No Important Changes Brought Out During the Week.

THE MOVEMENT OF GOODS VERY FAIR

There is not very much of importance to way regarding the trace situation, conditions remaining very much the same as detailed a week ago. The movement of goods in a jobbing way from this point is fair on an average, some lines being reported quite good, while others are slow. One thing may be asserted with a considerable degree of positiveness, and that is, taking into consideration the general conditions prevailing in this territory, trade is all that could be expected. The weather clerk appears to bold the key to the situation, and will hold it for the balance of the season. During the early spring when the crops were being freely marketed and money was plenty in the pockets of the farmers, the retail trade of the country was stimulated to an extent that led many merchants to stock up heavily with goods. With the coming of the period of almost continuous rainfail, menacing the season's crops, this tendency toward literal buying was superseded by a spirit of caution which has taken strong hold upon the trade. Merchants are not likely to become free buyers again until they have every assurance that there can be no crop failure For this reason it is not surprising that trade can be quoted as only fair, in fact it is a subect for congratulation that it is not posi-brightened visibly during the past six days In the western part of the state all reports agree that thus far everything is looking well and the farmers have promise of an abund and the farmers have bromise of an adulta-ant crop. In the eastern portion of the state, where there has been a heavier fail of rain, and where the soll is less calculated to ensure excessive moisture, the farm work is progressing well and the farmers themis progressing well and the farmers themselves are apparently sanguine of getting in a reasonably large acreage of corn with fair prospects of growing a crop. This would seem to show that Nebraska is in a fair way to grow another good crop of corn, and the prospects are certainly better than they have been on some previous years when good crops have resulted.

There is also another feature to the situation, which hodes good to Nebraska. All tion which bodes good to Nebraska. All reports agree that it is practicelly impossible to grow anything like a full crop in the other corn states and the consequent shortage in this cereal will enable Nebraska farmers to obtain unusually high prices for what corn they grow. This is the basis for the assertion heard so frequently of late among business men that the prospects for Nebraska are better than for any other western state.

The retail trade of Omaha is fair, though nothing has occurred to put into it any great amount of life.

The coming mouth gives greater promise of activity in this direction owing to the number of attractions that will be in the number of attractions that will be in the city which will bring in many visitors. It is also anticipated that the commencement of public improvements, such as paving, etc., will be of material advantage to the retail trade, as it will put into circulation

The produce markets have averaged south steady during the past week and no especially important feature has been brought forward. While prices have shown little fluctuation, they have at the same time been fairly strong and upon the whole satisfactory.

cows, $2.50 to $3.90 for stockers and feeders and from $1.50 to $4.55 for dressed beef and shipping steers.

Lower prices for hogs were established today. Sales were slow at from $4.50 to $4.57 for common to prime heavy and medium weights and from $4.55 to 4.75 for light. This is a decline from Friday's quotations of from 55 to 10c and a decline for the week of from 15c to 20c. The supply, including Friday's leavings, amounted to about 35.000 head, which is an exceptionally large supply for the last day of the week, but at the reduced prices, sellers made a good clearance. From $4.55 to $4.80 bought the bulk of the hogs.

Traders Talk.

Chicago, Iil. June 4—Counselman & Day to Cockrell Bros.: The wheat market opened with a rush of shorts to cover July at 85c. The trading was spasmodic land prices governed rather by actions of large individual operators than by outside news, except such as were related to weather and crop conditions. The range was % each way from opening and closing prices. Exports were $75.00 bushols of wheat and flour, and we believe that the amount consumed by the interformilis will cause a larger decrease in next week's Bradstreet's than the trade really expects from present indications: 85c will be a good buying. Spot corn and oats were excited by the bad showing in Prime's crop bulietin and advices. Buying by shorts was savage and longs sold freely to realize profits. Anew crop of small buils are buying at the advance and these with the short interest considerably reduced make us expect that a few days of seasonable weather would cause a lower market. Provisions are weak and puckers are loading the public up with product made from the large current receipts of hogs, when July corn was $8c and ribs $6.55. Today July corn was $8c and ribs $6.55. to come later unless there is an immediate change in the weather. July opened at 86½c. Soid as high as 87c. and closed at 86½c. The growing crop of winter wheat is critical, and late uninterrupted fine weather from this on late uninterrupted fine weather from this on may repair some of the damage, but in any case we cannot have a full crop, and with a moderate one the price is not high. The wheat trade is erratic and it is wise to take profits. We still believe in higher prices and recommend purchases on all breaks. The corn pit has been one of excitement from the opening to the close. July opened at 50 and closed at 50 as low as 51c. The near future will be influenced by weather. But with our light reserves and the many contingencies to the plant already in the ground and to be put in, it is safe to purchase on all breaks. Oats have shown more strength to lay. The country have been good buyers and are expected to be heavy buyers for the next week or two. In provisions there was a fair business doing, considerable realizing.

for the next week or two. In provisions there was a fair business doing, considerable realizing.

