Pending Vote on the Anti-Option Bill Made Fluctuations Wild.

WHEAT, CORN AND OATS CLOSED LOWER

Rumors that the Measure Had Been Defeated in the Senate on a Close Vote Caused a Temporary Advance in Wheat.

CHICAGO, Ill., Jan. 31.—The pending vote in the senate on the anti-option bill made trade very dull today, and the expectation that it would pass made the market weak for all speculative trade.

The pending vote on the anti-option bill was a great damper on speculation as the market was inclined to wait for the outcome. When the market was quiet and the anti-option bill had not started a rumor that the anti-option bill had not been defeated by five votes.

she waited until her limbs became cramped and the night air chilled her to the bone.

"I might as well lie down again," she thought. "I reckon uncle's gone down the valley for he 'lowed today as he'd have to go after coffee right away. I could wait for the man, but I somehow I don't want to wait."

But a second trial of the bed was no better than the first. The peddler's heavy breathing was over in her ears, and her thoughts reverted constantly to the sense of touch that vaguely, yet persistently kept her upon the tenderhooks of anxiety.

"I wish mornin' would come," she said for the hundredth time. "Lord! what a moonin' there'll be then!"

The sound of a stealthy foot fall upon the gravel without brought her to a sitting posture at once. Her heart beat loudly as she listened breathlessly. Yes, it was moving around the house. Now she heard the man's feet. Two feet, like eyes gleamed sharply upon the peddler from amid a shaggy tangle of white hair and beard.

He placed his long rifle in a rack over the door, unslung his shot-pouch and stepped into the room. Two feet, like eyes gleamed sharply upon the peddler from amid a shaggy tangle of white hair and beard.
