SCHOOL ELECTION PROSPECTS.

Fitzpatrick Will Succeed Himself and Conoyer Will Probably Retire.

The topic of the day in educational circles is the approaching election of several of the officials of the city schools. It is the pre-

With regard to the position of secretary of the board it is a little mixed. Mr. Conoyer has given it out pretty straight that he does not intend to ask for re-election. He is looking after much larger game at present and the position of secretary of the board would only be in his way next fall, when he expects to make a strong pull for the ap-pointment as postmaster of Omaha.

It is understood that ex-Superintendent James would not be averse to an election to the position which he filled for nine years but he does not seem to be making much of a push for the place as yet, although he has friends who have been working in his interests and hope to secure his selection.

The specialty company which opened a on the bill, and there are nine, is in the care of people most excellent in their class. It is a particular pleasure to sit and watch a real specialty performance such as that given by the Hopkins combination. From the Dixon

Brothers' musical specialties, which begin the program, to the clever conjuring of Le

Roy, which ends it, every act is interesting

The marvelous balancing of Mile. Barthold and the wonderful juggling of Kara are per

OPPOSED TO INVESTIGATION

Democratic Senators Do Not Want Roach's Record Looked Up.

DBJECT ON CONSTITUTIONAL GROUNDS

Chandler Makes a Strong Plea in Favor of Holding Such an Inquiry-Voorhees Speaks in Defense of the Accused Senator.

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 14 .- The senate was occupied during the greater part of the day with the resolution for the investigation of the charges against Senator Roach of North Dakota.

As soon as the journal of yesterday was read, Mr. Roach rose and addressed the chair. He said: "Mr. President-My colleague, the senior senator from North Dakota (Mr. Hansbrough), is reported to have said, referring to the charges in the resolution of the senator from Massachusetts (Mr. Hoar) that I told him I desired to offer a resolution for an investigation; or that I thought it the best thing to do I rise now to confirm that statement, and to say that I am perfectly willing that the investigation shall be proceeded After the conversation referred to by my colleague I yielded to the desire of friends in the senate and did not act on my own impulse in the matter, hence I did not offer the resolution I desired and intended to offer. New to this body and entirely unfamiliar with the customs and usages. naturally attached weight to the advice and opinion of those old in the service and versed in the practices and precedents of the senate. I was informed, or was given to understand, that, however much I might desire or demand an investigation, it was not the practice of the senate to take notice or jurisdiction of alleged acts or conduct prior to the election of a senator, or having connection with the legality thereof. Now "I desire to say at this time that I am perfectly willing and desirous that this investigation should be proceeded with. That has been my position from the beginning. I have been blamed for not speaking and I have also been criticised because it is alleged that I did say something. I desired to say this much, in justice to my colleague and to myself, and with reference to what has been said in the newspapers—because this thing is proceeding too far on newspaper

Asked for Unanimous Consent.

Mr. Chandler-In view of the statement now made by the senator from North Da-kota, I venture to ask the senator from North Carolina (Mr. Vance), whether there is any objection now to have Mr. Hoar's medified resolution agreed to without de-

Mr. Vance (chairman of the committee o privileges and elections)—I can only speak for myself, of course. If the resolution be reported back to the senate from the committee on contingent expenses. I shall have no objection to its adoption.

Mr. Chandler—Then I ask that the reso lution may be reported and that there may be unanimous consent to its adoption without

Mr. George refused unanimous consent and made a constitutional argument in support of the proposition that the senate has no power to make the proposed investigation. Mr. Gorman gave notice that when the reso

Mr. Gorman gave notice that when the resolution should be reported back he would offer the following substitute for it:

Resolved, That the committee on privileges and elections be directed to inquire into and consider the question, whether the senate has authority or jurisdiction to investigate charges made against a senator as to conduct or offences occurring or committed prior to his election, not relating to his duty as senator or affecting the integrity of his election.

