There are three prisoners waiting in jail to receive their sentences, having been found guilty. They expected to learn their fate yesterday, but Judge Smith decided not to satisfy their curiosity until 9 o'clock this morning, when they will be brought before him.

At a meeting of the Republican Young Men's Marching club last evening at Dr. Trexner's office, it was decided to accept the invitation from Neola and attend their rally on November 1, and urge all republicans to accompany the club. The hour for leaving will be determined later.

Felix Roche and Blanche Bradley, both hailing from South Omaha, were arrested for creating a disturbance on Lower Broadway. The woman was particularly warlike and insisted she could whip any policeman in the city. It cost her about $20 to find out her mistake. Roche got off with half the fine.

Rev. W. H. W. Rees, formerly pastor of the Broadway Methodist Episcopal church, will occupy the pulpit there tomorrow morning and evening. While the work of putting in the steam heating plant is progressing steadily, he has been up which will furnish heat to make the building comfortable during services.

The jury in the case of Hoel against the Northwestern railroad company contrary to general anticipation agreed upon a verdict last night at 8:30. It was a straight unanimous verdict for the defendant, and the defense nothing but the shaking he got in the railway accident and in the court room during the trial.

To the surprise of lookers-on the arguments in the case of Hoel against the Northwestern railway came to a sudden end yesterday noon. After the Sanders, the one who spoke for Dr. Smith and then the attorney for the defendant, waived their arguments. The case was given to the jury and they will hold it in their room for some time, according to the general predictions.

Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Dawson entertained a number of their friends Thursday evening at their residence on 11th and Farnam. Misses Weisman, Thomas, Van Brunt, Cassidy, Davidson, Luster, Kinnehan, Davis Hayes; Messrs. McNitt, Luring, Christensen, Temperton, Hanthorn, Atkins, White, Mansfield, and Mrs. Atkins, Mr. and Mrs. Kellum, Omaha, Mr. and Mrs. Diffenbacher of York, N. C.

William McNeely, who has resided in this country for a score of years and who was naturalized in Ohio nearly forty years ago, was not able to find his papers yesterday and without them was unable to register. The law is that he must be registered or else to vote a copy of the Constitution of Ohio to vote a copy of the Constitution and as an easier compliance with the law he went before Judge Smith and was again made a citizen. The democratic organ is trying to make capital out of this little incident, charging it represents a party trying to prevent voters from exercising their rights. A party which is in desperate straits when it knows because requirements of law are complied with.

The officials of the First Congregational church yesterday received the formal acceptance of Rev. Mr. Sharp, who will begin his pastoral labors about the middle of next month. While it was practically decided several days ago that such would be the answer to the enthusiastic call extended him, yet there have been some details of arrangements which might possibly have prevented the happy culmination of the plans. As accepted, the possibility of such disappointment was not considered, and the assurance is unequalled and certain. The church is to be congratulated on so speedily securing such a talented and warm hearted pastor, and he will start upon his work supported by an enthusiastic congregation.

Severe Trials Which Fall a Poor, but Honest Stranger.

HE LIES THREE WEEKS IN THE COUNTY JAIL

Imprisoned for a Crime of Which He Was Guiltless but Has no Redress—A Pretty Mean Grocerman's Part in the Affair.

A case that illustrates several things, among the iniquities of the present grand jury system, that only bears one side of a story, was recalled to public attention yesterday by the visit of a clear-eyed, but sad-faced man to the office of Sheriff Hazen. The man came in to show that an obligation he had assumed to the sheriff some time ago had been discharged, and when he went out the kind-hearted officer told the story.

The man is a comparative stranger in the city, and when he came here several months ago he obtained employment in one of the water works gang. He had a wife and family, and they were living in a little cottage on the bottom of the hill. One Saturday night, after having worked a few days, he went to a Broadway grocer and purchased $2.45 worth of groceries and secured credit until day upon the representation that he was in the employ of the water works company and they would not let him go until he paid back the credit asked for. That night a number of the water works hands were discharged and he among the others, but he did not ascertain that fact until the following Monday. In the meantime the grocer went to the company and demanded payment of the amount he claimed, and inquiry that the man was not in their employ. Without waiting to make any further investigations the grocerman went before the grand jury, which was then in session, and charged that the man was a thief, and instructed to him and called in Manager Hart of the water works company. Getting his information from the payroll of the company at that time the manager was obliged to say that the man was not in his employ. Upon this expert statement an indictment was found, and the man was arrested and thrown into jail, where he lay three weeks, in default of $600 bail. The end of the month had come in the meantime and the payroll of the company showed that he was a worker, but he had not been paid, and was unable to clear his wages. The attention of Manager Hart was called to it and it occurred to him that this might be the man who was lying in jail. An investigation immediately made proved it to be the truth. Then his bond was quickly freed, and he was released. Next day he was liberated. He had never been in jail or charged with a crime in his life, and the imprisonment and ignominy almost killed him. When he went to his little cottage he found it still in grave trouble, notwithstanding his having paid his debts, and was unable to clear his wages. If the story was dressed in diaphanous clothes they were solely and purely democratic garments.

Democratic Authority.

The statement of Tim Birn that the torches in the democratic procession numbered 2,300 at the shakedown Thursday night is found fault with. The statement that 1,800 torches were given out and the torches were not numbered enough, and more came directly from the democratic headquarters, is denied. Women who have given themselves to the art of making men part with their cash without wincing. Last evening was spent principally by the young people in dancing to the strains of orchestral music. A similar program was also rendered. A short time ago was devoted to visiting, dancing, and closing up generally the festivities of the week.

SOUTH OMAHA'S REGISTRATION.

Thursday's registration increased the total number of voters who have registered this fall to 1,886, which, in point of numbers, is far below what it should be. At the municipal election last April was cast a total of 2,290. The comparative diminution of this fall's vote has been placed at about 2,500. The registration up to last night of the wards by precincts, as compared with the vote of last April is as follows:

SLOW REGISTRATION.

Either there is some reluctance on the part of the voters of Council Bluffs to attempt to tread the mazes of the Australian ballot, or there is little interest felt in the great battle of November 8. Yesterday was the second day of registration, and the smallest number of names were recorded on the poll books that has marked any registration day in
