THE PLUNKETT MURDER INVOLVES

Widow of the Victim Would Like to Colleet the Amount of a Judgment Against Her Husband's Slayer.

LINCOLN, Aug. 11 .- [Special to THE BEE.] One of the most interesting cases brought to the supreme court for some months was flied with the clerk this afternoon. It involves a murder in Saline county, but takes an unusual turn in channels hitherto unoccupied by legal quibbling. On November 14, 1891, George Plunkett was killed in a saloon in DeWitt kept by William Tippey and George Schram, Plunkett had been drinking in the saloon and soon became involved in a quarrel with a companion named William Halfacre. In the fight which followed Plunkett was killed. His widow afterwards commenced suit for damages, asking $5,000 from Tippey and Schram and their bondamen. The case went to trial and the jury awarded her $5,000, the amount to be divided equally between the men Tippey and Plunkett. But the judge instructed the jurors that owing to a defect in the bond tha bondsmen were to be released from any rebondsmen were to be released from any responsibility in the case. The bondsmen were therefore released from the payment of any part of the damages. Mrs. Plunkett brings the case to the supreme court on the grounds that the judge who tried the case in the lower court erred in instructing the jury to release the bondsmen.

In the meantime Halfacre was tried for the murder of Plunkett and sentenced to a term in the penitentiary. Tippey was charged with being an accessory, but before he could be placed under arrest he left the state between two days and was unheard of state between two days and was unheard of for some time. Finally the sheriff of Saline county got a trace of the fugitive and tracked him to the southern part of New Mexico. After a long chase Tippey was found, brought back to Nebraska and sentenced to the penitentiary. He has no property which can be seized for the judg-ment secured against him by Mrs. Plunkett, and for that reason she is trying to induce the supreme court to reopen the case and give her a chance to recover the amount from the bondsmen.

Cashier Outcalt Leaves Lincoln.

R. C. Outcalt, cashier of the defunct Capital National bank, left the city last evening for Denver. But it is believed that he has gone to the state of Washington, where he intends to embark in business Several sensational rumor-mongers have circulated the report that he has left the city for the purpose of avoiding prosecution in connection with the Capital National bank case, but his friends, without reserve, indignantly deny the story. They say that Mr. Outcalt will be ready at all times to submit himself to the strictest examination. They point out the fact that the failure of Capital National bank threw him upo his own resources and that he very naturally hopes to retrieve his broken fortunes by other business ventures. He left the city with the best wishes of numerous friends and no one is at all worried by his departure

No Money for Viaduets.

The alacrity with which railroad comnew O street viaduct are not coming for-ward with the necessary funds with which to pay off the damages to the abutting property is exciting no little comment in this city and many are wondering just where the hitch is. The appraisers made their repor to the county court nearly a month ago and plenty of time seems to have elapsed for the oad companies to negotiate sary funds to enable the contractors to pro ceed with the work.

It is stated in some quarters that the city council is itself responsible for the delay that City Attorney Abbott asked for instruc-tions as to whether he should take an appeal from the judgment of the appraisors and that as yet the councilmen have been silent. According to the authorities several courses are open, either the city or the property pwners may appeal from the awards of the appraisers within sixty days. The city can, through the friendly aid of the railroad companies interested, pay the amounts assessed by the appraisers into the courts an then take an appeal, thus permitting the work of construction to proceed. Or, by let-ting the work remain at a standstill the city can appeal from the judgment of the ap praisers without putting up the amount o the damages. As the matter stands no on ems to know exactly who is responsible for the delay, only it seems to be pretty definitely settled that the property owners are perfectly satisfied with the amounts given them by the appraisers.

Receiver Hayden Goes to Court.

