

in the convention may be, they will be loyal to Harrison throughout.

Senator Washburn of Minnesota said: "It makes it clear that Blaine will accept if given the nomination. I don't know the motive of the resignation, but I think it was due to the treatment of Blaine by the president."

Fellow of California for Harrison.

Senator Felton of California said, after reading the correspondence from Washington: "I don't think it has any significance as a factor in the contest. Whether Blaine is a candidate or not there will be no stampede. It will be Harrison the same as it would have been before."

Hon. John C. New, manager of the Harrison forces, had a brief opinion, but an emphatic one. He said: "I think the resignation will not change anything. It will have no effect. There is no danger in the world of a stampede. We have got the delegates to elect Harrison and we are going to do it. Within a few moments after the reception of President Harrison's acceptance of Mr. Blaine's resignation Senator Wolcott from Colorado was called upon for his views in reference to the sudden change of the political situation."

Senator Wolcott's Talk.

He said:

"It does not change the situation materially, except to accentuate the result which the president in his interview and Secretaries Miller and Foster in their attempted to inflict upon him. His friends have realized for some time that the president sought to aggrandize the effects of the wisdom and sagacity of the secretary of state, but it appears that they only desire to ignore him, but because he did not seem disposed to 'write a letter' every five minutes they saw fit to throw mud. The resignation may be of some help here, as it leaves vacant another office to peddle for Harrison votes. The assistant postmaster general, the chief of the bureau of engraving and printing, and scores of heads of departments fill the lobby and promise office and favors promiscuously, but they are having no effect. Blaine would have 600 votes today on the first ballot. Every train swells the enthusiasm and brings him new support. The only solid Harrison delegation is Indiana. Four years ago the Indiana delegation said that if we would give them Harrison they would ask nothing money nor speakers. They began clamoring for money as soon as Harrison was nominated. They are ready for the same appeal again and their claims carry little weight. It is refreshing to find that one convention is to be held in this country where the office seekers the man. As for Colorado, we are, of course, for Blaine, but the far more important of the same opinion. Harrison could not carry Colorado."

OMAHA PLANNING BALL AGAIN

Rowe's Rustlers Knock the Tar Out of Dad Clarke's Best Gurus.

SOME BEAUTIFUL BATTING INDULGED IN

Singles, Doubles, Threes and Home Runs in Bounteous Plentiful—A Different Tact from That of the Last Two Weeks.

Omaha, 9; Toledo, 4.
Columbus, 4; Kansas City, 3.
Minneapolis, 5; Fort Wayne, 4.

AD CLARKE, whom the millionaires plan ruthlessly to ruin from us, made his debut at Sportsman's park yesterday afternoon as a pitcher for the other fellows.

It was not a success.

His old confederates fell upon him in the opening inning and it was a bit of a smash! bang! until the fracas was over.

Kelly hit him a ball in the sixth that fairly knocked the amalgam out of his molar, after it had been loosened by Shelsieck and Darby, however.

The Boston boys' drive was a clean one out into the northwest corner of the lot, and it netted him four bases.

Shy and the kid were contented with three cushions each.

It looks as if the bleacher who yelled at Dad over in Columbus the other day that he had a pane of glass in his arm, was right. Don't it!

Twelve hits with a total of twenty-two bases and nine big fat runs was the way the Rustlers laid it to him.

The day was a fine one. The force rays of the sun were tempered by a thin strata of gauzy clouds, refreshing breezes blew fitfully across the field and the little dicky birds chirped hilariously.

They were so glad to welcome uncle home. Yet notwithstanding this harmonious condition of things but a moderate crowd was present to see old Dad knocked into a cocked hat.

Rowe's People Played Ball.

Those who remained away will be sorry that morning when they thought of the Rustlers put up an almost flawless game, none of their errors costing a cent, excepting Shelsieck's, which let in a run.

Every man threw all his nerve and bone and sinew into the struggle, and such slugger and such pitcher are seldom met with in this neck of the woods.

Hayes' catching was simply picturesque, and Bob Gilks cavorted in, over and around the bases, which let in a run.

