At the Afternoon Session,

At 2:30 o'clock in the afternoon the com mission came together again. The audience in the morning had been large, but that of the afternoon was even larger. Considerable delay took place in getting down to business, and when at last the meeting was called to order nothing new was developed. Speeches were made by the same men who had occupied the morning session, and the same argucandidate. ments, in much the same form, were brought forward on both sides. Pusey and Hazelton and the parcies they represented had been unable to arrive at any agreement, and a little good natured bulldozing between Pasey and Baldwin was the only thing that hap pened to give a variety to the utter monot ony of the proceedings. Baldwin renewed his plea as to the jurisdiction of the commission and to the surprise he had been subjected to when he saw the union depot question staring him in the face, and wanted the hearing adjourned until October 1, when Messrs. Ames and Clark of the Union Pacific could be present, and in the meantime he wanted the Union Depot company to put its demands in proper legal form, so that he might know what they were going to do. After a long discussion it was finally decided to postpone the hearing of the case until Tuesday, September 27.

Remained Silent

One of the noticeable things about the meeting was the silance that was manifested by George F. Wright. He has been considered one of the foremost workers in the union depot scheme, but yesterday silence of a clam sat upon his lips. He the was in a somewhat embarrassing position, from the fact that his law partner was the man whom he was supposed to be fighting, tooth and toenail. He accordingly sat as near the midale of the room as possible, kept as quiet as possible, and in this way preserved as neutral a possible as possible.

neutral a position as possible. The following rallway representatives were present: Union Pacific-E. Dickenwere present: Union Pacino-E. Dieken-son, assistant general manager; W. R. At the close of the session a private con-ultation was held between the leaders of Union Depot company and the railroad offi-cials. When the consultation was over those who were on the inside took no pains to conceal the satisfaction they felt over the result of the interview. "The union depot scheme never looked so encouraging as it does this afternoon," said one of them. "It is the first time we have ever had so many of the officials together, and we poured bot shot into them to the best of our ability, and with considerable effect. We explained the financial condition our company was in and called their atten-tion to the fact that we had invested our money in those grounds with the under-standing that they would take them off our hands. They somitted that they had signed a contract by which they agreed to build the union depot, and finally, to cap the climax, they all with one voice gave us assurances that the money to pay for the grounds would be in our hands by September 15." So the matter now stands. The stockholders in the deput feel encouraged, not only because they think they stand a good chance of getting their money back, but also because when once the railways get possession of the grounds it is only a question of time when the depot will be built. For it does not not stand to reason that they will invest $30,000 in land and then allow the land to Judson, civil engineer, 328 Broadway. run to waste from year to year. The pur-
