Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Barkley Celebrate Their Golden Wedding—Dancing at the Garrison—Other Items of a Local Social Nature.

Forty years last Monday Vincent Barkley and Teresa Stretzer were united in marriage at the Holy Cross Catholic church in Columbus, O., by the then bishop, now Archbishop Purcell of Cincinnati, who came to Columbus by stage from the sea city. On Monday Mr. and Mrs. Barkley celebrated their golden wedding anniversary by a special mass conducted in the honor of Father Corbely, S. J., at St. John's collegiate church, 6.30 o'clock, a. m., where they again partook of the sacred host as they had done upon that eventful day half a century before. With the bride and groom of fifty years ago were the children of this most worthy couple, who gathered in all and also received only communion with their parents, Mrs. Cecelia Burkhard, Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Leary, Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Burkley, Mr. H. V. Burkley, Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Bette, Miss Nellie Burkley. And what is still more pleasant all their children and grandchildren, sixteen in number, live in Omaha with their parents.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Granden, 1839 North Eighteenth street, gave a delightful reception last Friday evening in honor of Mr. Granden's fifty-fifth birthday. Many friends of the family had been invited to assist in the festivities. A delicious dinner was served, which was greatly relished by the guests present.

Mr. Carl Smith and Mrs. E. M. McDonald were married by Rev. Father Hillman, S. J., in the parlor of the Holy Family church, Wednesday afternoon. The wedding was private. After the ceremony a reception dinner was given at the residence of the bride's mother, Mrs. F. M. McDonald.

With the return of the officers from duty at Bellevue the social life of the garrison is taking on a more pleasing aspect, the dancing party at the post ball Friday evening bringing out a host of the garrison officers and their lady friends. There were excellent refreshments served during the evening, the music was captivating, the partners excellent, and the conversation the evening was completely enjoyable.

There were present Colonel and Mrs. Park, Major Hughes, Captain and Mrs. Reilly, Lieutenant and Mrs. Abernethy, Lieutenant and Mrs. Webster, Lieutenant and Mrs. Pickering, Captain and Mrs. Sanson, Captain and Mrs. Waring, Lieutenant and Mrs. Wright, Lieutenant and Mrs. Van Lieu, Major and Mrs. Worth, Mrs. Porter, Captain Crowder, Misses Waring, Leslie, Wrighton, Kimball, McDaniel, Turner, Nightingale, Messrs. Hines, Powell, Will Crary, Whitman, Stockton, Hath, Wilson, Charquart, McGinnis, Charles Wilson, Quay, Baldrige, Parks, Frick.

Etta Lehmann's Law Party. Little Miss Etta Lehmann entertained her friends at a law party Wednesday evening at her home, 543 Park avenue, and the little ones had a most delightful time. After indulging in plays and pastimes, a delicious supper was served consisting of ice cream, cake, and fruits. The table was handsomely decorated with flowers, and the large lawn was illuminated with Japanese lanterns. A magic lantern, showing some very pretty pictures, concluded the evening's entertainment.

Surprised His Brother. In honor of Carl Oehlert's twenty-first birthday, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hunter, 2200 Spencer street, Kountze place, gave a very pleasant party to Mr. Oehlert Wednesday evening, which was a genuine surprise to the young man. A number of the friends of the gentleman were invited, and in which five was played which was followed later by refreshments. Mr. and Mrs. Hunter were assisted by Miss Perie Oehlert, a sister of the particular guest of the evening.

At Iowa's Popular Resort. What inducements are held out for the Three Merchants and Laboring Man. HOTEL BEARS, SPIRIT LAKE, IA., AUG. 11.—Special Correspondence of The Bee.—At the conclusion of that little prose titled Bret Harte's, "A Sappho of Green Springs," the elderly man who married the elderly and care-burdened poetess answering the question as to what she intended doing next, says, with an expressive gesture toward a new-made grave: "I'll rest; that's what she'll do. And that's what we all should do, rest—use Americanism, who, whatever our ancestry may be, get quicksilver in our blood—whether we get it from our peculiar and favored conditions or from the feverish spirit of the age and society in which we live—it is there. The Celt gets it naturally; it is an element of his race, but the descendant of the energetic Germanic race does not escape this influence, whatever it may be, given in the course of one generation, which is a distinct type of the American. And a distinguishing characteristic of this American is that he will not rest; he goes a-plourishing and gives out that he intends to rest, but in doesn't; he chases after pleasure with the same zeal that he puts into his daily toil.

In multiplying our desires, also multiplies our labors in gratifying the same, have pro and pro. As the poetess says: "We are the score, but we will not take a ounce of prevention, complete rest occasionally. We are devastating the race and posterity make the point of duty and endeavor to win back some of the ancestral brass—now becoming so scarce.

Travel a month of Sundays and you cannot find a more beautiful spot. First, there is the Hotel Orleans, a large roomy structure containing 200 rooms, every rock and cranny of which is full at present. From the tower, the view is a wonderful one, embracing prairie towers, all painted a faint rose color, the monotony whereof is relieved by brick shades of green, and window frames and by the green screens.

STRUGGLES OF A BRAVE GIRL.

Amelia E. Barr in New York Letter. I am not inclined to disparage the physical bravery involved in facing bastions and taking cliffs, but I do say that this is not the most difficult side of virtue, and that there are moral victories won in daily life evincing as honorable and enduring courage.

Mattie was the only child of Major John Darley, a man who had done good service in the Mexican war and been rewarded for it by an honorable and lucrative government office.

He lived in good style in a handsome house, and Mattie was generally understood to be as well off in money matters as she was attractive in person and winning in manners.

delightful meeting or a pleasant picnic, it has at Mattie's place. If a young girl has any trouble about her wedding clothes she goes to Mattie; if she cannot raise her good minister's salary, Mattie puts matters all straight.

Everybody loves Mattie Darley. Even her aunts come to see her now; for sooner or later we pardon our friends the injuries we have done them.

Now suppose Mattie had hung on to her aunts in wretched dependence. Suppose that she had dragged out a half-existence trying to teach what she did not herself understand.

TO CHEAPEN TINWARE. A Wonderful Machine Invented by a Cincinnati.

A wonderful machine, which is destined to revolutionize the manufacture of tin, sheet iron, brass, malleable iron, has been developed and matured by a Cincinnati man, after three years of constant study and labor without any undue amount of influence.

and the relative resistance used in the dies, he at last succeeded in making them to his satisfaction, although at that time he could only join the flat pieces of tin together, but the joint was made so nearly perfect and so practically indestructible that it clearly showed to this anxious mind the great possibilities of his scheme. So he at once set to work to construct a press that would be capable of taking blank pieces of tin, and at one stroke of the die form a complete hollow vessel.

He went to Bridgeport, N. J., to the works of the Fairbairn Press company, and there spent over a year in the building and perfecting of his machine, which was finally accomplished, a few weeks ago, and the machine shipped to Cincinnati, where it now lies at the works of the Standard Radial Drill company, in Covington. The machine is of the upright pattern, and stands about seven feet six inches high. The work is first laid on a table, which travels with each stroke from under the die to the operator, so as to facilitate the putting in and taking out of work.
