

HIGH SALARIED MANAGERSHIP

Uncle Thomas Used Nephew Thomas to Beat Creditors.

UNCLE THOMAS ALLOWED $500 A MONTH

Now Suing for $65,000 Salary for Managing His Own Property, Which Was Deeded Back to Him Long Ago.

A large sized family quarrel has been transferred to the court of Judge Scott, where John D. Thomas is arrayed against his nephew, John P. Thomas, of whom he claims $65,000.

John D. Thomas, the uncle, is an old man who stands on the verge of the grave and the other not far from the brink. In estimating his health he is compelled to use five figures in writing down the amount, though he was not always so rich, for some forty years ago he came to Omaha a poor man. During the early years of his residence in this city he worked hard and by practicing the closest economy succeeded in laying away some money. This he invested in real estate, which rapidly increased in value as the years rolled along. City lots were added to his lands and many farms were purchased in possession until he owned or controlled some twenty acres, when he reversed course, and there was a prospect of all of the property being swept away, as the creditors were numerous and greedy.

How He Saved His Bacon.

To save the accumulations, all of the possessions were deeded to the nephew, who then resided in St. Louis. There was a consideration named in the instrument, but in reality there was never a cent of money passed between the uncle and the nephew. The old man concluded that his young nephew might do him dirt and in order that there might be no advantage taken of the condition of circumstances, the old man demanded a contract of some sort. Together the two men found an attorney, who drew up a contract by which the nephew should pay the uncle $500 per month as services for looking after the property and paying the taxes. Time continued to roll along until, once again, the nephew was on his feet and ahead of the bonds. Then the two relatives got together again and the property was deeded back to the uncle, though 200 acres of Washington county were given to the nephew as a gift, and as his compensation for holding the other property out of the reach of the creditors of the uncle. Thomas, however, was so much so that in the settlement of affairs the elder contract was forgotten and was not destroyed.

Bound to Get it Back.

A few years later the two men had some difficulty and the uncle demanded the Washington county land, declaring that it was his and that the deed did not count. This demand surprised young Thomas, though he did not say a word until suit was commenced to set the transfer aside. This case was tried last spring and the court held that the transfer, though made as a gift, was for a consideration and could not be set aside. The trial lasted for several days and was attended with several sensational features, the principal one being a fist fight in the corridor just outside the court room. In this engagement the uncle came out second best, being felled by his nephew, though there was an arrest and a hearing in the police court, where the nephew was declared the winner, as the case was dismissed, the judge holding that there was no assault by the young man.

Angered by his continued failures, the uncle at once brought suit in the district court, alleging that under the terms of that old contract the nephew owed him more than $65,000 for caring for the property, which he decided over and again got back into his possession.

FAVORING OMAHA.

Differential on Packing House Products Shipped to California.

For a year or more the South Omaha packers have felt that they were not receiving fair treatment at the hands of transcontinental railroads, and at every important meeting of the old Transcontinental association they were present with a prayer for relief against Chicago, the rate on packing house product from the latter city to Pacific coast points being the same as from South Omaha. But invariably the local packers were beaten by Chicago packers and the rate remained the same.

When the disruption of the Transcontinental association occurred a new light dawned for South Omaha and the packers in the Magic City succeeded in interesting the freight men of the Great Northern, Northern Pacific and Union Pacific, at their meeting held in Chicago, in the rate on packing house product, making a difference of 10 cents per 100 on packing house products in favor of South Omaha against Chicago to Portland and the sound country.

Having accomplished this much, the packers did not rest on their oars but determined to secure the rate on the Pacific coast, if possible, and a telegram from one of the general freight agents attending the meeting of the California lines received yesterday announcing that the tariff promulgated by the Great Northern, Northern Pacific and Union Pacific has been adopted by the California lines.

Freight Traffic Manager Munroe of the Union Pacific and General Freight Agent Crosby of the Burlington have labored earnestly to secure this concession to South Omaha packers. Time was when Mr. Munroe controlled all the California business so far as packing house products were concerned, but lately he has abandoned his efforts to secure trade on the Pacific coast, and this may account for the ability of the South Omaha packers to secure the present rate.

