CONDITION OF OMAHA'S TRADE, and each equally certain that his own is an exceptional case, deserving apocial and favorable consideration. No wonder the smile which was so genial and attractive on the face of the young cashier becomes hard, glassy and cynical on that of the old president. A bank official is only happy in these times as he is able for a brief time to throw overboard the worry and care which

Omaha Jobbers Generally Report Trade as Quiet but Predict an Active Business Later in the Season-The Crop Prospects Good. So much is being written regarding the financial and business conditions of the country that it is necessary that the situation should change with kaleidoscopic rapidity or there is danger of the subject becoming threadbare from such constant use. At the great financial centers where there is an active board of trade and where there are vast speculative interests the conditions are constantly shifting and every hour brings forth some new feature. In the Interior cities like Omaha the situation does not change so rapidly, but business gradually grows better or worse according as the circumstances are more or less favorable. For that reason there is not much in the way of news to offer bearing on the local situation. Trade is in very much the same condition as was outlined a week ago and business men do not appear to have materially changed their views.

Farmers Just Commencing to Feel the Effects of Hard Times.

COLLECTIONS NOT SO GOOD AS THEY WERE

They are still keeping close to the shore and waiting for the financial storm to blow over before venturing very far from land. Goods of all kinds are being purchased in very modorate volume and the trade partakes largely of the hand-to-mouth character already noted. Some heavy jobbers profess to see an im-provement in the condition of business, as it is nearing the time when the whole country s hearing the time when the when mor-chants of all classes will be willing to as-sume obligations that they now refuse. Some country merchants are commencing to talk about wanting goods in a burry a little later if business picks up as it is expected it will in the fall.

Just at present there are symptoms of a better tendency in the financial situation at the money centers, which is somewhat reas-suring and has its influence on local business men. The indications may not be very dis-tinct, but they are strong enough to give as-surance that the general situation is not becoming any worse.

Dry Goods Trade.

Local jobbers of dry goods are talking a Needs ago and appear to have more confi-dence in the future of the trade than they did. During the past month business has been very quiet with them, but they realize been very quiet with them, but they feature that people cannot always do without goods in their line and that there must be an act-ive demand as soon as confidence is in some measure restored. Prices have been forced down to the lowest notch by the light de-mand and the number of mills that have closed up has limited production to an extent that a very little demand would make serious inroads upon current stocks. Hence an advancing market is antici-pated as soon as the fall business commences. The trade all over the country commences. The trade all over the country promises to be late this season, but as the Wool Reporter remarks that cannot be taken as an unfavorable indication—rather the re-verse. Jobbers realize that retailers in urging or forcing the seasons have not pursued a policy which commends itself to con-servative mercantile judgment, and while trade has in the past few seasons put in an appearance early in July and taken goods ough for one season at once, it was a polenough for one season at once, it was a pol-icy that entailed greater risk on all, manufacturer, jobber and retailer. Trade has been steadily getting further away from the period of final distribution for consumption, and the result is an accumulation of evils, a wider depar-ture from correct business principles. There is ample time for the retailer to make his necessary purchases even should he not show himself until September, and it will be better for all if he divides his purchases, depending upon his ability to dupli-cate according to his actual needs, and in supply the demand at this point.

disturb him all through the business hours of the day and far into the night. It is ab-surd that there are no Omaha bankers off on junketing trips just now. "Local retail collections are bad. Good houses, after cutting expenses to the minihouses, after cutting expenses to the mini-mum, are unable to sell goods enough to meet current expenditures. One well known smail dealer has reduced his pay roll from $171 per week to $56, and re-fuses to buy anything for future delivery. He is not an exception to the rule. As a con-sequence many people are unemployed, and they are curtaining expenses everywhere sequence many people are unemployed, and they are curtailing expenses everywhere. Unemployed men and women do not pay past due bills, and hence the retailers are being pressed to meet obligations. The con-dition is anomalous. A banker tells me he sent a draft to a lawyer's office the other day. On the office door was a placard: 'Out of sight for fifteen days sure, and probably until times get better. Have suspended.' His haconic notice illustrates the situation fairly well. Men willing to pay their debts cannot obtain the wherewithal and the weary col-lector threatens to ecompt suicide.''

COUNTRY PRODUCE AND FRUITS. Trade During the Past Week Rather Dull

lector threatens to commit suicide.

and Featureless. There has been very little activity in the market on country produce during the past week. In most lines both receipts and demand have been light and the volume of business smaller than usual. This is due in a large part to the conditions prevailing in eastern margets, which are depended upon to take the surplus stock from this market. The butter trade has been sick and butter men have received little encouragement to push the business. The New York market, which has been a good buyer of butter from the west, no longer wants it, or does not have the money to pay for it, and the shipping demand is very light. Prices on packing stock are lower here than they were a week ago, but the decline has not been heavy considering the condition of the ship ping trade. Butter has been unusually high all the summer up to a week ago, owing largely to the extensive export trade, which kept eastern markets cleaned up and created a good shipping demand. With the decline n the foreign demand it was to be expected that there would be a dropping off in the price, and the situation has been aggravated by the money stringency. The egg market has been weak and dull. The receipts have not been large, but the local demand is light, as well as the shipping demand, and there is no snap to the tra A great many poor eggs are coming to mar-ket and are slow sale at any price. Buyers appear to think that firsts are poor enough and they do not want the seconds. Chickens are not quite as plenty as they were at one time, but there is no scarcity. Choice old fowls for a week or more have not been at all plenty and have commanded good strong prices. About Thursday of each week there is a good demand for chickens from the butchers and the market usually stiffens up. After this demand is filled and there are no buyers but the dressers, the market naturally eases up. It would seem as if shippers would be advancing their own interests by arranging their shipments so that they would arrive on the market at the time of the week when there is the best iemand

