Meanwhile along the ragged declivity of alarm were other interests tumbling and crumbling against the face of the situation. General Electric was another weak spot. and in the first few minutes it broke a points to 75. The fact that certain officials had thought it necessary to issue a statement that the company was all right was viewed with austricion in some quarters. At 10:15 the price was 69. Sugar was also attacked, and broke to 76, and Chicago Gas dropped to 60. Manhattan Elevated broke 8); points to 155. Considering the panic in industrial stocks, the railroad list held fairly Manhattan Elevated continued to go down the toboggan slide at a great rate, wiping out all margins on a slump from 126 to 115%. The downward progress was stayed at that point and a rally to 120 followed, but it slid off again to 116.

Deacon White Forced to Suspend.

Soon after the open ug there were renewals of yesterday's rumors that S. V. White was in trouble in connection with Cordage. Before three-quarters of an hour after the opening, the slump in that stock became too great for him to stand and he went down before the storm. The fact of the failure of the great succulator, whose going to the wall a year or speculator, whose going to the wall a year o speculator, whose going to the wait a year of so ago in a grain deal on the Chicago Board of Trade caused such a sensation, was known on the street and found its way into the Stock exchange room before the formal announcement was made therein. According to his own statement the Cordage deal was the chief element in his failure, but he was also interested in Chicago Gas. Cordage strangisti him and Gas had suffocated him. He was unable to go on at present, though he might get up later on he said.

Soon there came from Boston the statement that Francis Henshaw & Co., stock brokers, had failed. Notody seemed to know much about them, but it made little difference. It was a failure and that was enough to add to the fury of the tempest, and so passed the first hour

White also says the drop in Sugar was one of the leading causes of his failure. He was a large seller on privileges and his present troubles are seriously affected by this fact, as his puts were beught right and left, and, during the present crisis and severe decline, purchasers have been enabled to put stocks to him at prices far above the market. White says he is unable at the present to give a definite idea of his liabilities.

company says there is nothing in the condition of the company to warrant this morning's break. The company has a very large surplus and is a heavy loaner of money. A dispatch from President Coffin of the General Electric says the company has no pressing liabilities, no outstanding call loads, and has recently paid $2,000,000 of its obligations. Collections are not slow and the company's factories are crowded as ever. When 11 o'clock chimed from Trinity

After 11 o'clock the excitement on the Stock exchange abated somewhat, but the fluctuations continued wide and frequent Buying orders appeared and prices jumped three or four points at a time, but any pressure to sell was immediately followed by a break. There was a recovery from the lowest of 17 points in Genera Electric to 014 in Sugar, 314 in preferred; in Manhattan, 4 in National Lead and 3 in Western Union.

At noon the market was firm and advanc-ing, when two more failures were au-nounced—Ferris & Kimball and W. L. Pat-

This afternoon the battle slacked off a triffe in its intensity, but there were spasms of riotous bidding and selling, however, and for a time the action again became more rapid. Rarely, if ever, in the history of the Stock exchange have such wild fluctuations been witnessed. One of the largest house on the street is said to be in trouble and

Mr. Mckinley on the Situation. BUFFALO, N. Y., May 5 .- Governor Me-Kinley, en route to Columbus, O., from Boston, stopped in this city a short time today. In an interview the governor said: "There is no danger of a panic or any danger of serious alarm. It is one of the little flurries liable to come upon the people and administration at any time. They come like the thief in the night. People at times create panicky conditions of affairs when there is really no occasion for it. The most dangerous part of it all is the effect it has on the poorer classes. They grow impatient and take their money from the savings banks. These things are always unfortunate, and especally so when there is no apparent reason for it. The country has too many resources and too much money; healdes, the people, irrespective of party affiliations, have too much confidence in President Clevetand. They would stand by and aid him in every possible way needed. The present cabinet is in a better position to know the causes and effects of a stringent money market than of its critics. It has the means het than of its crities. It has the means within its grasp of getting at the true condition of affairs. If necessary the president could convene congress for the repeal and enactment of such measures as would give any needed relief. There is no question about noting when he and his advisors doom it necessary. In my judgment the duty of the people at this time is to continue in the even tenor of their ways and all will come out

BRADSTREET'S OPINION.

Summing Up the Conditions that Have tioverned the Street.

New York, May 5 .- Bradstreet's Weekly Wall Street Review says: The stock mar ket, after having offered a long and stoutresistance to the initience of the unscalled currency question, has at length succumbed a figuriation approaching almost to the dignity of a panie. Failures have occurred, priecs have in some directions broken down prices have in some directions broken down with violence, the demoralization of the market and street being for the time extreme in their character. The "street," as the latter is viewed, has simply discounted the evils which the existence of the present financial system is bound to produce in general business throughout the country. The severity of the process has, however, been limited by several circumstances, chief arong which is the existence of the stock clearthe existence of the stock clear-g house system, which has militated to force of the unfavorable money market at carried out the business of the street th a minimum of friction and without unessary failures. The second considera on has been heretofore referred to and found in the complete absence of extended speculative inflation in the radroad share list. The latter, it is true, has suffered severely in empathy with the industrial list, but so far as panicity situations have appeared, they were confined to the industrial group and to a very few of the regular list of stocks, the rapidity with which the complete break lown of prices was arrested on Friday being capecially noticeable. The susceptibility of the industrial group to such a process is evident, when it is considered that not only has inflated manipulation been permitted to run rife with many of them, but that the business methods of some of the most conspicuous seem to be still governed by "trust" ideas. The dis-trust of the money market would necessarily find exercise in such direction by the rejec-tion of collateral of that class, it being understood that many lenders have been iscriminating closely against them.

