None of the Talked of Indifference Was Noticeable at the Polls.

ULL REGISTRATION NEARLY POLLED

Women to the Number of a Thousand Voting on the School Board Candidates-Business Practically Suspended-The Contest on Councilmen.

Quiet, strong and steady was the vote cast in all the eighty-eight voting precincts in this city from the time that the polls were opened at 8 o'clock yesterday morning. So continuous was it that it was estimated that ninety per cent of the entire vote would be polled by 3 o'clock this afternoon.

How it was going was of course a mystery, for with the Australian ballot system there is almost nothing on which to base even conjecture, and there were few indeed of the party leaders around either of the political headquarters who were willing to hazard even a guess as to the strength that was being developed by their respective candidates. From the very start it was set down as an established fact that the man who protended to be able to furnish any information as to the way that the vote was going in any ward or precinct or in the city at large was a romancer with a little more audacity but no more real knowledge than the average run

An Unusually Heavy Vote. All that could definitely be told is that an unusually large vote was polied, and this fact, together with the claim of the republicans that they gained by the registration and the admission of the democrats that they lost on their registration, is all that any one has on which to base an opinion, other than what ther had before election day dawned, and the counting of the vote will be the first definite and reliable intimation that will be had as to the probable result of the ver-dict of the people.

Heelers Were Lonesome.

The saloons throughout the city were closed, and the very best of order reigns at all the bolling places. The quietude about the polls was even more pronounced than a year ago, as the old time beelers, cappers and rounders had not at that time received practical demonstration of the fact that they were no longer in it, and they hung about the vicinity of the polls in the vain hope that the situation under the new order of things would not be as bad for them as it had been painted. But this year they needed no further lesson, and in many of the precincts their obnoxious presence was not inflicted upon the voters, and they were conspicuous only by the un-occupied space that they were wont to fill.

The good effects of the new ballot were more apparent than before, and the voters commented upon it most favorably, though suggesting that a few minor amendments were necessary to make it operative in the most desirable form.

In many precincts, a more intelligent class of judges and clerks was noticeable, men better fitted for the work assigned them, and while they gave material assistance in expediting the voting their presence gave rise to the hope that the counting and announce-ment of the vote would be likewise hastened. Discussed the Governor's Telegram.

Many were the unkind remarks dropped around democratic state headquarters regarding the telegram sent to the demo-cratic national committee last evening by Governor Boyd, is which he said that it was his pleasure to say that the Weaver electors would be elected in this state by 20,000 plurality. The governor was censured as being not only too previous, but several thousand out of the way, even in case Weaver managed to carry the state at all, on which point many of the democratic oracles were far from being sanguine.

Were at Work Early.

People who were upon the streets at daylight were led to believe that the city hall at Eighteenth and Farnam streets was a great wholesale establishment. ages and shades of color backed up to the entrance. There were an equal number of drivers and eighty-eight special policemen running from the building to the wagons carrying boxes and packages. All this stir was caused by the fact that City Clerk John Groves and his assistants were getting the election machinery started to the cighty-eight booths in the nine wards of the city. Upon Mr. Groves had devolved the duty of handling the city, the county and the Board of Education ballot boxes, 264 in all. The delivery commenced at 6 o'clock and an hour later every box was out of the building and on the way to the booths, where they were placed in the hands of the judges and the Many Women Voting. In every ward in the city the number of women voting on the Board of Education ticket were unusually large. The question raised by the attorney of the board as to the method to be employed in swearing in the woman vote was carried out by some of the election officials but in most cases the votes were received without question or protest. It is conservatively estimated that fully 1,000 women will have voted by this evening on the school boards. the school board matters.

Warm Council Contests.

The fight on councilmen in the several wards was very warmly contested. In the Sixth the opposition to Specht was very hopeful but the indications are that he will be returned by a small majority. In the Eighth Hungate has the advantage although the ward is largely re-publican. Hascall will probably be returned from the First and Elsasser from the Second. In the Fifth Napoleon Osthoff is using every effort to canture the majority, but the Saun-ders forces claim that the election of their candidate is assured. Major Wheeler is meeting with very determined opnosition among the republicans in the Fourth, many of the old line men of the party going to Whitlock.
Railroad Men Interested.

