MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., May 27.- [Special Telegram to THE BEE. |-Omaha and Minncapotis played off the postponed game from April 19 today, and the Rowes won by better field work. Haudiboe started in to pitch but was knocked out of the box in the fourth inning and Vickery was substituted. He pitched great ball, and his lucky bome run drive virtually won the game. Vickery was fined ten simoleons by Jack McQuaid and warned that he would be taken out of the game if he didn't behave himself.

The batting of Newman, Graham and Sheibeck was the feature white Bobby Westlake and Dixon both caught beautiful games. Sheibeck's work at short saved many base

Hard on the Pitchers.

The locals got three runs in the second inning on two bases on bails and Graham's drive over the fence of the first ball pitched. In the third two runs were scored, but stopic base-running prevented any more. Newman made a triple and West was given his base. Newman was caught between third and home, while West stole second Katz went out from the infield. Parrott hit for two cushions, and Hayes muffed Dixon's fly. Carroll died easy.

In the fourth, the locals practically batted Handiboe out of the box. four singles netting two runs. Vickery, with his wind-the-clock motion, went in and won the game, only three hits being made off his delivery, Carroll driving the ball over the sence in the Swartzel was effective for two innings, but for the remainder of the game Rowe's men batted nim all over the lot. A home run by Hayes, a base on balls and two singles in the third gave the visitors three runs. Three more buttons were gathered in the fourth by a hit by pitcher and three consecutive singles. Two hits were made in the fifth, but good fielding kept them from scoring.

Vickery Fooled 'Em. In the sixth the game was won. With two out as a result of a double play Hayes was given his base. The grand stand offered to bet that Vickery wouldn't hit the ball, while little Westlake asserted that be would smash it over the fence. Vickery verified West-lake's prediction by making a home run and ticing the score. Then Shelbeck laced out a double, Gilks hit to Graham and Papa West tangled him-self up while Sheibeck tore across the plate with what proved to be the winning run Visner got to third in the seventh and Shei peck to second in the eighth, but they couldn't get around. The two clubs play again tomorrow. The locals hope to break even, as they have pounded both Darby and Handiboe out of the box. Score: MINNEAPOLIS.

New York, May 27 .- The rumored conference given out to be held at the Fifth Avenue hotel by the advocates of Biaine's nomination has been abandoned, so far as a formal conference is concerned. Confusion prevailed among the political leaders and the appearance of a large gathering was alously avoided. It is nevertheless understood that the plan by which it is hoped to capture the Minneapolis convention for Blaine has been decided on. It is stated that every effort will be made to force Biaine's nomination, but that he will not be consulted as to whether be will permit his name to be Word has been sent to the faithful that the most pronounced supporters of Mr. Blaine among the Minneapolis delegates shall cast a vote for their favorite on the first ballot. The balance of the uninstructed vote will be thrown to favorite sons, and the filibustering will be kept up until it is definitely settled that a nomination is impossible. Then, when all hope of nominat ing Harrison or settling on any other candidate is abandoned, Blaine will be called on as the only person to break the deadlock and be will be nominated with a hurrah. This is the alleged program.

Will Confer at Minneapolis.

Of the expected anti-Harrison conference the Tribune says: "A great deal has been written of a conference of party leaders which it was said would be held before Mr. Blaine's departure. No such meeting was held, either will one be called in this city. The plan was considered and Mr. Clarksor favored such a conference that the situation could be discussed fully and freely by rep-rentative men of the party from all parts of the country. But this was proposed without the slightest reference to Mr. Blaine's pres-ence here. When Mr. Clarkson reached Washington, he found it would be impossi ble to get up such a meeting. Many of those who wanted to attend could not come and so who wanted to attend could not come and so it was decided to postpone it until the leaders gather at Minneapolis. Then all the states will be reresented and a conference will be heid that will be attended by almost every prominent leader of the party. This meeting will be held in all probability June 4, at the West hotel.

Chairman Clarkson is expected here today.

Mrs. Blaine's Ambition. Ex-Governor Ames, it was stated, had an interview with Mr. Blaine. A Tribune reporter saw Mr. Ames and he said he had met Mr. Blaine casually and bad a short talk with him. "In that short conversation," he said, "politics were not mentioned."
"Do you think he would accept?" was

"Mr. Depew told me vesterday that he understood that Mrs. Blaine was anxious to have her husband accept, and he considered that as pretty good evidence that she thinks him strong enough to endure the campaign." Depew Thinks It's Harrison.

The Times prints the following: Chauncey M. Depew's attention was called yesterday afternoon to a published statement that Mr. Blaine had reconsidered his "I-will-not-be-a-candidate" letter to Mr. Clarkson, and was now willing to accept the nomination was now willing to accept the nomination for the presidency.

