

CAN'T CATCH THE FARMERS

Western Agriculturalists Would Not Accept Free Coinage Theories.

EXPLANATION OF A NEBRASKA DEMOCRAT

Hon. J. Sterling Morton Expresses His Opinion Freely About the Policy of His Party at Home—Why They Reject the Idea.

WASHINGTON BUREAU OF THE BEE, 513 FOURTEENTH STREET, WASHINGTON, D. C., APRIL 15.

"Yes, I suppose the action of Nebraska democrats in their state convention the other day, when they turned down a free coinage plank by a large majority, was a great surprise in the east, where the idea appeared to prevail that the democrats of my state were simply a pack of fools."

These were the words of ex-Governor J. Sterling Morton, one of Nebraska's most distinguished democrats, employed in describing to Tus Bee correspondent today his opinion of the sentiment on the free coinage of silver question in the west.

He said further in his conversation today: "The democrats as well as other level-headed men in my state were a surprise to you, and our farmers want nothing out but for value for their products. They don't want money worth less than a dollar for any purpose."

"What is your opinion as to how Iowa stands upon the subject of free coinage?"

"Iowa," said Governor Morton, "is stronger against free coinage than is Nebraska. The leading men of both parties in both states oppose free coinage and both states are overwhelmingly against free coinage. Why, I do not know a man in Nebraska over 50 years old who favors free coinage of silver."

"Is there much interest taken in free coinage at this time in Nebraska?"

"No, not half as much as there was a few months ago. The farmers were the ones to be caught by free coinage. It was proposed to give them silver for value for their products, but they would not buy it. They soon learned that whenever they got two metals in circulation as money the baser goes into their hands, into the hands of the common people, and the better metal goes into the pockets of the miners and the foreigners. If we had free coinage, Europe would buy all we had to sell, pay us in silver and soon we'd have nothing but a depreciated currency. Our people have soon learned that familiar scriptural admonition, 'By whatsoever you mete it out will be meted to you again.'"

"Will the democrats again join the alliance in Nebraska and return the demo-alliance members to the house now here?"

"No, the democrats have had enough of political capons. I do not believe either of our two alliance members of congress will be returned."

Governor Morton believes the farmers have grown weary of political bombast and that they will prefer to vote for men sound upon finance and other practical issues rather than for men who support theories only.

Nebraska's Cereal Production.

The figures which were reached by the census office a few days ago concerning the cereal production of Nebraska were as much of a surprise to Mr. John Hyde of that state, who is in charge of the division having supervision of those statistics, as they were to anybody else, the corn crop exceeding by 60,000 bushels the estimate of the Department of Agriculture. Ten counties in the southeastern part of the state produced as much corn in 1879, forty-three counties each raised from 2,000,000 to 3,000,000 bushels of corn. Grape county standing at the head with 8,848,165 bushels. Kearney county led in the production of wheat, Fillmore in that of oats and Otoe in barley.

The average yield per acre of the ten different crops was as follows: Barley, 23.6; buckwheat, 70.1; corn, 33.4; oats, 29.16; rye, 13.3; and wheat 13.23 bushels. Hail is reported as having destroyed the crop in portions of Boone, Buffalo, Cheyenne, Garfield, Greely and Red Willow counties. The average yield per acre in new counties in the west end of the state is somewhat low or the general state averages, gratifying as they are, would have been still higher. The increase in the acreage and production of wheat is even more remarkable than that of corn, being upward of 500 per cent. Mr. J. M. Hyatt of Alma is in charge of the cereal investigation under the direction of Mr. Hyde, both being Nebraska men. The state may be sure it will not suffer at their hands. Nebraska will stand at least fifth and possibly fourth in rank among the great cereal producing states of the union in the present census.

Defenders of the Nation in Want.