Union Pacific headquarters was closed from 12 to 2 o'clock in order to allow the clerks an epocituality to east their ballots for Harrison and Reid. The offices will close for the day at 4 o'clock to permit those who have not voted to cast their ballots which will carry the state for their ballots which will carry the state for their ballots. which will carry the state for Crounse and the republican ticket. There was little doing in railway circles. General apathy seemed to con-trol the action of the local railway world Heads of departments were out on the streets "saving the country," while the underlings gathered in groups to discuss the political situation and mulige in "mouth" bets. In fact there was less attention shown to a national campaign than ever before and the hundreds employed in the railway offices felt they were doing their duty in voting their ticket without get-ting out and shouting for their several canting out and shouting for their several can Travel on the railroads was unprecedentedly light, and until after the election this condition will prevail. Local ticket offices are being kept open and that is about all, no tickets being seld to points east or wast.

Just to Break the Monotony.

A democratic judge of election, appointed in one of the precincts in the Third ward, showed up in an intoxicated condition, and was not allowed to take part in the actions of the board. He visited democratic head-quarters and almost worried the life cut of everybody about the place. He wanted to be advised as to the proper course to pursue in getting even with the peliceman who ejected him from the voting booth, but re-ceived little consolation.

Chief Seavey reported to the mayor at noon that one of the judges in the First ward had become intoxicated and asked what course should be pursued in cases of that kind. The mayor consulted the city attorney and the latter gave it as his opinion that no other judge could be installed in the place of the inebriate, but that the other members of the election board should ignore him and go shead and perform the work entirely regardless of anything that he migh A controversy occurred between a judge named Holmes and a Bohemisu voter in the Seventh ward, and the outcome of it was that the judge was knocked down. It was alleged that the voter wanted instruction. as to voting a republican ticket, and the judge, who was a democrat, insisted that he must not vote a straight republican ticket,

VOTERS DID THEIR DUIY but would have to soratch it for at least a few of the democratic nominees. This was the only voter whose rights were questioned by that judge,

At South Omaha.

The day passed quietly in South Omaha and there is not a semblance of excitement. Each side is doing quiet and effectual work. The democrats and people's party workers are exerting their greatest influence for the Weaver electoral ticket. The republicans are not idle, and accomplishing a great deal.

The voters are turning out well and every-thing points to a full vote being cast. Up to the noon hour about 1,200 of the 2,900 voters registered had cast their bailots.

The packing houses closed several departments at noon in order to give the employes an opportunity to vote.

GRAIN INSPECTION.

Another Kink in the Law Raveled by the Attorney General.

A question as to the full scope and meaning of the Nebraska warehouse law has been brought up by the action of Woodman, Ritchle & Co. of Omaha, who, after taking out a license as a public warehouse, have been receiving grain for storage without inspection by the state. It has been claimed by some that under the present law a public warehouse must have public inspection. The question has been submitted to Attorney General Hastings and the following opinion rendered:

"Section 9 of the law says that it shall be the duty of any warehousemen of classes A and B to receive for storage or shipment any grain that may be tendered to him in the usual manner in which wa enouses are accustomed to receive the same in ordinary and usual course of business, not making any discrimination between persons desiring to avail themselves of warchouse facilities; and in the case of every warehouse of class A such grain in all cases shall be inspected and graded by a duly authorized inspector and stored with grain of similar grade and received at the same time, as near as may be. Section 2, or rather paragraph 2, under section 16a, says it shall be the duty of the chief inspector of grain to have a general supervi-sion of inspection of grain as required by this act or laws of this state under the advice and immediate super-vision of the Board of Transportation. Under the law regulating these warenouses I am constrained to believe that the parties mentioned are prohibited from taking in grain of their own into this public warehouse ubless it has been properly inspected in the same manner as other grain." The Quickest Way to Cure a Cold. Do you wish to know the quickest way to cure a cold! We will tell you. To cure a cold quickly it must be treated before the cold has become settled in the system. The first symptoms of a cold is a dry, loud cough and sneezing. The cough is soon followed by watery expectoration and the sneezing by a profuse watery discharge from the nose. In severe cases there is a thin white coating on the tongue. What to do! It is only necessary to take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy in double doses every hour. That will greatly lessen the severity of the cold and in many cases will effectually counteract it, and cure what would have been a covere cold within one or two days' time. A GREAT HAND AT THE GAME. But He Quit Several Dollars Ahead on This Occasion.