But the triumph is not the least appreciable, and South Omaha packers have to congratulate their representatives in the meeting of the California lines, for the concession. The new tariff also includes other reductions, but the South Omaha packers are more generally affected than any other class of shippers.

WALKING MATCH.

Arrangements Made for the Pedestrian Tour

The walk from this city to Fremont is a goal of all of the arrangements, with the exception of some of the minor details, have been completed. Last night the promoters of the undertaking met at Schroeder's hall, Twenty-fourth and Cumins streets, where they spent some time in outlining the program.

As a result of the meeting it is announced that at 10 o'clock on the evening of April 8 thirty heavy going men will leave this city in a gas-on-please race, the destination being Turner hall, Fremont, the intention being to reach there at about 10 o'clock in the morning of the next day. The route will be the old Military road. One of the conditions of the race is that no active runner, nor any man who has ever walked for money shall enter. Being present in the best accessible form of the young men will fall by the wayside, ten wagons will go along to pick up the maimed and the wounded.

Each man who enters puts up $5 as a guarantee that he will walk until he tires. As an inducement for them to keep upon their feet a number of prizes will be offered. The first prize will be $25 cash and a gold medal of the value of $50. In addition to this there will be several smaller prizes. Upon reaching Fremont the walkers will be met by the promoters of that city and will be escorted to the hall, where an athletic entertainment will be given.

Pitches of people have piles, but De Witt's Witch Hazel Salve will cure them.

A New Feature in Jewish Worship.

One of the ritual changes soon to be introduced in the services at the Harney Street Temple is the introduction of congregational singing. Heretofore the music has been furnished by the choir, which consists of one of the best quartets in the city. For some time, however, Rev. Franklin has advocated congregational singing, and with that end in view has organized a choral society among the members of his congregation. The first rehearsal, which was very successful, took place last Monday night, and the next will occur this evening. It is not intended that this congregational singing shall supplant the choir, but rather that it shall be an addition to it.

BETTER WEATHER.

Local Forecaster Hunt Secures Needed Additional Facilities for Omaha Office. Captain C. E. Hunt, forecaster of the Omaha weather bureau, returned yesterday from a two weeks sojourn in Washington, D. C. He is elated over the results of his trip. Speaking today of the additional facilities that he had secured for the Omaha office weather service he said: "You will remember that when I came to Omaha and saw the condition of this office and the meager facilities with which we had to operate, I said that I believed if the chief of the weather service fully understood the situation we would soon have a different state of affairs here. I said this because I know Mr. Harrington to be a broad minded and perfectly fair man. Well, I have now the proofs in my pocket for better facilities here, he has granted even more than I had hoped for in my most sanguine expectations."

genuine expectations. From now on the Omaha office is to be second to none in the country. To begin with we are to have new quarters. We will get out of this garret and get into new, more commodious and respectable quarters, and just as soon as I can select them and make the change.

In a few days, I will make a vast improvement in the appearance of the daily weather map brought about by the receipt of additional telegraph reports from fifteen weather stations in the southwest and north-east. I have also been allowed an additional assistant who will arrive in about six weeks.

There is also another matter, more important and far-reaching than any of the ones mentioned, but I am not at liberty just now to state what it is. But in due course of time you will see something still better. I am very much pleased with the outlook for the Omaha office."

ANNOUNCEMENTS.

"L'Absintheur" will be presented twice, and for the last time this season, at the Boyd today, a special matinee at 2:30 being given in addition to the regular evening performance. For the matinee 50 cents will secure any seat in the theater.

Tonight a most noteworthy event of the theatrical season occurs at the Farnam Street theater, when Mr. Charles Hanford begins a three nights engagement, presenting the Booth and Barrett scenic production of Shakespeare's "Julius Caesar." Mr. Hanford was for four years the leading support of the Booth and Barrett during their confinement here, and his performance of Mark Antony has a measurable recollection of his performance. His support is excellent, and the play is a new treat. Mr. Hanford, with Julia Marlowe, who has been in the city, made an enviable reputation supporting Thomas W. Keene. The scenery used will be the original Booth and Barrett scenery, which was purchased by Mr. Hanford upon the death of Lawrence Barrett. Manager Burgess has shown much commendable enterprise in securing the play, and if it may not command financial success he certainly deserves it. The regular popular prices of the house will not be advanced.