WILL NOT AID WALL STREET.

Troubles There Do Not Concern the Officials of the Treasury.

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 5. -The panicky ondition of Wall street today, though interesting the officials of the Treasury department, did not, they said, immediately oncern them, as the department was unable to aid the situation there. That the trouble was not seriously thought of is shown by the fact that Secretary Carlisle only remained at the cabinet meeting about fifteen minutes and then went to his home. The matter was not even discussed. There is a feeling among the treasury officials, though they do not openly express it, that Wall street speculators have brought the esent condition upon themselves, and that e government is not in any way responsible for it. It is said at the treasury that the time has passed when the government can aid Wall street. There was a time, when, by purchasing bonds, relief might have been rendered, but that condition has gone by, as the government is not in a position to take

AMUNELENTS.

"A Gilded Foo" at Boyd's. Henry Guy Carleton's "A Gilded Fool" not only provides Mr. Nat Goodwin with an excellent part, in which he shines, but is a comedy of which only captious criticism can say anything unfavorable. True, the story is not original, but the good old dramatic elements have been combined anew to make a thoroughly interesting play. Bronson Howard's "The Henrietta" is reminiscently sug-gested by "A Gilded Fool;" so are a number of other good plays, but that fact takes nothing from the later work of merit or justification for praise. The dialogue is very good; at times brilliant. Mr. Carleton has never before done anything so good, and it will be hard for him to improve on it. The setting of the play as seen at the Boyd is particularly praiseworthy. Three interiors frame the action, and the last of these—a drawing room scene—is a marvel of sumptuous furnishing and realistic detail.

Pressure on space permits only brief notice of the good things in "A Gilded Fool."

Mr. Goodwin, in the title part, has a character to interpret different from any he has heretofore been seen in in Omaha. Mr. Goodwin is averse to being permanently identified with any one part or line of parts. His Chauncey Short is mainly notable and especially admirable for its entire natural-ness. The character is reasonable—and that is much nowadays and the comedian works it out in definite detail and conspicuous consistency. Chauncey says some serious things at times, and Mr. Goodwin in these speeches is surprisingly sympathetic and effective—"surprisingly" ause he is naturally fitted to say funny things with more success than most of his brother comedians of the day. Nothing could be much finer than the simple power that characterized the delivery of his life story speech in the second act last evening, and his management of the end of the third act was informed with emotional qualities of quite a high order. Of course, the lighter dialogue was perfectly spoken.

Mr. Goodwin's company is a good one.

The rejection of the instructions was a great surprise to the house. Immediately after the speaker made his declaration, the opposition met in a room to decide upon a united course of action. Colonel Saunderson, the Ulster loyalist, presided and Mr. Balfour, Mr. Chamberlain and Lord Randolph Churchill did most of the talking. As soon as a decision was reached, the members returned to their places.

Mr. Chamberlain gave notice that on Monday he would ask Mr. Gladstone whether or not the government intended to idhere to clause nine of the home rule bill his clause concerns Irish representation at Westminster, which is to be reduced to eighty members by the bill as it stands, but to be left intact, or with 103 members, according to a Paraellite amendment.
Sir Charles Ddke, radical, moved that the power of appointing county magistrate be transferred from the lord to the lord John Dillon, anti-Parnellite for East Mayo. John Dillon, anti-Parnellite for East Mayo, supported the motion. The present system of appointing, he said, was the root of the Irish discontent and agitation for home rule. A man daring to sympathize with the politics of the majority of Ireland, was debarred from the bench. Irishmen were looking to the government for redesers and to provide a ernment for redress, and to provide a foundation on which frishmen could base respect of the law.

There was no ground for suspecting the impartiality of the great majority of the magistrates, yet it was to be hoped that the House would respand to the present appeal to give the declaration, without which the lord chancel-lor believed himself unjustified in setting aside a practice of long standing.

Mr. Balfour, leader of the unionists, said he judged from the tone of the home secretary's remarks that the government did not desire to improve the administration of justice, but to increase its patronage. The radical party did not have the courage to attack the magistracy openly. It wished to make it ridiculous and thus prepare for the ultimate destruction

Neck Covered With Glandular Swell-ings. Scrofula. Ears Running. Suffered Terribly.

All Remedies Fail. Tries Cuticura. First Application Relieves. Complete Cure in 3 Weeks.

Two years ago I was noisoned in my hands. Then I took Tetter. Then Exysipelas went to my head face, cars and neek. My ears were swollen and ruoning from the inside and outside. I could he only on my back. My neek was covered with riandular swellings—Scroftin. I suffored terribly. I becan to use Cuticura Kemenies. The first application relieved me very much, and in three weeks my ears, head, and face were well. Cuticura Remenies cared me when all other runnedles failed and I had despaired of ever being any better. I cannot be without them now, and shall recommend them to my suffering friends, for I do say that they are the most pleasant and best remedles for skin diseases pleasant and best remedles for skin disease I ever saw. MRS. LIZZIE HALL, Fairfield, 111.