Chicago, Ill., June 4.—Kennett, Hopkins & Co. to S. A. McWhorter: The oversold condition of the wheat market has been manifest today. Local longs have generally realized, but longs don't seem to come out even on very sharp railies. Apprehension of crop damage is becoming more general and apparently with more foundation. Rust has already made its appearance in Illimols and Indiana. The weather service predicts warmer weather with severe local showers and this will aggravate the injury. The government report next week can hardly fail to be emphatically bullish and if the trying weather should hang on until that report is issued the market might go much higher. It is a critical time and operators will do well to exercise unusual caution. Corn and outs continue to advance on the unseasonable weather and there seems little prospect of a material reaction until conditions show a marked improvement Reliable advices from every county show that not 4) percent of the corn planting is done in Indiana. But not half in Illinois. The outlook is poor in Missouri and Iowa but good in Kansas and Nebraska. Provisions falied to sympathize with the strength in grain. The receipts of hogs being heavy exercised a depressing influence.

Trading Displayed & Moderate Volume of Business Yesterday.

New York, June 4. The stock market dis-played a moderate volume of business today. out the animation was again at the expense of values, the bears in the marked absence of organized support becoming aggressive, and their operations resulted in material losses among the stocks which received particular attention from them. These were principally Burlington. Rock Island, Northern Pacific preferred, Lackawanna, Sugar and Missouri Kansas & Texas. The strong points were held without making any material improvement. There was considerable encouragement to the bulls at the opening in the shape of buy nz apparently for London account, but, as usual apparently for London account, but, as usual of late, upon the appearance of foreign buying selling begins with more vigor, and while it is preposterous to say that no long stocks come upon the market, the proposit at force in the declines established is undoubtedly the short sales of the bears.

The general list as a general rule was dull, as usual, and the firm opening was succeeded by a drooping temper in sympathy with the movement among the leaders. The close was fairly notive and weak at about the lowest prices of the day.

Government bonds were dull and steady. The Post says: There is perhaps no occasion for emphasizing the condition of the federal treasury in relation to general finances, but the situation deserves notice, and especially when all unpleasant features as do exist will surely be magnified in the course of the presidential cambies.

paign. At the opening of yesterday the treasury gold balance, in excess of outstanding and the $100.00 .000 reserve, was $14.743.631. On the ist of May it was $49.00.753. Today it is $14.00.001. The problem of keeping this gold fund above low water mark depends largely on the question whether the government expenditures to date have honestly represented the bilis passed. But there is exactly the point of doubt.

LADIES OF THE TALKING KEY.

Wheatstone Operators Enroute to Minneapolis for Work at the Convention. A crowd of pretty, bright-eyed young women inspected the workings of THE BEE yesterday in addition to taking a tally ho ride to Hanscom park and being entertained at the Hotel Dellone.

The women are enroute to Minneapolis where they will do much of the telegraph work of the republican convention, being a special Wheatstone corps sent from Kansas City to the convention. They are under the fatherly care of Mr. M. D. Wood, manager of the Western Union office at Kansas City, and are traveling in a special car to their destination.

The party was met at the depot by Superintendent J. Dickey, Assistant Superintendent Horton and Manager Umsted of the local office who did the honors and chaperound the party in their tour about the city, In addition to the heads of department a committee from the local office joined the visitors and assisted in entertaining their Misses Carnaby, Athern, Doyle, Urqubart, McElroy and Nicklas.

The following are the members of the corps, upon whom will fall much of the corps, upon whom will fall much of the hard work of assisting in naming the next president: Mrs. M. R. Butts, Misses K. A. Culligan, Maude Hook, A. E. Kengrick, I. M. Miller, Z. Palmer, M. Rhoads, L. A. Smith, Nettie Stuart, E. M. Rogers, S. J. Crawford, Edna Fuller, Lizzie Hulskamp, Katle King, N. M. Miller, Ida McCoy, F. Roper, S. Roughan, Alice Springer, F. Thompson, Katle Crowley, Messrs. STOPPED A SPECIAL MASTER

Judge Hopewell Refuses to Grant a Deficiency Judgment in a Foreclosure.

WAS ATTORNEY AND SPECIAL MASTER TOO

Halt Called on a Practice That Has Beet Carried Too Far-Farmer Ross' Experience as a Merchant Prince-Other Court Doings.

Some days ago Tue Bee let the public on to some of the inside facts regarding special master commissioners and the manner in which some of them handled foreclosures.

Most of the reputable attorneys declared that the facts were as The Ben stated, and that in many instances the special master commissioner was a fraud of the first water. Those attorneys who do the special master not and make it their business declared in the most emphatic terms that THE BES willfully lied and that the articles upon the subject were inspired by malicious persons. A little incident occurred in Judge Hope well's court yesterday, which showed that THE BES was correct when it stated that as a

The Bez was correct when it stated that as a rule the special master commissioner was a fraud; that his sales were secretly made and that he was employed directly in the interest of the attorney who had the foreclosure of the mortgage.

