DIXON'S CONFESSION FOUND

Attributes His Conviction to the Prajudice of Army Officers.

HE SAYS CARTER BIT HIM IN THE HAND

The Condemned Man Felt Sorry for Causing an Unpressant Duty for the Marshal

-Grateful for the Sheriff's

Kindnesses

The spirit of Clinton E. Dixon the soldier who was executed at the county jail last Friday, long since passed into the great beyoud, but a confession remains. In that he admitted that he killed Carter, but claimed it was done in self defense. In cleaning out the cell occupied by Dixon Sheriff Bennett found the following letter, which was written by the young man the night before this execution:

"My Dear Gentlemen: I accuse myselt guilty of the staying of John R. Carter, but not in cold blood. I was determined not to let him get the test of me, so I was prepared for him. When I called him out of the quar-ters to dispute our misunderstanding, he didn't give me a show to explain myself. When I said that he was no good he jumped on me and commenced to bite my hand, and when I got my hand out of his mouth i, of course, like anyone else in my position would have done, tried to defend myself. I pulled out my pistol and fired the fatal shot, "God have mercy on him! If he had not bit me we might both have been at peace and liberty at this very moment, but that I leave to the judgment of my omnipresent God, and he is my witness to these words. "It was not justice that brought me to this misfortune, but it was the projudice of the army efficers. Because I was a poor man, without money and without friends, I have to face the consequences like every poor man has to in this elserable world.

"I feel sorry for Mr. Slaughter because I.

know that he regrets this borrible task. God forgive him. I do not bear any ill feeling toward him for fulfilling his duty as a marshal. There will be none of my blood on his bancs. "I also feel thankful to Mr. Bennett, and especially to Mrs. Bennett for the kind and motherly attention that I have received at her hands. I shall never forget her kind sympathy, and may God bless her!" "Tired All the Time," s the complaint of many po or mortals, whe
