A Splendid Success.

The great cloak and coat sale at the Boston Store the last three days of last week was so successful that the proprietors feel like thanking the public for the very generous appreciation of the efforts made to please and suit the thousands who took advantage of this opportunity to get a stylish and perfect fitting garment. The run upon the stock has been heavy, but the Boston Store prepared for a big trade in cloaks and coats this season, and there are still hundreds of ba gains in this department. Call soon and see the assortment and select your cloak, for at the rate they are going they will not last long.

GOOD WORK OF A METHODIST SOCIETY Rev. H. W. H. Rees Tells How the Organi zation Has Labored to Dispel Darkness and Ignorance Among the Benighted Millions. "Am I my brother's keeper?" This was the serious question asked by a man named Cain years ago, and Rav. H.

favor in seasons past, is to be reor-W. H. Rees asked it sgain in the pulpit of the Broadway Methodist church yesterday morning. And he answered it in the affirmative with a good deal of vicer. Mr. Rees is the popular preacher who served as paster of the Broadway church four years, and being in the city with his family enroute to his new field of labor in Cincinnati, he accepted the invitation to fill the pulpit in the handsome new church yesterday at both morning and evening service.

The speaker's subject was the Free Iman's Aid and Southern Educational society, of which he is the recording secretary. He presented it and its work to the congregation in such a clear and forcible manner that at the close the call for funds resulted in the col lection of over $130. In his remarks be showed that the society had expended over $3,000,000 in the work of southern education and had organized and is now carrying forward over forty schools, ranging from academies to universities. It is daily teaching thousands of young men and young women in these schools and doing a work, the results of which cannot be measured. The obliga tions of this work are upon the church and the public, and it should be done freely, because: 1. Education multiplies wealth. A comthe power to produce wealth 50 per cent be yong the uneducated man. A college educa ion multiplies the power to produce wealth 100 per cent.

2. Education reduces crime. Nine-tenths of the crime in this country is committed by uneducated propie. The church is organ-ized to lessen crime, and so in doing this work is exhibiting the principles of a genuine religion.

3. Education increases one's power to do good. God can do more with an educated than an uneducated man. Ignorance is no 4. The need of these people commands our benevolence.

There are 1,500,000 voters in the south who cannot read their ballots, and 2,000,000 women in the sixteen southern states who do not know the Lord's prayer when they see it, nor the alphabet. To what kind of a des-tiny are these people coming? What will their children be? Think of their training, their future, and ours, if they are neglected by us. In lowa and Nebraska there are but two out of every 100 who cannot read. In South Carolina there are forty-eight out of every 100 who do not know a spelling book from the United States census. Ten doilars a year will help a young man or woman through school for eight montts, the full school year, and lift up into intelligence one who otherwise would be compelled to sit in darkness more appailing than that of the plague which visited Egypt in Pharach's time. Every one should help a little, and thus lift up a fallen brother.

Vivid pictures and strong similes were given to bring within the grasp of the mind he appalling numbers of the uneducated in the south. If you were to take a solid street reaching from San Francisco to New York, and build it up with houses every forty-five feet and put in five women in each house you would not find room for the positively illiterate mothers in the south, but you would have to open a back street almost as long be-fore you could accommodate them all. On the wall by the side of the pulpit he had a large colored map showing the percent-age of illiteracy in each state and the amount of money for educational and all other pur oses the church had placed in each of them. l'his was emphasized by broad colored lines of varying length. A little black square an inch long indicated the illiteracy of the northern states and by its side a great red band reaching nearly across the map indicated the amount of money, over $250,000,000, which the church had invested. A black belt, as long nearly as the red one, showed the perentage of illiteracy in the south, and a ittle red line the amount of money expended to enlighten it, which aggregated only about leorge Crane Tries to Kill an Oregon Panthera la McG.

The speaker held the attention of the congregation very closely and at the close of the service was compelled to shake hands with almost every member. He spoke to a large congregation in the evening.