That clever comedian, Mr. E. H. Sothern, makes his first visit to the New Boyd tomorrow evening, continuing till the end of the week. Bare announcement of the fact is sufficient to insure a land office business at the box office, where the sale of seats is now being made. Mr. Sothern has said the title role of the comedy, the character of an Irish officer, debt-burdened care-less and big-hearted, suits him better than any he has ever acted. Mr. Sothern has some things historic so entirely delightful as Sothern's acting in what may be most aptly styled Sothern comedy.

Next week's attraction at the Boyd will be "The Old Homestead," while at the Farnam will be seen "The Danger Signal."

"The Fugitive," the new drama at the Bijou, is drawing good houses. Mr. Barlow does some excellent work as Jack Leavitt, the fugitive, but the heavy weight falls on the shoulders of Mr. George Wessolis, in the character of Jasper Raleigh, which he admirably portrays. Miss Eiting is also seen to good advantage as Hester Mason, and the balance of the company are all equal to their respective roles. The scenery being the same in this play as in "The Old Homestead" is of a high order, and every lady visitor for this week is receiving two silver metal teaspoons as a souvenir.

MR. SLAUGHTER'S STATEMENT.

Says He Has No Warrant for the Arrest of Bank Wrecker Mosher.

In response to an inquiry yesterday United States Marshal Slaughter had a word of explanation to offer upon the status of the Mosher indictments. He said that Mr. Mosher was arrested upon the first indictment found by the grand jury, and while he was in the custody of the marshal the jury found a second indictment.

"There would be no sense in my arresting him a second time when we already had him. How could we arrest a man who was in our custody? The jury might have brought in a dozen indictments against him and so long as he was in the custody of the court there would have been no sense in attempting to arrest him again. The court had possession of this second indictment when Mosher was admitted to bail, and when bail was accepted that made him a free man under bond until the time of trial should arrive. Mosher wanted to rush right off to state's prison, but fearing that there might be danger of shutting out some valuable evidence by too much haste in the trial, the grand jury postponed the hearing of the case until the May term of court. As to this matter of the first indictment not being strong enough to hold Mosher, I will say that the second indictment is in the hands of the court and in case the first indictment did not stick the clutches of the government could easily be laid on Mr. Mosher by means of the second indictment before he got out of the court room. But I think it is better to let the case go as it is, and let the district attorney have the power, if he so desires, to bring the evidence in the second indictment into the trial as well as that contained in the first."

Mr. Slaughter then called in Mr. Lyon, his assistant, and asked him if the capias in the second indictment was validly brought to the marshal's office. Mr. Lyon said he had never seen it. The capias must, therefore, be in the possession of the clerk of the court.

Speaking of the probable basis of prosecution in the case, Mr. Baker said yesterday he should like to be in Omaha at the time the Mosher case is called up in United States court he would combine the two indictments before entering upon the prosecution of the case.

These Qualities

By the most elaborate researches, careful study and costly experiments Dr. Price has been enabled to give to the world the purest, strongest and most economical natural and delicious fruit flavors in existence; free from all poisonous oils, ethers or artificial essences. It is these qualities that have created such a great demand for Dr. Price's Delicious Flavoring Extracts of Lemon, Vanilla, Orange, etc., flavors that retain all their delicate taste and freshness for an indefinite period.

CHAPTER II. A good common sense analysis will prove the purity of our wines and liquors without going to the expense of hiring a chemist. Take California wines, for instance. We can buy them cheaper than we can make imitations. Two or three years ago this might not have held good, but it does now; and the best of proof is that all the distilleries, who once made good imitations, are now buying their wines direct from the vineyard and their machinery lies idle.
