oming may privately think of the constitutionality of woman suffrage, there is no question that the equal rights conforred on women are being exercised quite generally. The fact that they do not take kindly to jury duty stands to their credit. Outside of the professional juryman, men escape it whenover possible. In all political matters, however, the women of Wyoming take an active interest, and are steauily pushing to the front. Wyoming has not only faith in woman, but this faith is proved by works. Two of the Wyoming alternates at the recent republican convention in Minneapolis were women; women are made county superintendents, and are filling other minor offices, and now one of these women has just missed being made the democratic candidate for governor or governess of that state. Her name is Mrs. I. N. Bard, and she lives in

Cheyenne.

Mrs. Bard went to Wyoming in 1808 from Utica, N. Y. With her husband she took up a ranch thirty miles north of Cheyenne, on the old Deadwood and Black Hills route. Bard's, for many years, was a noted stopping place for overland travelers bound for the

Eldorado of the Biack Hills, Ever since the legislation of 1869 gave women the right to vote in the territory of Wyoming, Mrs. Bard has exercised the privi-lege. Her husband has always been a stat-wart republican, but Mrs. Bard's faith and practice of democracy have never swerved from her home teaching. Mrs. Bard has served as a school trustee for many years in her district, but has never held political office. At the Laramie county convention, to which she was a delerate, she was unanimously elected a delegate to the state convention at Rock Springs, the remainder of the delegation consisting of fil Mrs. Bard took part in the caucuses and all the deliberations of the convention.

The fight for the gubernatorial nomination was a triangular one and resulted in a partial deadlock, which required thirty-nine ballots to evercome. On the thirty-sixth ballot, to vary the monotony, a galiant delegate nominated Mrs.

Bard for governor. There was great applause, and county after county cast solid votes for her. Forty-eight votes only were required to elect, and it was suddenly dis-covered that of this number Mrs. Bard had thirty-six. There was a hurried consultation among the professional element among the politicians and much to their relief and to Mrs. Bard nerself the other candidates cast their ballots for some of the male candidates. Mrs. Hamilton of Uinta county was also a delegate to the convention. the complimentary vote of the Uinta delegates for governor on one ballot. Mrs. Hamilton has never taken part in politics, but has always voted. Mrs. Hamilton has three handsome children. The family of a petty official at Berlin was recently treated to an agreeable surprise owing to the charitable disposition of the smallest member of their little household—a 3-year-old girl. During the month of May she met sitting on a bench in the public square near her home an old poorly but heatly clad man, who attracted her attention by his sad looks and lonesome air. Thinking he must be hungry, she stepped up to him and, with the question, "Want a piece of pie!" she resolutely handen him half of her simple lunch. The man appeared somewhat perplexed, but smilingly received the piece with thanks and ate it. From that day both might frequently be seen together engaged in lively conversation, the little girl never for-getting to offer her old friend part of her lunch, which she was in the habit of eating in the open air after playing about on the lawn, nor ever admitting of any refusal on his part to take at least a little bite. At the beginning of this month Hermine one ing returned home with the distressing news that the "poor man" had not appeared. Noither had he been seen for several days after, when Hermine's father received an unexpected summons to appear at court. Here he was told that the "poor old man," who really was a wealthy citizen of Berlin, had left his whole fortune to little Hermine. His will contained the following paragraph:

"They described of the whole world, for g returned home with the distressing news "I had desoaired of the whole world, for those who were nearest and dearest to me had deceived me. Thus I renounced all, for what I desired I was unable to obtain. I be-came a miser necause my liberality was only rewarded with ingratitude. Nearing the end of my course I was mightily touched by a child's heart which reconciled me with humanity. It was only for a short time, but if I had millions to bestow those few moments would not be paid for too dearly.

May my wealth serve my little friend for better ends than it did me who never knew how to appreciate it or to expend it," The human body is constantly undergoing tissue change. Worn-out particles are cast aside and eliminated from the system, while aside and eliminated from the system, walls the new are ever being formed, from the inception of life to its close. Water has the power of increasing these tissue changes, which multiply the waste products, but at the same time they are renewed by its agency, giving rise to increased appetite, which in turn provides fresh nutriment.

Persons but little accustomed to drink water, says Hail's Journal of Health, are liable to have the waste products formed faster than they are removed. Any obstruction to than they are removed. Any obstruction to the free working of natural laws at once produces disease, which if once firmly seated requires both time and money to cure.

People accustomed to rise in the morning weak and languid will find the cause in the imperfect secretion of wastes, which many times may be remedied by dring a full tumbler of water before retiring. This very materially assists in the process during the night, and leaves tissues fresh and strong and ready for the active work of the day.

Hot water is one of the best remedial agents. A hot bath on going to bed, even in the hot nights of summer, is a better reliever of insomnia than many drugs. Inflated parts will subside under the continued poultiding of real hot water. Very hot water, as we all know, is a prompt checker of bleeding, and besides, if it is clean, as it should be, it aids in sterilizing our wounds. A riotous stomach will nearly always gratefully receive a glass Another rash English lady, says the Another rash English lady, says the Queen, has "under circumstances of great stress and difficulty"—to adopt Mr. Gladstone's phrase—ascended the Matterhorn. Mrs. Farrar, who was accompanied by two well known guides, left her hotel at 10:30 in the morning and arrived at the lower Matterhorn but on the following afternoon.

When they reached the summit they were obliged to cut short, their rest, as the clouds.

When they reached the summit they were obliged to cut short their rest, as the clouds were gathering round the Breuil slope of the mountain, and while they were making a hurried descent the thunderstorm burst upon them and gave rise to the gravest fears as to their safe return. In spite of the blinding hall and wind the lower but was reached, and Zermatt three hours later. Nearly seventeen hours were spen on the mountain, and Mrs. Farrar had indeed reason to be thankful for the presence of mind shown by the guides; had they way. deed reason to be thankful for the presence of mind shown by the guides; had they wavered an instant she would have succumbed to the perils which were sufficient to test the powers and endurance of experienced climbers. The dangers consequent upon the fall of stones and the lightning playing on theice axes must have been appalling; the courage of wamen, however, and the desire courage of women, however, and the desire to explore regions which men for the most part have bitherto monopolized, seems steadily on the increase, but I cannot say that I think these hexardous and useless ex-ploits are to be commended.
