REUNION VISITORS DAILY INCREASING

Yesterday's Crowd at Grand Island Larger Than Usual—Many Independents Returning to the Republican Ranks—How They are Converted.

GRAND ISLAND, Neb., Sept. 1.—[Special to The Bee.]—The Sons and Daughters of Veterans and Relief corps paraded this afternoon with bands of music and banners flying. The ladies waved their handkerchiefs as they marched and were cheered all along the line.

A stiff breeze prevented the balloon ascension and disappointed thousands who had gathered to witness it. The afternoon was spent chiefly in visiting the various places of amusement. The big Custer county pavilion was crowded this afternoon to hear Rev. P. C. Johnson, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church at Friend, on the work of women in the war and the Woman's Relief corps.

The attendance at the grounds, today's exceeding all previous ones. The war spirit cropped out in a little spot this afternoon when a young democratic saloonkeeper named Lanzan, of Wood River, remarked that the old soldiers were a set of thieves, stealing the treasury bill through the post-office lock. It only cost a few seconds for A. W. Gandy of Broken Bow, of company E, Third Iowa, to knock the fellow down and make him eat his words. This is the soldiers' camp and the boys will not stand any insults.

Van Wyck and Majors.

It was arranged that at the camp fire Van Wyck should occupy one stand and Majors another, but when the great Van Wyck of twenty-three places failed to hold a corporal's guard at the Van Wyck stand that gentleman retreated to the stand of Majors. The committee had the general down for a speech and the evening papers announced it, but the seat at faces, least of all, the seat of the Majors stand was too much for the equality of even General Van Wyck. Captain Henry presided and Mr. Majors spoke for thirty minutes. He was a good speaker, providing a home for superannuated soldiers. He referred to a soldier 78 years of age, never expected to live, who had been with his old comrades and who in 1849 wrote for William Henry Harrison. Just then a venerable veteran arose in the audience and explained that there was no need of going out of Nebraska for old veterans as he was 95 years old.

An old patriarch with long flowing beard and hair white as snow was introduced. It was Conrad Mapner, the veteran who started from Oregon to walk to the World's fair, and intended to reach Grand Island in time to take in the reunion. He said he, forty-five years ago, crossed those plains at the head of a party. He said: "I have seen 10,000 buffaloes in one herd on the Platte, but now I see men and women. I never drank a glass of liquor in my life nor smoked or chewed tobacco nor expected to live. I have been an office seeker for fifty years and have never yet reached the goal. The office I seek is that of inspector of good liquors with power to act."

He was followed by Hon. W. E. Andrews and Captain Sticker, two of the most eloquent public speakers in the state. At the close Colonel A. A. Jones, the eloquent colored man, addressed the people in one of the most able speeches of the reunion.

Among the most interesting incidents of the reunion were the conversion of a number of Independents. The Indiana headquarters were usually surrounded by a squad of old soldiers who talked politics much of the time. A quiet discussion always followed, when a principal man would up and declare his principles, and not infrequently he would be converted or go back to the principles of the party with which he fought. A general justification would follow, the boys singing "Johnny Come Marching Home" and "Tramp, Tramp, the Boys Come Marching," and shouting for General Harrison.

A pretty ceremony occurred this morning in which the ladies of the Hastings Woman's Relief Corps presented Silas A. Strickland post No. 13 with a most beautiful and elaborately decorated banner, the handiwork of the donors. The Hastings drum corps, who are guests of Strickland post, tendered this Bee a second of the most interesting of the time. Immediately after the Stiering Hussar band serenaded the Bee headquarters. The Stiering company has twenty-three pieces, the largest band in camp and the most splendidly uniformed, with red coats trimmed in white braid, white breeches and black hats. The Michigan veterans, headed by a drum corps, paid their respects to this Bee this morning. They carry an elegant gold banner and march in a most impressive manner. Dr. Glasgow, Colonel Roggen and C. A. Austin made a simultaneous call at the Bee headquarters. They are the three largest men in camp, weighing respectively 292, 250 and 363.

Wednesday Night's Campfire. Last night's campfire was a great meeting. A solid mass of people filled the space between grand stands and extended in the direction as far as the speaker's voice could be heard. A flow of eloquence, excelled only by the orators at the Republican club convention, never ceased to flow until midnight.

If the denizens of Camp Sheridan ever sleep no one would know it. They are up until nearly midnight and the steam street never stops, ditto the drums. The street cars run all night, and the sutlers are ever ready for the impulse.

The big guns at sunrise only mark the intensifying of previous justification, rather than a new band of more than that number of drum corps and martial bands never ceases during the day, and only lulls at night.

Choosing State Officers. This morning at 9:30 the election of officers of state organizations took place. Besides the election of officers, nearly all the state transactions more or less special business.

Michigan elected officers as follows: A. V. Cole, president; T. F. Farrow, secretary; Chaudron, vice president; S. L. Bruns, Juanna, secretary; O. E. Goodell, Lincoln, treasurer; Walter Smith, Grand Island, color bearer. Over 100 votes polled.

New England organized as follows: President, Church Howe, Hove, Neb.; vice president, L. D. Richards, Fremont; treasurer, G. W. Lord, Utzsch; chaplain, W. H. H. Pillsbury, Grand Island; committee of arrangements for next reunion, Pillsbury, Bangs, of Westcott, and G. F. Blanehard of Sidney.

Church Howe was elected to go before Governor Boyd and plead for the pardon of C. J. Paul, who is a member of the association.

Ohio: President, Sherman Wilcox, Scotland; secretary, W. F. Duffell, Grand Island.

