Jerry Euex, a boy about 16 years of age, who lives near Pairview comotory, met with a fatal accident yesterday atternoon. He was out hunting squirrels near Mynster springs with a compension named William Watton. Watton climbed a tree and left Phox below with the only gan they had. While Watton was in the tree he heard the gun go cff. Looking down he saw Enox ying on the ground. He haif climbed and half tumbled down, and when he reached the bottom found that the load had struck his companion in the neck, cutting the jug-ler vein and killing him almost instantly. The remains were picked no and brought to Estep's undertaking rooms, where an inquest will be held today. The dead boy was

After Making a Display of Force an Officer's Revolver Settles the Trouble-Details of the Plan to Escape.

There are two candidates for the Iowa tate penitentiary who are cleaner this norning, in all probability, than they have cen before for many along day. And there are several more who have come to the conclusion that lineaty is a more clusive thing than an ignis fatuus or an election bet A scheme was concected yesterday by the prisoners in the county jail to make a bold break for freedom. With this end in view a first class light was gotten up at the noon hour when Sheriff Hazen was out of the city and both of his deputies had gone home to dinter. The fight was a free for all affair. It was evidently the hope of the prisoners that the jailer, a boy whom they reckoned on being able to handle, would go inside the corridor for the purpose of queiling the disurbanco. They would knock him down, disable him necessary, and walk out of the jail at their lessure. But their plan failed to work, for the juiler contented nimself with staying outside and ordering them to behave themsoives, a thing which they refused to do. Mrs. Hazen then went to the jail door, but met with a torrent of abuse from them

Word was sent to Deputies O'Brien and Hooke, and before long they arrived. O'Brien went inside, but he had no sponer done so then a couple of razors were flashed on him in the hands of "Sober" Burns, one of the men who neld up the toll-sceper at the motor bridge, and William Benzon, who hot at Officer Leuch and is now under in oretiment by the grand jury .
O'Brien immediately pulled his revolver from his pocket and snot Baras through the first finger of his right hand, sending the weapon flying from his hand. Benzon and e grappled, and ac received several small cats on ats first finger before Henzon decided to retreat. Benzon then took retuge in the teel cylinder, taking the razor with hin refused to give up the weapon, and the hose was brought to play on him. He stood on the bunk in one corner of the cell and took a shower bath for half an hour, at the end of which time he refused to surrender as stubment was given to Burns, who was finally taken from the cylinder to a cell by upstairs, to be kept there on a bread and water diet. On his way upstairs he took occasion to warn O Brien against Benzon, say-ing be was a desperate character, and would kill the first man about the jail he got a

The greater part of the trouble was caused by Buras, Benzan, Murphy and Homesey, the two latter being the fellows who went through the Pettibone residence. They showed their intention to cause trouble by raining a spower of iron spittoons, dishes and bottles on every one who came near the bars of the corridor. There were guite a number of prisoners in the jul who had been put in for trivial offenses, among others being several saloonkeepers who had negsected to pay their monthly fines. They asked in anxious tonos of voice yesterday afternoon if they could be released on the payment of their fines.

HIS BURDEN WAS TOO BEAVY. Financial Embarrassment Causes Anton

Rink to Take His Own Life. Anton Rink, who kept a grocery at 201 Main street, shot and killed himself instantly yesterday morning. He had been complaining of feeling unwell and did not want to get up at his usual time. His wife went down stairs to attend store while the clerk, Billy Smith, went to breakfast. Shortly after going down she heard her little girl call her to come un stairs at once. She went up and found her husband lying on the floor by the bedside unconscious, with the blood streaming from a great hole in the middle of his forchead. She at first thought he had struck his head against the washstand that stood near, but a moment later she discovered a 38-camber revolver lying near him on be floor and she learned the awful truth. The coroner was notified and the remains were taken to Lunkley's undertaking rooms, where it was declided to hold an inquest at 4 p. m.

