Want the Partnership Dissolved.

L. A. Devine has filed a petition in the district court asking for an accounting between L. H. Hanscom and himself in the partnership that was formed a few months ago for the purpose of carrying on a transfer business. He alleges that the firm bought a number of lots in Rohrer's subdivision a few months ago, on which it was the intention of erecting an implement warehouse. Hanscom paid for Devine's share to the extent of $600, requiring as security for it a quit claim to the property. This quit claim deed was not to be placed on record, but Hanscom had it recorded, and when Devine offered him $1,000 for his interest he paid out the difference and released the property. Hanscom refused to receive the property to him. He accordingly says that Hanscom's actions have rendered it impossible for the partnership to continue, and he asks for an accounting and a decree of the court dissolving the partnership. Mr. Hanscom, when asked about the matter, refused to make any statement.

Investigation.

The Perpetual Mortality Bonding Co. of Council Bluffs devotes the most thoughtful consideration and thorough investigation of its methods and plans. The company is incorporated under the laws of Iowa. It is endorsed at home and abroad. It is not something entirely new. The principal is old, dating back even to the eleventh century, but its application is new. There is one other similar organization in the United States, organized little more than a year ago, and today it has a membership of over 21,000 and is growing faster than any other mutual benefit organization in the world. This is only so because the moment its principles are understood they are approved. The Perpetual Mortality Bonding company has been in operation but a few weeks, but it has already matured two of its bonds at a total cost of $20,000 each, and the third is nearly ready for collection. There is no surplus piling up to tempt dishonesty. Every time $1,000 is accumulated it is paid to the holder of a bond. It is a mutual organization, where all help each other. Look it up, inquire for further information to the home offices, rooms 234 and 236, Meridian block, Council Bluffs, Ia.

A German Soldier.

This new comedy-drama is to be presented at Dohany's theater this afternoon and evening and again tomorrow night by James A. Reilly, the dialect comedian and singer. The plot deals with events of the Franco-Prussian war. Max (Mr. Reilly) a German youth, is in love with Lena, the pretty daughter of Dr. Zweifel. Count Willmark is also in love with Lena, and through his desire to get rid of a rival has Max drafted into the army. The play is amusing and at the same time thrilling and exciting. Mr. Reilly introduces a number of songs and dances and pleasantly delineates the jovial German.

Monday night Sutton's "Uncle Tom's Cabin" company will be at Dohany's. They are very strongly endorsed by the secretary of the Opera House association at Lincoln.

Why Is This Thus?

TOP COCONUT.

It is to be hoped the council will do something satisfactory with the Union Depot company's petition tomorrow night. A liberal and conciliatory spirit about this important matter is what is now needed. At this time Council Bluffs cannot afford to take any backward step, or one that will in any way chill or retard our future business interests.

Yesterday Colonel W. F. Baker was given the contract to furnish the Union Pacific Railway company 500 cords of wood. He read the advertisement in the Nonpareil, and now reaps the benefit—Nonpareil.

Heaven in a Shoe Store.

That was the ecstatic exclamation of a lady in F. H. Evans' shoe store yesterday afternoon. It was all on account of the perfection and beauty of a pair of shoes that had just been fitted to her feet; shoes that required no "breaking in," that didn't pinch anywhere; that fitted like gloves and were as easy as old slippers. When the lady realized that she would not have to endure the pangs usually accompanying the first few days wearing of a pair of fine shoes, she remarked fervently: "This is heavenly-heaven in a shoe store."

Beck filed a petition stating that the assignee is in default in his payment of the amount due, for which he is entitled by law, and wants a decree of court giving him the homestead and preventing any interference from the assignee.

Judge Deemer has rendered a decision in an important case which was tried before him recently. The citizens of Red Oak are principally interested in the decision, but it has an indirect interest to the people throughout the state from the fact that it sits at rest, for the time being at least, a much vexed question as to whether school elections are to be carried on under the same rules as city elections, that is, by the Australian ballot system or by the old method of other taxpayers of the town of Red Oak swear on a writ of injunction of $80,000 worth of bonds that had been voted for the erection of a high school building at the election held a couple of months ago. This was done at the instance of Judge Deemer, and he has had it under advisement ever since. In his decision he holds that the Australian ballot system is not to be used, according to the provisions of the state law, in elections of school-directors, or special elections held to elect trustees of town schools and districts. The issuance of the bonds is therefore entirely legal, the injunction is denied, and the people of Red Oak will have their high school unless the heavy taxpayers find some other way of preventing it. This is the first time the question has ever come up, and it may have even brought up in any state court, and the decision of Judge Deemer will be an interesting precedent.