Mr. George J. Crane and Dr. Bellinger of Council Bluffs are now in Oregon. A gentleman who arrived from Portland last evening relates an exciting experience the gentlemen had with a furious panther the other day. With C. W. Parrish, an Oregon attorney,

Mr. Crane and the doctor went out into the wilds of Tillamook county on a shooting expedition. The first day the party had poor luck and only succeeded in slaughtering a lame old buck. The second day, however, killed an elk and shot a bear and two cubs. On the third day they were near the seastore waiting for deer to come down to lick the bring waters of the ocean. About 50 'clock Mr. Crane concluded to waik up the beach to see what he could see. Haif an hour later his companions were startled by one of the most uncarful year. one of the most uncarribly yells that ever escaped from a human throat. Its reverberations had not half died away before other screams were heard, and the two hunters left behind readily recognized the voice as that of Mr. Crane. In an instant they were hurrying to his resous. hurrying to his rescue.

Rounding a point in the shore line they discovered their champion standing waist deep in the water of the Pacific sawing the air with his hat as if his life depended upon his exertions and his pitiful screeches were heart-rending. Five minutes more and the doctor and the lawyer were within halling distance of the distracted Crane, but at that moment a hure wave washed him out to sea and it was believed that he would drown. Parrish being an expert swimmer disrobed in an instant and plunged into the ocean de-termined to save his friend if the feat were possible. At that moment the dector per-ceived the cause of Mr. Crane's distress. While chasing a Chinese pheasant which he had hoped to run down and capture alive, Mr. Crane came across one of the largest panthers ever met with in that section of ountry. Immediately the chase assumed a different character.

The beast concluded that the fut sportsman would make an excellent meal, and having a healthy appetite, decided to begin business on Mr. Crane's neck. Raising his rifle to his shoulder, Crane blazed away at the animal, but missed. Then he took to his heels, and the ocean being but a couple of rods away, he preferred its sprey to a hungry panther. Finding a solid footing upon a rock out of reach of danger, the refugee shouled so loudly for help that a trapper two miles away distinctly heard him. The sea, however, lifted him from his moorings, and he had twice touched his nose to the sand pefore Mr. Parrish caught him by the forcton and towed him ashore. Dr. Bellinger had not been idle in the meantime. A builet from his Winchester had pierced the panther's heart, and when he returns to his nome he will no doubt exhibit its skin as one of the trophies of his western hunting expedition.

Mr. Crane, although suffering intensely from nervous prostration, was soon able to walk to camp, where he remained for a day under the doctor's care, after which he returned to Portland satisfied that there is no fun in life in the western forests. He declares, however, that it was a full grown mountain lion and not a panther, that drove him out to sea. He says the panther was probably attracted to the beach by his shouting, but that he fought many flerce battles in the war of the rebellion and would never surrender an inch of ground to a webfoot panther. "Not in a thousand years."

TAYLOR IS SMART.

Two Very Cunning Confidence Men Caught in an Omaha Hotel. One of the best known confidence and banco men in this country was arrested by Detectives Savage and Dempsey Saturday afternoon and lodged in jail for a short time. The name of this noted personage is W. W. Taylor, or Colonel Taylor, as he calls himself. He is well known all over the United States. and Canada and his photograph and description can be found in the private scrap book of nearly every chief of police in America. The "colonel" is a fine looking man, a good dresser and a pleasant conversationalist. He easily, by his pleasing ways, works himsolf into the confidence of the person he picks out for a victim and with the aid of his right bower, "Lieutenant" Whittier, generally gets what he goes after and that is always money.

Two or three days ago Taylor and his pal drifted into Omaha and put up at the Paxton, paying his board in advance. Then he put in his time looking for prey. He found an attorney for an easiern railroad company, who was stopping at the Murray, and soon had a game of cards arranged. Of course, Whittier was in on the game and held the winning hand. He took the lawyer's diamond ring, stud and watch as security for the stakes, while "the colonel" went with his victim to the telegraph office, who wanted to send for money. "Telegraph for $300," said Taylor. "You can get your jewelry back for $200 and then you will have a hundred left."