An examination showed that the revolver must have been held light against Rink's head when it went off, as the skin was not powder burned and a large share of the powder had evidently exploded after it got peneath the skip, as the skip was forced out ward and two long incisions running at right angles had been made. The ball had gone clear through the head and come out at the

A number of reasons were assigned for the suicide. He was in a very straightened con-dition financially and his health had been very noor for a long time nast. It is also said by his friends that a little over a year ago be met with a sunstroke that unbal-auced his mind, and ever since he has shown the effects in his actions.

An laquest was need during the afterneon, and the testimony of Mrs. Rink, John Schultz, J. D. King and W. T. Smith, the bartender, was heard. They all agreed that Mr. Rink's actions had indicated insanity at times ever since he attended the funeral of a friend on the 16th of August, 1891, and was sunstruck on his way home. Smith's te-timony was especially interesting. He stated that he and Rink had had a conversa-tion a few days age in which Rink said that if the democra's didn't do better than the republicans on the subject of prohibition he was going to kill himself; he couldn't make it pay. Smith tried to talk him out of his despondency, although at the time he thought he was trying to joke him because he (Smith) was a redublican.

After the testimony was all in the jury re-tired and immediately rendered a verdict, finding that the deceased came to his death from a pistol shot, fired by his own hand while in a fit of temporary aberration of the

OLD IRONSIDES. Reminiscences of the Career of the Historic

Constitution. New York Sun: Not many people may know that the old frigate Constitution, so renowned in our annals, is still included among the vessels of the navy. She is dismantled, as might be expected at her age, and is kept in that condition at Portsmouth, N. H. She is a craft of 2,200 tons displacement and now carries no battery in place of the forty-four guns of the days of her glory. It was the Constitution that, after the inauspicious opening on land of our war with Great Britaia eighty years ago, led off a series of splendid victories on the sea. The honor of the first capture of a British war vessel undoubtedly belongs to the Essex, Captain David Porter, whose defeat of the Alert occurred six days before the Constitution destroyed the Guerriere. But the Essex Mrs. Harrison had four lovely Maitese carried thirty-two thirty-two-pounders and the Alert only twenty eighteenpounders; so that very soon after opening fire the crew of the little British craft, which, having captured one of our transports, had made up to the Essex, taking her to be a merchantman, were compelled to quit their guns and within eight minutes to strike their flag. This conquest, though gratifying, was inevitable; whereas that of the Constitution was gained over a craft nearer her own size and strength.

But while yielding the laurels of priority to the gallant Essex on this score, the Constitution, under Captain Isaac Hull, can claim them again for success in a trial of seamanship between herself and a British squadron. Till then affairs were looking gloomy for us at sea as well as on land. The British frigate Belvidere, while convoying a fleet of merchantmen, had escaped from a whole squadron of our war ships, whereas our Nautilus had struck to an English squadron, being the first war ship captured on either side. Under these untoward circumstances the Constitution, returning from Europe, in with a British squadron the Africa, a sixty-four-gun ship. During four days she was chased by this squadron. Through calm and through breeze the flight and pursuit went on. At one time she had boats out towing her; at another her crew were hauling upon a kedge anchor that had been carried out and dropped a long distance ahead. On the fourth day the longed-for wind came, and, with every sail set, the Constitution drew away from her pursuers, the scene when five frigates were standing on the same tack and the Constitution was showing he heels to the enemy being often recount-ed eighty years ago. Some of the historians describe this as the first of our triumphs on the sea in that war.