"Well, I spent an hour and a quarter with Mr. Blaine yesterday," said Mr. Depew, "and he did not talk that way to me. I don't think that there will be any such message sent from Blaine to the convention."

"Do you still adhere to your opinion that Mr. Harrison will be nominated?"

"Yes, I am still of that opinion," said Mr. Depew, and after a slight pause he con-Depew, and after a slight pause he con-tinued: "I would be a Blaine man if he were a candidate, but he has not placed himself in a position where he can be so considered. If the convention nominates him it will have to take the risk of his declining. I do not be-lieve that Blame will accept if nominated." In reply to a question as to whether Mr.

Biaine's physical condition would permit him to enter on the strain of a presidential campaign, Mr. Depew said: "He certainly looked well enough yesterday." President Harrison Talks. The World this morning prints an interview with President Harrison held by its Washington correspondent in which the president is reported to have said: "I do not believe that individual disap-pointments will control the convention at

Minneapolis. The president never appeared in better physical health than when, seated in his cool, pleasant cabinet room at the white house, he expressed his feelings as regards the republican convention to make a nomination for the presidency. President Harrison is always calm and judicial when discussing public questions. On the present occasion, when, in accord with a request of the correspondent, the president explained his own position as regards the nomination, his manner was peculiarly earnest and impressive, indicating deep feeling. He continued:

Disappointments Will Not Control. "I am too well acquainted with the meaning of the office of president of the United States not to understand the importance of the work to be done at Minneapolis. For myself, I am not, to use a homely expression, a young robin with a widely open mouth ready to catch everything that comes. I have spent more than three very active years in the discharge of my public duties, during which period of time I have acted conscientionsly and solely out of regard for my con-ception of the exigencies of the public serv-ice. I have made appointments as nearly as I could in accordance with my views of what was fitting. Of course there have been disappointments. Disappointments sometimes ause discontent and discontent may manifest itself openly."

It was at this point that President Harrison uttered the epigrammatic sentence that leads this dispatch: "I do not believe that individual disappointments will control the convention at Minneapolis."

He Could a Tale Unfold.

"Were I disposed," continued the president, "to explain how many of these disap-pointments and the subsequent discontent have occurred, the narrative would be interesting, yes, very interesting. Of course I deeply regret that individual disappoint ments have occurred, but I suppose that such are inevitable. I do not hesitate to say that certain things have happened that I feel deeply, especially when any one has belittled the plans that have been carried out, or tried to place the credit upon others. I think, aside from political considerations, the members of the opposition party here are very well contented with the administration of the executive department. In foreign affairs I have frequently called on democrats for counsel. I have availed myself of the opinions of such men as Senator Morgan and Mr. Biount of Georgia, and others. I have en-deavored to treat business subjects from a

No Announcement of Candidacy. "Mr. President, in view of the recent pub lications, do you now announce your candi-dacy for re-election?" The president replied with emphasis: "I have never announced myself a candidate and I do not now. I did not in 1888 before the Chirago convention." As if to accentuate what ne said the presidest repeated: "I make no such announce-ment." Then he said: "The convention at Minneapolis will assemble and take its own action. I am aware that I have been critiaction. I am aware that I have been criticised for not calling on my friends and others for their support, but I have been disinclined to an and my feelings have under gone no change. My public and private records are known to the people, and whatever they wish will be manifested at Minneapolis. If the people, having in consideration the manner in which I have conducted the presidency, desire me, I presume they will signify their wishes. Meanwhile I have not, neither will I procasim my candidacy. There is an aphorism, you know," said the president smiling, "that the office should seek the man, and not the man seek the office."

Likes to Feel the Public Pulse. The president referred incidentially to his

THAT ALLEGED GRANT LETTER.

Explanations from Editor of Columbus Dispatch-How He Became Possessed of It. New York, May 27.-Mr. W. D. Brickell, proprietor of the Columbus Evening Dispatch, was seen at the Fifth Avenue hotel today, and in regard to the letter recently published, purporting to be from General Grant to Roscoe Conkling, relating to the atter's effort to make General Grant a candidate for the presidency a third time, said: "Last May Mr. George Shepard Page of 69 Wall street, New York, visited Columbus as a guest of Mr. Ernest MacMillan, president of the Columbus & St. Louis Gas company. During his stay in Columbus, he was a frequent visitor at the Dispatch office, and during one of his calls showed in the office a letter which he claimed was an original and genuine one from General Grant to Roscoe Conkling. Those who were in the office recall having seen the letter, and as near as all could indge, from the signatures of Grant under his picture, concluded that the letter was genuine.