Receiver Hayden of the Capital National bank visited the court house this morning and when he retired a suit against Henry Gerner was found tucked away in the pigeon holes of the clerk's office. Henry Gerner held 100 shares of the bank's stock, the face value of which was $10,000. He was struck pretty hard by the failure of the bank and the betrayal of his confidence by the de faulting president and as a result be i insane, temporarily at least, and has bee taken to a private institution for treatment receiver filed an affidavit to the effect that Gerner was a nonresident and asks for an attachment against his property. The Genesee Fruit company has sued the receiver of the Capital National bank for $304.70, claiming that it forwarded a draft for collection to the bank before it failed. The draft was collected and the Capital National bank forwarded to the Genesee company a draft for the amount on the Chemical National bank of New York City. CAUGHT IN A THRESHER, Distressing Accidents to a Boy and a Man

Near Oakland, Neb. OAKLAND, Neb., Aug. 11 .- [Special Telegram to The Bee. |-While threshing on the farm of Mr. Backus, eight miles northwest of Oakland, his son Frank, who was walking alongside of the machine, was caught by his shirt sleeve and his right arm drawn into the cogwneels. The boy called to the en-gineer, but he failed to hear, and the boy had grit enough to jerk out his arm, lacerating the arm in a terrible manner and tearing out the biceps muscle. The boy was brought to Oakland, where his wound was dressed. He was then taken home by the doctor, and as they entered the farmyard, they saw Mr. Suhr, the owner of the thresher, put the belt on the fly-wheel. The belt caught his and he was drawn around the belt for several revolutions. His arm was twice broken and the flesh was torn from his arm Dr. Simon, the attending physician, has hopes of saving Mr. Suhr. The thresher is one of the latest designs, being a self-feeder Leuvenmark was for years head instructor in the royal swimming school at Stockholm, Sweden. He came to this country three years ago, and has gon far beyond anything ever attempted in diving, as his record made in Washington park, Kansas City, on July 16, 1891, of eighty feet three and three quarters inches full demonstrates. He is five feet five inches i height, weighs 134 pounds and will be 31 years of age on the 3rd of next month. Leuvenmark says that anybody can make a jump, but it takes years of practice to make high dives. He will no doubt be a big drawing attraction for the beach.

DOSED BY A DRUNKEN DOCTOR

William Rogers' Sudden Death Was Due to Ward's Fatal Injection.

CORONER'S INQUEST "HELD YESTERDAY

Testimony of a Soldier Who Saw the Fatal Act-Ward Will Be Held for Further Investigation-Verdiet of the Coroner's Jury.

It now appears that William Rogers Garner, the telegraph operator, who was found dead in a room on Dodge street Thursday afternoon, was killed by the injection of carbolic acid at the hands of his companion, "Dr." Peyson, alias Ward, who was in a drunken condition at the time, and thought he was giving the operator injections of diluted alcohol.

This was the information given at the coroner's inquest held yesterday morning, and the jury returned a verdict recommend ing that the besotted physician be held for further investigation as to his responsibility for hisecompanion's death. The first witness at the inquest was Dr Hoffman, who testified to having treated the deceased at times when he was broken down from indulgence in drink. On Sunday forenoon last, the doctor said, Rogers, for that was the name he was best known by, visited the office and said that he wanted to straighten up. The doctor gave Rogers a prescription and some money to pay for the medicine. That was the last Dr. Hoffman saw of his patient.

John F. Shea, a corporal of the Second United States infantry, testified that he had known Ward or Peyson about three years; known Ward or Peyson about three years; first met him when Ward was a corporal in the Second infantry. Ward claimed to be a doctor and had been treating Shea. Witness, said that he called at the "doctor's" room Thursday to pay him some money. Rogers was lying on the bed and looked as if he was very drunk. Witness said: "When I entered the room Ward said that he had a friend there who had been drinking hard, but he would pull him out all right in a little while. I saw Ward give the sick man two or three hyperdermic injections of a water-colored liquid which the doctor claimed was alcohol. Rogers died while I was in the room. Ward said: 'The man is dead.'

