Ed Hubbell, is occupying quarters in the county jail, but as he isn't saying a word it is hard to tell whether he is pleased or displeased with his present position. It is believed that the young man will go down to Sapsy county, where he will answer to the charge of adultery.

During the afternoon Peterson returned, but his wife was absent, and the information was conveyed to him by his children that Mrs. Peterson and Hubbell had dressed in the morning, and that they were going for a walk. Peterson watched and waited, but the watching and waiting was in vain. The next morning the woman was seen in the street, and she was followed by Peterson, who started after the fugitives. He had a hard time to follow her, but he finally caught up with her on a hill and led her on a wild and romantic chase. They were followed to Salt Lake, Portland and a number of other western cities, but they always managed to get away. At last the search was abandoned and the officer returned home.

The husband, who was angry and homesick, came upon the fugitive on the morning after they had returned to his home. He was surprised to find that the woman was still with him, and he was very angry. He was very angry, and he was very angry.

Not so that After All. E. V. Wood, of Meeker's Range, Allegheny county, Pa., in speaking to a traveling man of Chamberlain's medicine said: "I recommend them above all others.