But in our time, of course, the fame o. the Constitution is more familiarly asso ciated with her capture of the Guerriere It was on August 19, 1812, that the two vessels met, both eager for a fight. The scene was off the coast of Massachusetts. The British craft, commanded by the gallant Dacres, was first to open fire, but Hull maneuvered his vessel into the right position before he replied. The enemy's mizzenmast soon went by the board, followed by her mainmast. When she struck she was, in fact, so completely used up that she could not be taken into port, and had to be blown up. The Constitution was superior in tonnage and complement, carried more guns and threw a much heavier weight of metal in her broadside; still the vessels were near enough matched for the victory to produce a tremendous impression on both sides of the ocean. scribes the "shock of this unwonted naval disaster" in England, where the belief that Britannia ruled the waves was so profound that the American navy had seemed to be a mere mouthful fo

That same year the Constitution, under Buinbridge, gained another great victory over the Java, off the coast of B azil. The Java, like her preceessor was a 38-gon ship, and in the battle she lost her foremast and mizzenmast, besides a part of her bowsprit, while, to complete the parallel, like the Guerriere, she was so wrecked in the fight that she had to be blown up, It was great exhibition of good sea menshi and superior gunnery on the part of th American vessel, for, as Cooper says "the Java had been literally picked to pieces by shot, spar following spar until she had not one left." Her loss in killed and wounded was very heavy. Finally, in 1815, under command of commodore Stewart, the famous old ship made a double capture of the British frigate Cyane and sloop Levant.

Old Ironsides, as she had come to be called during the war, was launched at Boston in 1797, and who knows but when the 100th anniversary of that event comes around she may again be put into commission, so as to receive centennial honors?

CATS ON THE PAYROLL.

Three Hundred Pussies Employed by the Government. Three hundred and odd cats are maintained by the United States government, the cost of their support being carried as a regular item on the accounts of the Postoffice department. They are dis-Postoffice department. tributed among about fifty postoffices, and their duty is to keep rats and mice from eating postal matter and mail sacks. Their work, is of the utmost importance wherever large quanties of mail are collected, as, for example, at the New York postoffice, where 2,000 to 3,000 bags of such material are comgreat damage

Troubles of this sort no longer occur now that the official pussies stand guard. Each city postmaster is allowed rom $8 to $10 a year for the keep of his feline staff, sending his estimate for "cat meat" to Washington at the beginning of each quarter. Care is taken not to feed the animals too high in order that their appetite for live game may be keen. It is laid down as a rule that no meat shall be given when there is a mouse or a rat to be caught. Cats are kept in all the government buildings at Washington. In that of the State, War and Navy depart-ments they are employed not only to protect the pricaless papers stored there, but to guard against fire. Twice the War department has been set affre by rats gnawing matches on one of these occasions in the office of the secretary of war in the middle of the night. A year ago the treasury had nine cats, but they made themselves obnoxious and all were given away bu two. These are as wild as possible, getting a living by foraging for themselves. Mice are notoriously fon I of chewing up money, but they have no chance to get at Uncle Sam's paper cash which is kent in rooms with iron walls that defy their teeth Rats occupied the pension office in great numbers while it was in process of building, taking up their residence in the walls and floors as fost as they were put up. Two years ago four cats were introduced there to guard the records of the old soldiers and they have driven most of the vermin away. The best rat killer of the quartet, not long ago, being frightened at something fell from the second gallery fifty feet to the tiled floor and was killed. The white house has two cats, one a black and white female, kept in the kitchen, and the other a black Tom, which belongs in the stable. pussies, but they all disappeared-stolen, very likely.

But the capitol is the greatest place in Washington for cats. The huge structure is fairly aswarm with them, and at night they scamper about in troops. Nobody knows how many of them there are, but the watchmen reckon them by scores. They are all vagrants, and wild as kawks. In summer they are scattered about the neighborhood to some extent, but in winter they gather about the building. At about 10 o'clock every night they begin a mad racing through the empty corridors, which are made to resound with their cries. The acoustic effects produced are astonishing. Let a single grimalkin lift up his voice in Statuary hall, famous for its echoes, and the silence of the night is broken by a vell like that of a damned soul, as loud as a locomotive whistle. A favorite place for cat concerts is the whispering gallery, down below, known as the "crypt," where the feeblest sound is magnified into a roar. Imagine the demoniacal ensemble of half a dozen feline songsters in such a soot!