'What are you going to do?' I asked. 'Why room. Ward said: 'The man is dead.'
'What are you going to do?' I asked. 'Why report it to the coroner,' replied Ward.
"I then left the house and Ward followed me; we had a glass of beer and separated When I reached the fort I told my first ser geant that I expected I would have to go to town again to attend a coroner's jury. The man died I think about 10:30 o'clock in the morning.'

Wanted to Sober Up. Dr. Thomas Henderson in charge of the Houston cure said that he had known Rogers over a year. He had staken the alleged cure under the witness's treatment and instructions. On Wednesday witness was sent for and visited Rogers in his room at 1911 Farnam street where arrangements were made for further treatment, as Rogers said that he wanted to sober up and go back to work inside of five days. Rogers visited the institute Wednesday afternoon and witness claims that he gave the patient one dose of the drug that is supposed to make a man shun red liquor the rest of his life. Dr. Henderson said that as a rule Rogers' health was good when he was not drinking. Witness was asked by Assistant County Attorney Slabaugh what effect an injection of alcohol would have on a person and the physician replied that unless the fluid was physician replied that unless the find was injected into a vein or artery there would be no ill effects. If into a vein death would follow. The doctor had known Ward for some time and considered him very well posted in medicine. Last spring, the doctor said, Ward experimented upon himself by taking large doses of occaine, and came very near dying. He thought that Ward was a morphine fiend.

Injections of Carbolic Acid.

oner Maul asked the doctor to view remains and notice the spots on the arms. After looking at the body the witness said that the spots looked as if they had been burned by carbolic acid or some other caus-tic, and thought that carbolic acid had been injected into Rogers' arms, possibly by mis-take. The result of this would be fatal. Druggist William Gladish testified that Ward frequently bought alcohol at his place. He knew that Ward was a morphine eater also knew that he drank liquor.

The last witness was Alima Grapenthine, the sweetheart of the dead man. She testified about the finding of the body and that the door of the room the men occupied at Heacock's house had to be broken open. Ward was sitting in a chair beside the dead body eating bologna. When asked why he had not reported the matter, Ward said: "What's the use, he is better off dead; he was nothing but a living drunkard.' Ward Was Held.

This closed the testimony and the case went to the jury. The verdict was that William Rogers Garner came to his death by treatment at the hands of Dr. Ward, alias Peyson, and recommended that Ward be held for further examination The dead operator was one of the best known men in his calling in the west. was an expert operator and commanded good positions. His correct name was William Rogers Garner, although he was known in the telegraph world as William Rogers. He led a strike at Fort Worth about ten years ago and was blacklisted by the railroad and telegraph companies. He changed his name at that time. Touching Funeral Exercises.

It was honest sorrow that brought to-gether an hundred or more of friends of the dead man at the morgue at 3 o'clock. Rev. Frank Crane was prevented from attending, but Rev. A. W. Clark assumed the task at a moment's notice. He read from Paul's epistle to the Hebrews, and spoke feelingly for a few moments concerning life, death and life beyond death. Handsome wreaths of flowers covered the casket in which the body lay, and over which burning tears fell from eyes whose owners knew the dead man ind loved him for his many manly attributes.

CUSTER'S LAST BATTLE FIELD

Promot attention to mail orders.

A visit to this spot, which is now a national cemetery, is extremerly interesting. Here seventeen years ago General Custer and five companies of the Seventh United States cavairy, numbering over 200 officers and men, were cut to pieces by the Sioux Indians and allied tribes under Sitting Bull. The battlefield, the valley of the Little Big PRESERVE YOUR EYE SIGHT. Horn, located some forty odd miles south of Custer, Mont., a station on the Northern Pacific railroad, can be easily reached by stage. If you will write Charles S. Fee, St. Paul, Minn., inclosing 4 cents in postage, he will send you a handsomely illustrated 100 page book, free of charge, in which you will find a graphic account of the sad catastrophe which overtook the brave Custer and his followers in the valley of the Little Big Horn in June, '76,