McQuillan's umpiring was a thing of beauty and a joy forever.

Shelsieck and just cut a new swiping and the first ball that came within reach he pasted such a lick that Dad swallowed his run.

A great wad of Yucatan bug enough to have choked a horse!

It was a three-sacker and the grand stand's old slogan, "Hey! hey! hey!" rang on the air for many moments.

Then the Porkchop caught one of Dad's modern slants square over the heart and sent it bustling out toward Jeff Bedford's sign for a couple of more, and everybody was tickled almost to death.

Kelly could only get one down to Clarke, but on his throw-out at first, Bobby ambled to home, Alger, McKinley and Alger, the division in the Illinois, Ohio and Indiana delegations make these delegates quite willing to settle down on a favorite, should the situation warrant it. Alger already has the delegation from his own state. It is said that Culom can have the forty-eight votes of Illinois whenever the contest reaches a state which would indicate the possibility of his selection, but the senator himself is loyal to Harrison, and does not permit any discussion of his availability by his fellow delegates from the Prairie state. Notwithstanding this fact, it is evident that certain of the Illinois delegates are waiting favorable opportunity to start a movement in his favor. In the event of demoralization of both the Blaine and Harrison forces, it is believed that Alger would be the gainer of most of Blaine's strength, while the administration delegates would be divided between Culom and McKinley. A few delegates outside of Illinois are moving toward the idea of electing T. Lincoln, but the suggestion does not arouse any enthusiasm in the Illinois delegation.

McKinley as a Possibility.

McKinley has been agreed upon by the Ohio delegates as chairman of their delegation, and he has been unanimously made chairman of the convention, he might suddenly become a formidable candidate.

The name of Allison is warmly urged by the anti-Blaine delegates of the Iowa delegation. The permanent chairmanship is regarded to be settled, McKinley's choice being concurred on all sides. It is also considered settled that McKinley will be the head of the Ohio delegation. At the meeting of that delegation on Wednesday, ex-Governor Foraker will nominate McKinley for chairman, and there will be no opposition. For temporary chairman there are now two candidates, Langston of Virginia and Horace Porter of New York. Langston is being backed by the Blaine men, and Porter by the Harrison crowd. The contest will be resumed when the national committee meets again on Monday.

A Press Opinion.

The Tribune in the morning will say: What Mr. Blaine's resignation means is for his supporters to say: it makes no difference with the Harrison forces and it is not their business to interpret its action. Of course the action of Mr. Blaine makes his own nomination impossible. His nomination under such circumstances would be an act of folly that the leaders who still urge him will never commit. As they do not want to commit it they will seek to use his name as a cover, but their real design is to defeat the president, and after that the deluge.

WHAT THE SENATORS SAY.

Few Express Opinions and All Are Guarded in Their Language.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 4.—On the senate side there was not a corporal's guard of senators to be found. But of the small number present there were two "dark horses," for some republicans on the house side, who feared a "Kilkenny cat fight" between Harrison and Blaine, had suggested that the republican ticket might be Allison and Aldrich.

Senator Allison was in his committee room when the news came, and Senator Aldrich, by a coincidence, was in his side. Senator Allison did not want to talk for publication, but he is never unwell enough to refuse point blank, so he said that the news was a surprise to him; as much so as it was to anybody. As to the result, he had no opinion to express. Then he told a story, and the moral of that story was that the matter was too important to individual the great principles of party would forward to constant progress.

out an archipelago of pigweed and dogfennel, Kel was shaking hands with uncle at the foot of the grand stand.

And again in the next, and two men were out, just as they were in the two preceding innings.

Nowell let Darby's dust agitator get through his slender but symmetrical limbs. Vick hit safe and Ely allowed one to give him the high, low and there you are!

The kid was in with the ninth ball.

And that was all, for although Vickers stole second and third just as easily as eating short-perry strawcake, not another man ever saw first.

That was only because the boys were tired, however, for your uncle and they could have stood there a month and knocked out singles, doubles and other vegetables as long as Dad felt like handing them to them. And I believe Uncle was right.
