WORK OF THE INVESTIGATING COMMITTEE

Necessity for Devising Means by Which the Government's Revenues Can Be Inoreased - Plans Proposed - A Higher Tax on Whisky.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 16 .- The subcommittee of the ways and means committee on the investigation of the treasury expects to receive the latter part of this week a large amount of information from the treasury experts, showing the receipts and expenditures of the government. These officials, under the direction of Secretary Foster, have been at work steadily for three weeks, and their work is expected to throw a great deal of light on the state of the government's finances and the problem which Mr. Cleveland's administration and the democratic party will have to meet the next two years. It can be said that the statement will not show a deficit in the treasury or the probability of one during the present fiscal year, but a close analysis of it is expected to show that Secretary Foster at times had a hard task "making both ends meet," and that his successor will be likely, unless refleved by legislation at this session raising additional revenue, to have even a harder task with the pensions steadily increasing.

Estimate of Funds Available July L. Secretary Foster has informed members of congress that there will be an available balance in the treasury July 1 next of $20,-000,000. This balance, however, includes nothing for the sinking fund, of which the annual requirements are $48,000,000. Democratic members of congress expect to show that there have been times when a deficiency was prevented by a policy of not paying anything today, the payment of which could be put off until tomorrow.

Not a single new public building has been provided for during this congress, but there still remains over $14,000,000 to be expended on account of public buildings and $11,000,000 against which there are no outstanding contradts. There are also other matters in which the government revenues made it necessiry for the treasury to "go slow" for fear that for the first time in many years the balance would be on the wrong side of the ledger. Added to this state of afhirs is the heavy increase for pension payments, which next year will be many millions greater (unless the grant of new pensions is diminished), more than enough to wipe out the $20,000,000 of expected surples on June 1.

Thise things are giving the party about to which the government revenues made it

Thise things are giving the party about to come into power considerable concern, and in order that the new administration may go alon smoothly, it is considered highly de-siralle that the treasurg should have a good worlling balance of $50.000,000 more. Secretary Foster will probably be examined on this point, and on the means of raising the money. In his annual report the secretary

"The receipts of the current and the next fiscal year are not likely, if present condi-tions continue, to fall below expenditures. Yet, in view of the fact that the surplus for this year will be small, with the probability of a falling off in receipts, I think the reve-nues should be so increased as to enable the Treasury department to maintain a gold re-serve of not less than $125,000,000 to maintain a comfortable working balance. As a general revision of our customs laws is not probable, I do not feel like suggesting any special method for increasing the revenue, though I should otherwise think that an additional tax on whisky, which could be collected without additional cost, would fur-nish an easy method."

The result of their investigation will de-pend upon whether or not the ways and means committee will recommend legislation means committee will recommend the sanction increasing the revenues at this session. Owing to the nearness of the end of this congress, the probabilities are against any actual legislation, though the facts may develop so strongly as to necessitate immediate nction to force both parties to work together -the republicans in order that a deficiency early in the coming administration may not se laid at their doors, and the democrats to be laid at their doors, and the democrats to maintain the credit of the incoming adminis-tration. At present the plan suggested, which is regarded as most expedient, is the increase of the whisky tax. The increase would raise over $35,000,000 additional yearly, if the law could be so framed to af-fect whisky in bond. fect whisky in bond.

Must Be Met Some Time.

It is considered possible that the distillers would meet the increased tax by taking whisky out of bond at the present rate. It is pointed out, however, that the large amount of immediate revenue would give the government a working balance for some time to come, and that after a few months the in-creased tax would begin to bring in more revenue to meet the increasing pension payments. There are many persons who prefer to revise the whole taxing system at once, but against this course it is urged that the trouble over the withdrawal from bond of whisky because of an increased tax will have to be met some time, and it had better be met now, so that there will be more revenue from internal sources to meet the increase of expenses, hence, at a time when the cus-toms revenues will be falling off in advance of a probable new tariff law.

What the outcome will be is of course uncertain at this time, but matters may soon develop by action on the part of the ways and means committee,

Favors a Higher Tax on Whisky. Representative Scott, Illinois, is the father of the proposition to increase the whisky tax to $1.25 a gallon. He has introduced a bill on the subject. When asked about it he first disclaimed any intention to benefit the whisky trust and said: "The point about my bill is that it would give point about my bill is that it would give additional revenue to the government with-out a cent more of expense in the collection, even on the theory that those persons who say that the government would not get the increased tax on the large quantity of spirits already manufactured, the bill would give the government a considerable amount of money at this time when the treasury needs ey at this time when the treasury needs all the revenues it can get. There might be less whisky taken out subsequently, but cer-tainly the increased tax would produce the now. No one can tell, of course hat will happen in the next few months. The whisky trust, like any other institution, would make all the money it could. Congress can't always refuse to legislate because that body is going to specu-

Senators Again Discuss the Anti-Option Bill -Other Matters Considered. Washington, D. C., Jan. 16.—Three prepared speeches were read in the senate todice The first was by Mr. Morrill, republican, against the McGarraan bill; the second by Mr. Peffer, populist, in favor of a constitutional amendment limiting the presidential office to one term, and the third by Mr. Cali, democrat, in defense of the constitutionality of the anti-option bill.

After a quorum was procured as the result of a call of the senate, some considerable progress was made on the anti-option bill. A motion was agreed to fixing July 13, 1888, as the time when the bill is to go into effect. In the House. LINCOLN, Neb., Jan. 16 .- [Special to THE Bgg. | -Will Nebraska have a state fair this year? is one of the questions to be decided at the meeting of the State Board of Agriculture, which begins in this city tomorrow afternoon. The matter has not been discussed heretofore, but from the sentiment of Washington, D. C., Jan. 16.-Coming over rom the former suspension day was a bill to ettle and adjust claims of Arkansas and the members who have so far drifted in, there promises to be a very lively debate over it. Some of the members are quoted as saying Mr. McRay, democrat, from Arkansas, stated that the amount involved was about that it would be a losing venture to hold a fair in Nebraska this year when Mr. Tracy, democrat, from New York, argued that directly or indirectly it would lead to an expenditure of at least $70,000,000. It might be that Arkansas was entitled to the money claimed by it, but it did not go about claiming it in a creditable manner. It had sought to bring in a log-rolling bill which, by insperting the claims of the World's fair will undoubtedly draw thousands from the state who would therwise attend the state exposition. Still others contend that if liberal speed premiums are given and a general effort made to secure good horses, there will be no lack of attendance, and the agricultural displays manner. It had sought to bring in a log-rolling bill which, by inserting the claims of other states, might gain in strength. There was a lobby here in favor of the measure, and he hoped it would not pass. Mr. McIkne answered in an impassioned manner, declaring the statement of Mr. Tracy, that this was a lobby measure, to be untrue. It was an unmanly statement and was an unwarranted attack upon a just measure and one that must have been in-spired by some one interested in the defeat of this bill. attendance, and the agricultural displays are sure to prove as good as ever. The railroads are also divided in interest, the Burlington being strongly in favor of one and the Rock Island and one or two others being against it. It is impossible to say what will be done, but it is one of the "burning questions" to be decided. R. H. Henry of Columbus will succeed John Jensen as president.