"Mr. Page allowed a copy of the letter to be made, but insisted that it should not be published at that time.

"When asked how he came by the letter, Mr. Page replied: 'By a combination of luck, strategy and questionable methods,' and that was the one reason why he did not want it made public at that time. He added that if it was ever published the public would con-demn the questionable methods employed. The letter was copied and handed back to Mr. Page, and the copy put away and almost forgotten, until my return from New York, when in looking for some other papers, I came across it. As Mr. Page was now dead, I thought there could be no objection to the letter being made public, and without a thought as to its political bearing, I concluded that it should be published to round out the life of General Grant. No politicians were consulted in regard to its publication and as for Mr. Forsker, he knew nothing about it. Mrs. Page, now living at Summit N. J., distinctly remembers her nusband's showing the letter. She is now searching among his papers to find it. If there was any forgery we did not know it. We took the letter for what it was worth, but think it was genuine."

INDIANA INDEPENDENTS.

They Put a Full State Ticket in the Field-Their Platform. Indianapolis, Ind., May 27 .- The state convention of the people's party was held today with about 800 delegates present. The report of the committee on resolutions was read and a Randolph county delegate read a minority report on the temperance question, which created an uproar. The chairman of the committee on resolutions stated that nine members of the committee had opposed a prohibition plank and four favored it. He urged the party to be leaders, not followers. By an immense majority the temperance plank was excluded from the platform.

The financial plank demands a na tional currency, safe, sound and flexible, issued by the general government only as a full legal tender, and that without the use of banking corporations; a just, equitable and efficient means of distribution direct to the people; demands the free and unlimited coinage of silver; condemns President Har-rison for calling an international monetary conference and inviting other nations to assist us in fixing the value of silver, declaring it an effort to demonetize the silver dollar by an international agreement. A graduated in come tax is demanded.

The convention nominated the following ticket: Governor, Leroy Templeton; lieu-tenant governor, Dr. J. A. Houser; secretary of state, Jesse L. Hobson; state auditor, Lewis Caston; treasurer, Townsend Coke; attorney general, E. H. MRS. IRVINE'S PART IN THE TRAGEDY

Estimates of the Two Men-De-

LINCOLN. Neb., May 27.- [Special Telegram to THE BEE. |-The excitement over the tragedy which occurred in the dining room of the Hotel Laucoin yesterday morning has practically died away, although the matter still forms almost the sole topic of conversation. It is easily to be seen that the tide of public sentiment is rapidly setting in for Irvine, although the dead man's friends are numerous. The latter make no attempt to deny his guilty connection with the woman whose disregard for her marriage vows led to the tragedy, but they publicly assert that her liaison with Montgomery was not her first indiscretion. Attorney Doty of the firm of Atkinson & Doty, retained to assist the prosecution, stated to THE BEE this morning that when the case came to trial they were prepared to prove that Mrs. Irvine had been intimate with other men before her affair with Montgomery and that they would introduce letters and telegrams to prove that Montgomery has tried to avoid her. If the attorneys on both sides of the case succeed in introducing all the evidence they now claim to have in their possession the trial will be as sensational in its features as the celebrated trial of Monday McFarland for the murder of John Sheedy a year aco.

He Lived a Tragedy.

The story of W. H. Irvine's life for the past ten days is fraught with unusual interest. A week ago today he started east from his home in Sait Lake City to join his wife in Chicago. When he began his journey he had implicit faith in his wife. Not a suspicion of her guilt had reached him. He arrived in Lincoln Sunday afternoon at 2:15, intending to stop over with a friend until the next day. As he left the depot to waik to his friend's home he met an acquaintance on the street who thoughtiessly poured into his ear the first intimation he had over heard against his wife's honor. Without waiting to hear more he turned back to the Burlington depot, and two hours later was again speeding eastward to learn the truth from the lips of her whom he had always cherished.

This is the story told to irvine by the man who met him on the street: The man referred to had himself been a passenger on the train to Chicago early last February. With another friend they passed through the train in search of acquaintances. They found Mrs. Irvine. At Omaha Mr. Montgomery boarded the train and later joined Mrs. Irvine. The four sat together. A deck of cards was produced and the tedlum of the of cards was produced and the tedium of the journey beguiled by a number of games of high five. Mr. Montgomery and Mrs. Ir vine were in the best of spirits and seeme to enjoy each other's company. Such was the story told Mr. Irvine. It was not much of a story, but it led to yesterday morning's tragedy. From Her Own Lips.

From Her Own Lips.