Mr. Chandier then took the floor and com-

Mr. Chandler then took the floor and commenced his speech in support of the resolu-tion offered by Mr. Hoar on the 10th of April. The resolution directs the committee on privileges and elections to examine into all allegations made in the public press charging Senator Roach with certain criminal of-fenses committed while cashier or official of a bank in the city of Washington, and to ascertain the facts and circumstances so far as to enable the committee to determine what is the duty and power of the senate in After Mr. Chandler had been speaking for few minutes an effort was made by Mr. Hoar to have a time fixed at the present ses-sion for taking the vote on the admission of the three senators appointed by the gov-ernors of the states of Montana, Washington and Wyoming; but objection came from dem ocratic senators, who said, however, that they would confer upon it.

Ady's Claim to Martin's Seat.

The resolutions for the investigation of the claim of Mr. Ady to a seat in the senate and inquiry into the conditions of the territories of Arizona, New Mexico, Utah and Okla-homa, as to their fitness for admission as states, heretofore offered, were taken up and

Mr. Chandler then proceeded with his argument in support of Mr. Hoar's resolution. It was only possible, he said, to defeat that resolution by laying down the rule in the American senate in the year 1893 that, no matter what crime may have been committed by a person occupying a been committed by a person occupying a seat in the senate—under whatever circum-stances of atrocity and otherwise—it is not within the constitutional power of the sen-ate even so much as to instruct a committee to make an investigation into the facts and circumstances of that conduct or the crime He had, he said, a certain summary which had already been made public, and which he now read. He then proceeded to make numerous and He then proceeded to make numerous and voluminous citations from English and American history bearing on the question whether expulsion from a parliamentary body can be based upon acts committed before the accused person had become a member. He claimed that the precedents established the right. In conclusion, Mr. Chandler said that he should have refrained from making any statement of the facts in the making any statement of the facts in the case, had it not been for the fact that sen-gtors on the other side had given notice that the case was not to be investigated. He did not think the senate would ever put itself on record as making a declaration of constitu tional principle that there is no power under any circumstances to investigate the conduct of a senator before his election.

Chandler Quotes Facts.

For the facts in the case Mr. Chandler re-ferred to articles in the New York Recorder. the New York Sun, the Philadelphia Press and the Washington Evening Star, also to reports in the office of the comptroller of the arrency, and he asked whether, if those facts were as asserted (and they have not been denicd), the character of the offense was not sufficient to demand an investigation. Here, he said, was a grave breach of trust alleged an embezzlement on the part of an officer of a national bank. He believed that if there was anything necessary for the prosperity of this country it was that breaches of trust should be commensurately punished. He believed that there was nothing that so much unfitted a man to act as a senator as the fact that he had been a defaulter in either a public or a private trust. He did not believe it would be seriously affirmed by the senate that although a man might be expelled from the senate for burglary or murder, or forgery, the sacred legis of the constitution would be thrown around him if he had committed one of those crimes the day before his election. He quoted the vice president as having complimented the senate on taking the chair to preside over it, as being the most august deliberative body known to man, and said that the determina-tion of the pending question in the negative would show that his words were sarcasm and mockery.

Voorbees Defends Rosen.

Mr. Voorhees replied to Mr. Chandler. He said the presumptions were in favor of the virtue, intelligence and capacity of the the virtue, intelligence and capacity of the states to send to the senate men who were fit for that high position and the presump-tions were that the representatives of the other states would be better employed in minding their own business than in criti-cising the action of a state in choosing its senators. What was to be said of the sena-tor from North Dakota! It was to be said of him that during all these fourteen or fifteen him that during all these fourteen or fifteen years he had been subject to the laws of the United States; subject to the laws of the District of Columbia; subject to every iaw which had been enacted, he had not been in Canada or across the water. He had stayed under the American flag and stood it out like a man. No indictment has been found against him. It stood a confessed and absolute fact that the parties said to have been in sured by him had parties said to have been injured by him had no word of complaint against him. And that was the case which had been stized upon as one calling for the direct punishment that could be inflicted. What was the proposition but a proceeding in the way of "at-tainder," which Webster defined as a pro-ceeding used to stain, to taint, to bleadsh, to sully a man's character and to corrupt his blood! It was simply an inquisitorial process outside of all constitutional limit. desired the country to know that on his side of the champer they would investigate within the limits of the constitution and not