Illinois: President, George E. Whitman, Oxford; vice president, J. P. Calkins, Shelby; secretary, Mallory, Ore; John A. Edwards, Stanton, chairman of the executive committee. The association raised $150 to pay for printing a roster.

J. M. Glasgow of South Omaha met his old bunk mate, Robert S. Young, company H, Seventh Iowa Infantry, for the first time since the war.

Pennsylvania elected officers as follows: President, Captain John S. Wood, Omaha; vice president, H. Klookner, Stanton; secretary, S. S. Ware, Louisa; treasurer, J. W. W. Manning, Moore; historian, S. Jones, Wood River. Nebraska battalion of Minnesota soldiers choose the following officers: President, Martin Egan, Grand Island; vice president, H. C. Magdon, Hay Springs; secretary and treasurer, J. S. Geary, Wilber; sergeant, E. Ammon, St. Paul. Total enrollment 233. Nebraska battalion of Kentucky and Tennessee soldiers: President, Pat O. Hawes, Omaha; vice president, W. F. Ware, Dowell; secretary and treasurer, J. F. Early, Wilber; ensign, T. A. Blythe, Cairo. Total enrollment, Kentucky, 100; Tennessee, 34. New York Association of Veterans of Nebraska: President, W. H.

PROMPT MEASURES TAKEN

Federal Officials Prepared to Prevent the Cholera Reaching This Country. NO EXTRA SESSION THOUGHT NECESSARY.

President Harrison Loses No Time in Investigating the Situation—Views of the Cabinet Members—Steamship Companies Will Assist the Government.

WASHINGTON BUREAU OF THE BEE. 513 FOURTEENTH STREET, WASHINGTON, D. C. Sept. 1.

There will be no extra session of congress unless a greater emergency arises. The president is here and will remain until tomorrow or longer if it seems necessary. He agrees with Secretary Foster that prompt action is necessary and that nothing is to be gained by calling congress together. The president's determination to return to Washington was made 6 o'clock last night.

A sleeping car was hastily got out of the shops and attached to the regular midnight train of the Pennsylvania. Only Private Secretary Halford and the president's stenographer, Mr. Tibbott, accompanied the president. No provision had been made for breakfast and as the train did not reach the station in Washington until 8:45 the president fasted until 9 o'clock.

Colonel Crook was at the station with the white house carriage when the train arrived. The president went to the white house and had breakfast. The word to Secretary Charles Foster, Attorney General Miller and Supervising Surgeon General Wyman that he would like to see them at the white house at 11 o'clock. The president was called to determine what power the president had and what was best for him to do.

Will Assist the Government.

Dr. Glavis, the attorney for the German steamship lines, had a conference with treasury officials this morning and assured them that if the president would order immigration suspended the steamship companies would not only consent but would assist the government. As a result of the conference between Secretary Charles Foster and the president, a quarantine of twenty days was ordered whereof the first ten days are to be on the order. The order was examined and approved by the president and was given out at 3 o'clock. Postmaster General W. A. Wood and Secretary Charles Foster and Secretary Elkins saw him immediately afterward.

The president expects to leave Washington tomorrow noon and to return to Loom Lake where he will remain through next week, returning for the Grand Army encampment. The last week has been one of very hard work and he proposes to get a few days rest before returning to Washington. His letter of acceptance is ready and as stated in these dispatches some days ago will be given out Sunday night.

No Cause for Alarm.

The president had no callers today except the members of his cabinet and Senator Padock of Nebraska. Tonight there was quite a gathering at the white house almost a cabinet meeting. Secretary Foster came in early and a little later Postmaster General W. A. Wood appeared. Secretary Elkins was the last to arrive. There was no particular reason for the gathering except that the president was in the city for the first time in a month and he was going away tomorrow to be absent ten days or more. There was a general talk about cabinet matters, but no question of movement was discussed except the president and that the president considers to be disposed of so far as the general government can act.

There will be no doubt as to some alarm felt in different parts of the country over the president's hasty visit to the capital at this time. There is no doubt as to the fact that the president said today that he had come to Washington so promptly as he did that he might be on the ground and see that no steps that could be taken be omitted to prevent the introduction of cholera into the country. While considering the matter he proposed to get a few days rest before returning to Washington. His letter of acceptance is ready and as stated in these dispatches some days ago will be given out Sunday night.

To Interest the Veterans.

An interesting feature of the Grand Army encampment will be a series of addresses to be delivered on the giant model of the old war vessel, the USS Monitor. W. H. Michael, the chairman of the committee on naval affairs, will be the first to deliver an address. He is a member of the navy and was a number of prominent men who served in the navy during the war of the rebellion, and they have agreed to discuss certain selected subjects.

Hon. Tom Reed of Maine is one of those who have accepted. He served in the Mississippi squadron during the war. He is to discuss the relation of the navy to the war of the rebellion. Congressman Charles H. Boutelle of Maine is another. He served in the North Atlantic squadron. Today the committee addressed a letter to ex-Governor Campbell of Ohio, requesting him to deliver an address on the Mississippi squadron, in which he was an officer.

Miscellaneous.

Private Secretary Halford says that Mrs. Harrison's general health is much improved. She has much strength, and her nerves are still much unstrung. She will remain at Loom Lake when the president returns to Washington for the encampment.

Anzi Smith, the superintendent of the senate document room, has just completed the assortment and mailing of the documents of the second session of the congress and they have been mailed to the members of the senate during that congress. There are the documents for the first senator, or more than 500 volumes in all. They were bound in half calf, each volume about two inches in thickness. At the end of each volume are the documents for that congress are collected and bound for the libraries of members of the senate and house.