The British government pays certain sums, regularly passed through the accounts quarterly, for providing and keeping cats in public offices, dockyards and storehouses. Rats and mice used to do a great deal of damage to paper in the imperial printing office of but now a sum is appropriated yearly for maintaining a stiff of cats there, which are fed twice a day and carefully coked after by a man who is paid for that service. In Vienna four cats are employed by the authorities to catch mice on the premises of the munici pality. A regular allowance is voted for their keep, and after a reasonable period of active servive they are placed on the retired list with comfortable nen The Midland railway of England supports eight cats at Trent, which are borne on the company's pay rolls for milk and meat. Their duty is to guard the hundreds of thousands of empty corn sicks, and the importance of their work may be estimated from the fact that twelve women are engaged all the year round darning holes eaten by rats in the sacks.

Look Out for Meteors.

New York Times: November is al vays conspicuous for one thing, so that if there are no other very marked phenomena, we are always sure of having one distinctive feature, and that is the meteors. The earth in November will surely plunge through the great meteor zone that lies in her pathway about the 14th, and meteors will be seen on the nights of the 13th, 14th and 15th, though no one can tell beforehand whether more brilliant display than usual will reward the patient watch of the ob server or whether the falling stars will be few and far between. Every year brings as one step nearer to the expected epoch when the meteor will fall like the raindrops in a tropical storm and the heavens will seem to be on fire. The year 1839 is set for this grand celestial illumination, and 'tis not so very far away. Each succeeding year between now and then may show us an increasing pyrotechic display. It is thought that in course of time, instead of a number of years clapsing between successive meteoric showers, there will be a display well worthy of our admiration each year. The meteors are technically known as Leonids, because the point from which they seem to radiate is in the constellation of the Lion, which is known astronomically as Leo, and is easily distinguished from other groups They move swiftly, are characterized by a greenish or bluish tint, while the trains they leave behind are brilliant, and remain at any time during the night. The Leonids have a romantic history It has been proven that in the year 126 of our era Temple's comet came very near Uranus, which turned the comet from its course and imprisoned it within our system. It has ever since continued to revolve in the orbit in which it was compelled to move by a resistless power, the perihelion resting on the earth's orbit and the aphelion reaching beyond the orbit of Uranus. The comet reaches the earth's crossing place once in thirtythree and a quarter years, and then the great meteoric showers occur. In the case of the Leonids the meteor swarm follows the comet. Many astronomers believe that the comet itself is the thickest part of the swarm and that the moteor swarms are simply the debris of

LIBERTY'S NEW NIGHT DRESS. It Isn't Quite Done, but She Wears Her

Diadem of Fire Already. Evening strollers on the Battery have missed for some time the lights of the Goddess of Liberty on Bedloc's island. About two months ago the authorities concluded to make some decided improvements on the lights, says the Nev York Sun, and the statue was shrouded in darkness while they were being completed. For the past week, however, a partial notion of the whole new lighting has been afforded by the sight of so much as has been accomplished by the electricians who have the work in hand. The goddess now wears a flery diadem every night. It is composed of two parallel rows of incandescent lights, whose giobes are of white, red and blue glass, rranged in regular succession. Each of these rows is made up of twenty-seven lights, each one of which has a power of fifty candles, making a total power of 2,700 candles. The genera! effect as seen from the Battery is the flery crown upon the brow. The torch is illuminated with a single are light of 6,000 candle power, which is to have a large reflector to multiply its luminosity. In addition to this a skylight is to be inserted in the top of the torch. The effect of this will not be observeds on a clear night, but whenever the air is misty, or contains dust or fog in any quantity, the skylight is expected to throw the light high up in the air and to cause an intense luminosity overhead. This skylight will contain glass of different colors, which will make a general effect of a softer and more genial light than the ordinary electric carbon affords. To crown the whole, a powerful searchlight, placed on the ground in front of the statue, will be turned full on the face.

Among the tyrannies of memory there is one which particularly puzzles me, says a writer in the Atlantic. I have even come to dread the edged ino cisiveness, this scrupulous circumstantiality of memory; and I often fall to speculating as to what now happening will be in future recalled with special poignancy.