He looked as green as a persimmon in August and as simple as the Simon found in nursery lore. Podunk atmosphere gathered about him, and he seemed as timid as a hare, says the Chicago Mail. Hillitted for Chicago did he seem as his queer looking clothing clung to his gaunt, ur tudinous form. ungainly and Hesitatingly accepted an invitation from a chipper-looking chap to visit a resort where he could get $2 for $1 without any trying on his p rt, and he shrunk away from a sympathetic individual who whispered to him that he was about to enter a den of thieves. Stammeringly he acquiesced in all that his guide told him, and his exshaped eyes took on a more innecent gaze as he listened to wondrous stories of big money made by sundry parties that had been led by said guide.

When called upon to put up his money he drew out from an inner pocket a comfortable looking roll of greenbacks and falteringly set up a $5 note. Timidly he drew down the winnings ($10) and was about to turn away, his inexpressive face sillier than ever, when his guide whispered to him that he ought to try his hand again.

As clay in the potter's hand he seemed. and next time, at outside suggestion, he put up $20 and again was a winner.

The Quincy street gang of five or six who were present eyed one another with decided satisfaction. Not often did so gullible a victim fall into their hands, and they could afford to let him win several times before scooping him in completely. What nice, crisp bills he did have, to be sure, and he couldn't possibly have less than $300 or $400. The pals nudged one another and smiled knowingly. He pulled in again and took in $40, which he stowed away somewhere about his person. Then he said, sweetly, to his chaperone:

Bleeged to yer, 'n' reckin I'll be go-

"Don't do it. You're in sweet luck. Try yer hand ag'in." The reticent green one assented, and, following his guide's directions, slapped up $50. Again he was winner, and with a sillier expression than ever on his face he turned about. What a plastic youth he was. The guide had but to speak, and he did.

"Put up a hundred," said his mentor. And fortnwith it came and forthwith he won $100.

That was the last. Thenceforward greeny lost one time after another, until finally, with a stupid stare, he turned to his companion and declared himself husted clean. "No, no. You've some of your win-sings left. Try your luck once more, said Mentor. But greeny was obdurate. Play he would not, but edged toward the door, and when an attempt was made to head him off he sprang forward like a scared rabbit and was soon kiting down the street and out of sight. The shrewd gamblers counted costs. In their possession was $450 in bright new bills. The awkward stranger had taken away with him $330. It now occurred to one of them that he invariably stowed away his winnings and only played his new bills. Examination

Supply of Emeralds Decrarsing. Emeralds are said to be steadily dis-appearing. In the 50s and 50s emer-alds were the favorite jewels, and were worn strung one a thrend like pearls. Such a string of emeralds was exhibited in a jeweler's window in Unter den Linden, and was estimated to be worth 12,000 marks. Now emeralds are no longer polished like diamonds. Faultless stones of a deep color have always been as valuable as diamonds. The reason of the scarcity of emeralds is the decrease in the production in the Ural mountains. Emeralds were first dis-covered on the right bank of the Toko-woler, near Katharineburg in 1830, and in the first years the harvest was a rich one. Now the decrease, both in quantity and quality, hardly repays the labor. The barvest of emeralds in Labachtal, in the Salzburger Alps, has also proved disappointing, so that emeralds are now only to be had from Australia and Muso, near Santa Fe de Bogota, in Colombia, in any appreciable quantity. The latter spot has been noted for its emeralds since the sixteenth century.