Fruit men have been doing a fair business during the past week. The greatest activity has been in California truits, which have constituted the bulk of the receipts. Thus far the Pacific coast has been giving the country cheaper fruits than usual, and there is every prospect that they will continue along the same line the balance of the sea-son. The closeness of the money market is preventing the canners from operating to the usual extent, which is forcing the growers to put a larger proportion of the rout on the market green, with the natural result of keeping prices down. In addition to that fact there is a large crop of peaches in the east and south, which cuts off a large amount of business from California and limits the demand for their fruit by just so much. In spite of the dull times it requires several cars of California fruit each week to

The Grocery Trade.

Local jobbers of groceries report no appre clable change in the condition of trade since a week ago. Business is holding up to about the same point as has distinguished the trade of late and there are no new features of imbetter, but on the contrary there are reports from some quarters to the effect that the country trade is not meeting obligations with as much promptness as a month ago.

The Hardware Trade.

Jobbers report that they have noted a disposition toward a little improvement in the hardware trade, but the improvement has not been large. The orders coming to hand are mostly small and indicate that the trade is buying only for immediate needs. Collections are fair, but not up to last year's record

But peaches and cream will prove a very acceptable dish, even if we in Chicago, St. Paul and elsewhere there is a distinctively better feeling in trade circles. The imhave it three times a day these hard times pression is gaining ground that the worst period for the country at large was passed last week and that the future will see a gradual return of normal conditions until confidence begins to assert itself, and then there will be a sharp reaction in commercia becoming a total loss. If the grocers would go to the trouble to clean up the market there would be no use for the paddlers. A grocer could just as well take a barrel of apples in which there were some specked apples and sort them up and sell the good ones, but he will not bother with them. The peddler is the man who has to do that work, and he is therefore a necessity and the market could not well dispense with him. The banana trace in this country is fast "Locally trade is not good. The millions which frightened depositors have hidden here and there are much needed in business Were they returned to the banks and availa-ble for circulation, we would see a very prompt and complete recovery here in Omaha. Every dollar ought to go back, too. Our backs have stood a fire test, such as few cities have experienced in the last three months. ## American Pearis.

"Omaha's condition is not by any means hopeless. In fact, this city and Minneapolis thus far stand out as the safest of the galaxy of midcontinent stars. If we meet with no misfortune in the last two-thirds of August September 1 ought to see Omaha ou) of danger, serene and even aggressive.

There is hardly a state in the union where pearls are not or have not been found, and one of the finest in the world was taken from the Passaic river at Pat erson, N. J. This gem, valued at $1,500, was worn in the crown of empress Eu-genie. Several Wisconsin pearls have been valued at $1,000 each.

DANIEL WEBSTER.

His Struggles for an Education-The Sickly Child and the Robust Man.

The childhood of Daniel Webster did not show the man. He was a crying baby and a pale, weak, sickly boy, the slimmest child in the family; but at manhood he had a large, stately frame, a massive head and an iron constitution The change had been effected by working on his father's farm, indulging in outdoor sports and living a frugal, temperate life.

So robust and large was his body and so impressive was his walk that the coalheavers of London paused in their work to stare at him as he passed them, says the Youth's Companion. Sydney Smith likened him to a "steam engine in trousers," adding he is "a living lie, because no man on earth could 1 feeder.. 730 1 00 be as great as he looked."

Carlyle called hin "a parlimentary Hercules," whom "one would incline at sight to back against the world."

Perhaps the greatest physical compliment he ever received was that paid to his mountain of a head. When Thorwaldsen, the Danish sculptor, saw Webster's bust in Powers' studio in Rome ha  $\frac{2}{1}\frac{00}{10}$ exclaimed: "Oh, a design for Jupiter, I tossed." Receipts have been comparatively light, the week's supply being only about 12,500 head or 15,000 less than last week and Webster's early life contradicts the 4,000 less than for the correspond-ing week last year. The most sensational feature of the market was the collapse of the "corner" in provis-ions Tuesday and the failure of several large popular notion that man is the creature of circumstances. He, on the contrary, made circumstances his creatures. One of his friends, writing after his death, said: operators and packers, which was followed on Wednesday by the heaviest drop in hog values in the history of the trade. Prices "His school time was much interrupted, and from his own lips I learned went off fully \$1 at all western mar-kets, and hogs sold lower than at any time during the past fifteen months. The Cincinnati Price Current takes a rosy view of the general situation and that Webster's struggle for an education was continued from his childhood to his 30th year. Every step in advance was contested by obstacles which he met with a lion heart, and with a lion's courage overthrew. "His books were few at this time. There were a copy of Watts' Hymns, a cheap pamphlet copy of Pope's 'Essay on Man' and the bible, from which he first learned to read, together with an oc-casional almanac. He used to say that at the age of 14 he could recite the whole of the 'Essay on Man.' "He entered Dartmouth college in 1797. but was desperately poor. A friend sent a recipe while at college for greasing his boots. He wrote back and thanked him very politely, 'But' he added, 'my boots need other doctoring, for they not only admit water, but even peas and gravel stones."