Reaching Chicago Monday, Mr. Irvine at once sought his wife and questioned her closely as to her journey to Chicago with Montgomery. Little by little the womau related the story, reluctantly admitting facts in answer to her husband's questions, until at last the whole terrible truth lay bare. Mrs. Irvine confessed that she had met Montgomery on the train at Omaha; that together they journeyed to Chicago; that they occupied a suite of rooms at the Curtis hotel occupied a suite of rooms at the Curtis hote in Chicago, the rooms connecting by a door; that on February 6 she was seduced. This story Mrs. Irvine told her husband in the presence of her mother. Then her con-fession was reduced to writing and signed, with her mother's name as a witness to the

The wronged husband lost no time in re turning to Lincoln. He gave up a pleasure trip which his wife was to share with him and with the written and attested proofs of her infidelity in his pocket took the first train back to the home of her betrayer. He arfirest sought his attorney. Not finding him he walked down the street to his former home where he and his wife had lived so happily. It may be that the sight of a once happy home, now ruined and blasted forever, nerved him to do the awful deed for which he now occupies a felon's cell. Waiting for His Prey. At any rate he proceeded at once to the Hotel Lincoln, where he knew the man he sought was to be found. Ascending to the dining room he looked over the room half filled with early risers, but not finding Mont-gomery he walked the length of the cor-ridor, entered the parior and sat down.

Those who saw him state that he picked up Those who saw him state that he picked up a newspaper and began to read.

Again he approached the dining room and again his eyes scanned the faces seated at the table. This time the man he looked for was there. With one step forward he was face to face with him who had wronged him, and there with a hand approach to steed the seatest and the steed to see the seatest and the seatest and the steed the seatest and and there, with a hand nerved to steadiness by desperate resolve, he lifted his weapon and an instant later two reports rang out and death was the portion of the man who had half arisen from his seat with a hand extended in welcome to his slayer. Coroner's Inquest Continued. The adjourned session of the coroner's in quest assembled this morning. Corone Crim stated that last evening he had made more careful examination of the wounds which caused Montgomery's death. Im bedded in the left ventricle of the dead man' heart he found a broken, twisted link of the watch chain which had been broken by the builet. After leaving the broken link in the heart the bullet passed on through and lodged near the spinal column. It was this wound which caused death, the other not being necessarily fatal. B. D. Smith of Kearney was the first witness called, but his testimony developed nothing that has not already been told.

C. W. Barney of this city testified that C. W. Barney of this city testified that after the shooting he ran to Montgomery's assistance, and asked him if he had any last words to say. The dying man made no response, and evidently did not recognize him. C. C. Upham took the parers from the hand of the man who did the shooting and identified him as W. H. Irvine. identified him as W. H. Irvine.
Chief of Police Otto exhibited the weapon used by Irvine and stated that when searched Irvine had $382.63 in his pockets, besides five certified checks for $500 each.
Officer McWilliams, who placed Irvine

quite a discussion arose over the advisability of demanding from Irvine's attorneys the papers taken from him when he was placed under arrest. Several of the jurors insisted that the papers should be piaced in evidence. The attorneys representing the state held a whispered consultation at the end of which District Attorney Snell stated to the jury that it was neither necessary nor desirable that the papers be turned over to them, but that the evidence admitted that one of the documents contained a confession from Mrs. documents contained a confession from Mrs. Irvine and that the confession was dated since last Monday. With this explanation the jury retired.

In the jury room the same question arose In the jury room the same question arose and for several bours the jury hung on this point. It was not until 4 o'clock that a verdict was finally determined upon. It was of usual form and to the effect that C. E. Montgomery came to his death by gun shot wounds inflicted by a pistol in the hands of W. H. Irvine.

The funeral of C. E. Montgomery took place this afternoon from the residence of his sister, Mrs. B. H. Polk, at the corner of Sixteenth and L. streets. The services were conducted by Rev. E. H. Curtis, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, and were of simple but impressive character. The remains were taken to the deceased's former home at Petersburg, Ind., where they will be buried beside those of his father and his wife. The funeral carriage was followed from the residence to the Burlington depot by a large number of friends. The presidents of the several national banks of the city officiated as pall bearers. The remains were accompanied to Indiana by C. W. Chambers and R. N. Howell and their wives, both of whom are sisters of the deceased. The aged mother of the deceased. The aged mother of the deceased. Irvine's attorneys have persistently refused to give out the papers which all are so eager to see, but they admit that the outline of the confession as given in The Bee is correct even as to the dates and The Bee is correct even as to the dates and places. Attorney Strode, who was today retained by the defense, has charge of the case, and stated to The Bee representative this evening that from this time on he should decline to discuss the case and would studicusly refrain from rushing into print with statements in regard to the affair. Attorney Abbott, who is also connected with the defense, is confined to his room by sickness and cannot be seen.