Senator Manderson has received a list of premiums and medals from the Grand Army of the Republic and from Farragut Post, Grand Army of the Republic of Lincoln, against the passage of any appropriation money for the entertainment of visitors to the Grand Army of the Republic annual encampment here next fall. They hold that there is no appropriation for the honorably discharged union soldiers who are unable to get pensions from congress although suffering from want, and that this precedent of making appropriations for private purposes should not be made, that the money had better be applied to the amelioration of needy soldiers, and that the bill is in violation of the many courses of Senator Paddock in opposing the appropriation. This bill, having passed the senate before the receipt of these medals, is now in the hands of the senator who can give them point or force unless they are returned to the posts for transmission to the appropriate house committee or send them direct to Representative Bryan. The bill in which this appropriation appears is on the speaker's desk in the house. The bill appropriating for the District of Columbia, of which Holman of Indiana has charge. The measure will soon be called up from the speaker's desk for consideration. The amendments, one of which is the Grand Army of the Republic provision, and when the bill reaches the floor the amendments will be made of the resolutions forwarded to the Nebraska senator, provided it pleases Representative Bryan to do so.

Miscellaneous.

Assistant Secretary Chandler today modified the decision of the commission on the land case of James B. Holmes against William H. V. Dillon, from McCook. The commission held Dillon's homestead entry for record subject to Holmes' right to make final proof on his filing. Assistant Secretary Chandler holds that Holmes has the prior and better right to the land and that Dillon's final proof should be rejected and his entry cancelled. He reversed the decision in the relinquishment contest of Erastus S. Turner against Ellsworth D. Paine and Christian Voss, from Chadron, holding that Turner's entry shall remain intact.

DEEMING'S BLOODY RECORD

Five More Brutal Murders Have Been Traced to the English Fiend.

DETAILS OF HIS DOINGS IN AUSTRALIA

Women Fall Easy Victims to His Suave Manners—Great Excitement in the Colonies Over the Revelations Following His Arrest.

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL., April 15.—Sidney Deeming and Melbourne papers received here show that nothing since the early days of the settlement of West Australia has so stirred the colony as has the discovery of Albert Deeming's murder of his wife and subsequent developments. All business was stopped at every place through which Deeming passed on his way to Melbourne. All classes of people turned out to look at the criminal.

The cruel and mangled body of a woman was found in a populous suburb of Windsor, five miles east of Melbourne, March 5, and three weeks later Deeming was in custody, charged with the murder. The last occupant of the house was a man who gave the name of Drew, and he disappeared suddenly. He complained of the leaky condition of the walls of the house, and told the landlord that he was a practical man and if he bought some cement he would patch up the walls himself. He cemented his wife up in one of the walls. Drew was apparently of sporting proclivities. He dressed in the height of fashion, was bedecked with diamonds and carried himself with the air of a lord. He was traced to the steamship Kaiser Wilhelm, where he was identified as Albert Williams, who was accompanied by his wife and two children, and who had served a sentence at Darlinghurst for larceny.

Eventually the record of the man, under the names of Deeming, Baron Swanson, Drew, Williams and Lawson was laid bare to the world. He was traced by the police to the south Cross mine in the Yielagara gold field, West Australia, where he was working as an engineer and was at the time furnishing a house in anticipation of his marriage to Miss Kounsefeld. Two latter's father was a tradesman who died some years ago leaving a widow and children. At the same time Kounsefeld became engaged to Deeming's sister who was returning from a visit to her brother at Broken Hill and to her sisters at Bathurst. She was a country girl of 19 and never doubted the sincerity of Deeming's motives. Her sister was so taken with the alleged braggart that she readily gave her consent to the match.

While Deeming was at the mine he wrote his unsuspecting fiancée constantly, and one of his letters under date of February 8 said he was in trouble, having had one of his bags stolen from his cabin with $100 worth of jewelry in it. Further on he writes: "I must put tell you, dear, what I have done since our marriage. As soon as you get here I will put an advertisement in the paper, which I have sent you, by which I have been appointed managing engineer at 25 per week with a house for six months, and 25 shillings per week in the future. Besides this I expect to make $5 per week. Soon as you get this letter, dear, send me a wire and let me know whether you can come at once. I will have a carriage for you and everything prepared for our marriage on your arrival. Do not forget to bring your mother of a fat and good husband and wife, why not let it be at once. Please send me Sydney papers and Melbourne if you can get them. Now, dear, with love to sister, I must conclude. From your ever loving and affectionate, ALBERT."

It has not been established that Deeming is the notorious "Jack the Ripper," but five more brutal murders have been traced to him and the evidence thus far gathered points to him as the Whitechapel fiend.