On the equity cocket there is a case entitled French against Atkinson. There is nothing remarkable about this title. The case was to secure a deficiency judgment on a foreclosure. But to the history of the case.

Not many moons ago, one Cochran owned a Not many moons ago, one Cochran owned a piece of property in the city. This he sold to Atkinson, taking notes as part rayment, which in turn was sold to French. In due course of time the notes matured, but Atkinson was unable to pay. Then the mortgage was placed in the hands of Cochran for foreclosure. The proceedings were brought and at his request he was appointed special master commissioner. The sale was duly made, but only two or three persons ap-peared, and this same special master com-missioner bid the property in for French for about half of its value, as the appraisement about half of its value, as the appraisement had been fixed beforehand. The next move was for a confirmation of sale, to be followed up by a request for a deficiency judgment by the same man who owned the property, by the same man who was the special master commissioner, by the same man was the attorney for French, and by the same man who bid the property in at the special master commissioner's sale.

Judge Hopewell stated that he had heard considerable complaint about the manne in which special master commissioners had conducted their business and that he should thoroughly investigate the case at bar before allowing the deficiency judgment against Atkinson.

Traded Farm for a Store.

In a petition which covers a score or more of pages, James H. Ross frankly admits that he has been played for a sucker; that he has swallowed the bait, blown in his money against a brace game, and now wants to go back on a trade that he made just three years ago.

In the aforesaid petition the innocent
James avers that on and for a long time prior to May 9, 1889, he was a tiller of the soil up in Dawson, where he tended his cows that lowed upon the bills and his sheep that bleated in the meadows.

One evil day he concluded that he was done with hot winds and grasshoppers that had destroyed his crops. He told his kine this very same thing and then determined that he would become a merchant prince. He did not know how to go about matters to attain this position, but he did not have long to woit, for about that time the defendant Hansom A. Darwer, came along. Darwer was a merchant with a store at Palmer, Merrick county, but he wanted to become a farmer. Ross soon found out what Darwe wanted and at the same time Darwer learned just what was the height of Ross' ambition. The men stail up nights and talked shop and farm. This talk resulted in their changing places, and ere many days Darwer was following the plow on the Ross farm while Ross stood behind the counter waiting to measure off callee to the customers who never came. He waited a long time, and now he has brought a law He alleges that having been a farmer during all the years of his life he did not know anything about the value of goods; that his farm was worth $3,000; that the oats, corn, barley and cattle upon the place were worth considerable more. Then he says that prior to that store venture he had a reputatio which has been ruined so far as his credit is concerned. Such being the case, Mr. Ross affirms that it will require $9,040 to make him as good a man as he was when he left the farm, and it is to recover this amount that he has brought suit.

In the Federal Court.

The federal jury in the Leighty case, which was tried on Wednesday and Thursday, came in yesterday morning, after having been out thirty-six hours. The jurymen informed Judge Dundy that they could not reach an agreement in the case.

They disagreed as to the evidence touching the number of postal clerks upon the mail train in addition to the accused. Whether or not there were others at work in the mail car between Lincoln and Hastings every day on which the decoy letters were taken up was a question upon which the jury had not been fully informed or convinced.

Judge Dundy informed the jury that the decumentary proofs in the case could all be examined again. The jury also disagreed as to the statement on the part of the presecu-tion that the sheet of paper upon which one of the alleged Leighty letters was written had been torn from a tablet found in Leighty's possession.

The jurors were permitted to make a careful examination of the letter and the tablet and all the documentary proof in the case in the presence of the court. The tablet and sheet of paper were carefully scrutinized under a magnifying glass by the jurors. Another question the jurors wanted more thoroughly solved was whether or not Postal Inspector Hall was on the train every time that the letters were "nipped."
There appeared to be only three of the jurors whose minds were not made up with regard to the matter.

After looking over the evidence carefully the jury again retired to debate and decide upon the proper verdict to be presented.

A jury in the criminal court has found that in stealing twolve hens and a grindstone William Hike was guilty of burglary; that he, in company with his brother and Frank Nice, in the nighttime entered a barn at Albright and stole the property. This does not end the prosecution, as the two men who were with him will be placed upon trial next week.

In the conviction of Hike the people of South Omana and Albright feel well pleased. They claim that it breaks up the gang that has terrorized that portion of Douglas and the northern portion of Sarpy county for years. All of the men, they claim, are hard citizens, and a couple of them have done time in the penitentiary.

In the case of Weich against the city of South Omaha the jury returned a verdict yesterday assessing the plaintiff's damage at $2,759. He sued for $5,000, and for a cause of action charged that the city council had ordered the change of grade of a street along which he had property.

In one case a pupil of mine, who did not recite orally during his school course by reason of an infirmity of speech, now speaks readily and easily after a short treatment by Dr. Rivenburgh. The doctor claims that he can wholly cure any case, and I believe he can.