This was done, and the money came quickly. In the meantime Clerk Anderson of the Murray called in the detectives. He also stopped the payment of the money as the sharpers' victim had been put to bed, somewhat the worse from liquer. This move on Anderson's part balked the game, though Taylor held an order for the money. But the way the scheme was discovered was funny. Whittier was wearing the watch and coain. On the chain was a Masonic charm. As halloafed about the barroom he met a man who asked him if he was a Mason. Whittler replied that he was, and the pair proceeded to exchange grips, but this was where the "con" man's education was deficient. He wasn't onto the aign. So it came about that the matter was reported to Anderson, who took hold of the case and caused the arrests. Quite a bustle was made by the "colonel's" friends to get him released. Police Commis stener George I, Gilburg was employed as attorney, and arranged for bonds. Both Taylor and Whittier were released, after de-positing $15 apiece for their appearance in police court this morning. On the way down to jail Whittler offered Detective Savage $10 to let him go, but Savage ain't that king of a man, and proceeded on his way to the juil with his pris-After the release of the pair they went right back to the Paxton and tried their hand again. Taylor fell in with a traveling man who had been drinking and proposed a carriage ride. The traveler consented and called for a cab. Before the rig drove up the night cierk suggested to the traveling man that he had better leave his money at the office, as he might lose it. As the traveler turned his roll over to the clerk "Coloner" Taylor remarked, "Well, if you are going to leave all your money here its no use to go for a ride," and with that remark the stately "colonel" turned on his beel and left the hotel, In speaking about his case resterday Taylor did not deny his business and asserted that he could skin the best man living. He rela ed several amusing experiences to show how green some people are and how smart

A A ECCAR CMAHA, Kansas City Papers Start Another Cattle

Market Boomerang. The Kansas City stock journals have undertaken the cifficult task of convincing the public that the live stock market of the city on the Kaw is far superior to that of South Omaha, and that cattle bring better prices there than here. A noting of the sales for a few days will soon establish the fact beyond a doubt that a modern Ananias has been turned loose by those papers. Cattle n South Omaha than in Kansas City and the fact that a local packing house has pur-chased several loads there and shipped them here at prices lower than they could have secured upon this market, is proof conclusive that the snippers are receiving the benefit of the superior prices paid here.

Western cattle are bringing at South
Omaha better prices by several cents and in most cases sell at prices above those paid for native cornfed cattle at Kansas City.
One of the Kansas City stock papers selected last Monday as a day for comparisons between the two markets. South Omaha gets the best of it by far, and the Kansas City paper has undoubtedly reached the con-clusion that it has run up against a buzz saw and is receiving considerably the worst of the comparison. On the day in question cornfed cattle at Kansas City brought $3.35@ 4.00, while at South Omaha cattle direct from the range that never saw a grain of corn sold for $1.40, or 40 cents better than the Kansas City cornfed cattle, and the same price as the top cornfed cattle sold there on that day,

The fifteen highest sales reported on that day at the South Omaha and Kansas City markets are appended herato and they show up to South Omaha's credit by a very large

The sates taken for comparison are the fifteen highest of western states reported at both points last Mondas, and there can be no doubt as to which market is paving the tettor prices for cattle. The fact is that the Kausas City prices are not to be compared with the South Omaha prices and the south western cattlemen should not be slow in taking the cue for their own benefit.

HERO OF THE HOTCHKISS.

Lieutenant Sedgwick Rice of the Fighting Seventh Visiting in Omaha. Lieutenant Sedgwick Rice of E troop, Seventh cavalry, is in the city visiting army friends.

Lieutenant Rice won his spurs and for the first time sinciled powder in a military engagement at the battle of Wounded Knee, two years ago, and those who participated in that sanguinary engagement or witnessed it as spectators will bear evidence that the young gentleman is justly entitled to all the honors that have since that time been showered upon him. It was he who with a thin skirmish line of E troop held the mouth of the deep ravine on that fatal day against the numerous assaults of the desperate warriors under Big Foot, and who when Lieu-tenant Hawthorne of the First artillery, in charge of a section of a Hotchkiss battery, was so severely wounded as to necessitate his removal from the field, took charge of his gun and fought it until the trumputers blew:

Cease firing."
It was at this point where eight men, all under his command, were either killed or wounded, and the accuracy of the fire directed at the soldiers may be considered when it is stated that every man hit was more or less protected from the indians'

Lieu mant Rice himself came out of the fight with evidences of the Indians' good markmanship in the way of perforated cloth-ing and a slight flesh wound. His conduct in this, his first time under fire, was such as to call forth the highest praise from his com-manding officers. And, although in printed accounts of that affaired uers have borne off the honors of the fight, his brother officers of the Seventh, with one accord, give him the credit for the greatest daring.

At the battle of the Mission this young officer again distinguished himself, and his gailant behavior and daring recklessness on that occasion was the theme of many a story ab ut the campfire during the Seventh's stay at Pine Ridge. For his work at this battle he was honorably mentioned in the report of the secretary of war.

Lieutenant itics will leave for his post of duty, Fort Riley, Kun., today.