Not a Tribunal on Morals

Mr. Hoar asked Mr. Voorhees to define exhis meaning. Voorhees—I take the position that an unfit senator may be imposed upon the sen-ate, though it has not been done in over a century, but that if a state should have the misfortune to elect a man blackened with crime it is the misfortune of the state, and find no power given to us to organize our selves into a tribunal on morals and to try him for his offenses. I may join with the senator from Massachusetts in supposing that such an en barrassment may arise, but that would be less of a difficulty and more that would be less of a difficulty and more tolerable to good government than it would be to claim the power to try the senator from Massachusetts or try the senator from Indiana, or to try the senator from New Hampshire from all that has been alleged against him. [Some laughter and applause in the galleries, which was reprimanded by the vice president]. What a spectacle is presented to the country of a great and strong party being silent on the subject of the alleged sins of one of its members, while the moment that a speck can be ers, while the moment that a speck can be on anybody on this side of the champer they clamor, as did the Pharisees of old. when the Saviour said to them. Take the beam out of your own eye so that you can see clearly to take the mote out of your brother's eye." That is what I complain of, I did not want to be provoked into an aeri-monious discussion, but I ask the country to take notice that the democratic party is standing on the rock of the constitution, standing on its limitations, which cannot be

The senator from New Hampshire would turn this body into the most miserable and most contemptible conclave of inquisitorial process the world has ever had any knowledge of. I would want to leave the senate with loathing and disgust, rather than serve in a body which claimed the right to supervise the morals of the senators from other dates and to enter into judgment upon them It might be that the senator from North Da-kota had suffered misfortune. He had never ought, however, to evade the laws of the country and today he returned among those whom he had injured without a single claim being made against him. Commend me to a man who has led a life of that sort. I will take him with his faults: I will take him with his defalcation: I will take him with every step of error before I will take for my guide the philosophers on the other side of the chamber, who set themselves up as inquisitors into every man's life but their own.

Praised by Hansbrough.

Mr. Hansbrough testified to the good unlities and high reputation of Mr. Roach or ten or twelve years that he has resided in Dakota. Their relations, he said, were agreeable and pleasant, and he had a very high regard for his colleague. He regarded the whole affair as a very unfortunate occurrence for his colleague and for his state. He then branched off into a complaint of interviews and statements published in the St. Paul Globe and the Minneapolis Tribune on the authority of one Mr. La Moure of Pembina, disparaging to himself, and he asked Mr. Gorman whether he had in his possession any documents, affidavits or papers bearing upon his (Mr. Hansbrough's) lection to the senate.

Mr. Gorman pointed to Mr. Hansbrough's tatement as an illustration of the folly of istening to the tattling of vipers and miser able slanderers, and disavowed all knowledge of the charges against Mr. Hansbrough. The senate had nad enough of the subject for today, he thought, and he therefore moved to proceed to executive business. He withdrew the motion, how-ever, to enable Mr. Harris to move to lay the resolution and the substitute on the table. As that motion was undebatable, and as Mr. Platt intimated a desire to reply builty to Mr. Voorhees, Mr. Harris withdrew his motion. After an executive session the senate adjourned until tomorrow.

The final adjournment of this extra ses sion of the senate may take place tomorrow.

Troubles of the Choctaws. Washington, D. The secretary today also received a letter from V-M. Locke, Judge E. H. Nelson, L. H. Williams, Morgan Cale and Rev. Mr. Joseph G. They allege that the Jones party has committed numberless outrages and that Jackson was honestly elected governor of the territory.

The evidence has all been heard and referred fo a special committee, which has as yet made no report.
