

"DINK" AND THE DETECTIVES

Interesting Reminiscences of the Chase After a Cunning Chief of Crooks.

WILSON WAS A VERY SMOOTH WORKER

Louis Zink Sheds Tears of Repentance After Tearing the Adams Express Company for a Hundred-Dollar Package.

WEDNESDAY morning when Officer Cook came on duty at the depot he was met by Louis Zink...

"In connection with the recent arrest of 'Dink' Wilson there are some facts concerning the Omaha end of the case and the unsuccessful work of the detectives...

It will be remembered that the first attempt to make dynamite useful in the car-bombing business occurred on the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul road near Western Union Junction, Wis.

It proved such a signal success that its authors decided to try it again, or at least, it was not long before dynamite was made good use of in robbing a Missouri Pacific train at West Side.

The last two jobs convinced the officers detailing the Wisconsin robbery that the inventors and operators of the dynamite plan could be found pretty close to Omaha, and here they came and set about looking for clues.

They were still nosing unsuccessfully when the robbery at Glendale, Mo., occurred, and it was in looking about for evidence after that affair that they got their first clue.

In searching a house near Glendale which had been occupied by the supposed robbers for a short time previous to the robbery, an empty bottle, which had contained some fluid, presumably perfume, was found, and on it was the label of a drug-gist on Eighteenth street in Omaha.

Following this up, a representative of the government secret service, a trusted agent of an eastern detective agency came to Omaha, hoping to saddle the dynamite work onto 'Dink' Wilson and his cronies, whom they had long suspected.

They felt almost certain that if they could only prove that Nettie Wilson was the person who pushed the bottle of perfume, the rest would be easy. The bottle failed them, however, for it had not contained a prescription, and the druggist whose label it bore could recall nothing beyond the fact that he remembered perfectly when the bottle went out of the store, but that he could not recollect who its purchaser was.

Nettie Wilson Had Seen Them. Then, not knowing just what else to do, the officers decided to try and learn the whereabouts of the gang, anyway.

The senior Wilson had some legal matters pending, to which the government was a party, and the officers decided to make this a pretext to "get next." Accordingly, after going after one day and sizing up the house, they went out the next afternoon on their alleged "legal" business.

It seemed as though the officers had seen them the day before and were suspicious of them, and they were met at the door with a cold bluff and a refusal to admit them, together with information that if they had any business with her father they better go and see his attorney.

This would have shut them out entirely had not one of the gentlemen connected with the case had a certain "pull" with the attorney in question, and this pull was gently but effectively exercised, so that the result that the attorney induced Nettie to give up the address of her father and the boys, who were out near Salt Lake City, U. S. West, on the Missouri river.

Another Story of Wilson. An interesting portion of "Dink" Wilson's history was learned from E. D. Lamont, the thief brought up from Lincoln on a charge of grand larceny.

Lamont says that Wilson commenced his criminal career with Sily and Hedspeth, the men who were arrested in the St. Louis express robbery. Wilson, Sily and Hedspeth were serving short terms in the Missouri penitentiary, where they met Tom Wilkins, an old and experienced safe robber, who was serving a long term for one of his jobs.

Wilkins explained to the men how to craft a safe. The three men were released about the same time and proceeded to organize one of the most desperate and daring gangs that ever existed in the southwest.

They men blew open several safes and then they robbed the express company. The detectives have chased Wilson all over the country, while the Pinkertons were searching the east for him he was in the hospital of the Jefferson City prison under the name of Jim O'Brien, serving a twelve years sentence for robbery.

He was taken sick, or feigned sickness, and after being in the hospital for eighteen months was paroled. He went east to the city of New York, where he was captured by officers in all the leading cities in this country.

Several other stories of the bandit recall his adventures. One of the bandits was a fly cop, assisted by a park policeman, "located" Wilson and several pals near Sears' park.

The fly cop was not sure whether Wilson was "wanted" at that time by the authorities. So the mystic minion of the law went to a neighboring store, in order to be able to take headquarters for information on the subject.

When an emphatic affirmative came over the wires that the bird was not wanted, notwithstanding the fact that only a few minutes had elapsed since the much desired Wilson and his associates were recaptured at home, they were not there when the officers returned to capture them. It is said that Wilson could "smell the cops" from afar.

When Wilson was a boy he attended an Omaha college. An old schoolmate of his relates the fact that Wilson was passionately fond of dime novels at that time and was much more devoted to Beadle's yellow-backed literature than his studies. Wilson loved to organize a crowd of college boys and fight the "high school crowd."

LOUIS ZINK BECOMES REPENTANT AFTER SNEAKING AN EXPRESS PACKAGE. Louis Zink, who came here from Maryland two months ago, is a very sorry young man for several reasons. He is a poor fellow, he is sorry he ever started west to seek his fortune, and again, he is sorry that he stole a $100 bill from the Adams Express company Wednesday evening.

Since his arrival here Zink has cultivated the acquaintance of a couple of the clerks employed in the Adams Express company's depot office, and became so friendly that he was occasionally allowed to go behind the railing and sit and chat awhile. Wednesday evening Zink dropped in, carrying a satchel, and said that he was going to Kansas City and said that he had been going to Kansas City.

The loss was discovered by Albert Paul, one of the clerks, who pushed out and compelled Zink to return to the office with him. He was told of the loss and denied any knowledge of the missing package.

"Well, you will have to stay here until it is found," said Paul, and all night long the clerk never took his eyes off the man whom he suspected.

In fact, Paul was so afraid of losing sight of his supposed thief that he would not risk the chance of the money being thrown away or destroyed long enough to go into the next room and telephone for the quarters. So the long night passed with only the two men in the room.

He Worked Quite Smoothly. Wednesday morning when Officer Cook came on duty at the depot he was met by Louis Zink and took him to headquarters. The prisoner declared his innocence and had no objection to being searched. This was rather disappointing to the police, and as Officer Cook and Sergeant Whalen took the young man to a private room and stripped him to the skin. His clothing was thoroughly overhauled and inside the lining of his left sleeve was the stolen bill. It seems that when Zink left the express office to go to the train he had picked up this envelope when he did his pistol and very quickly tore a slit in the sleeve lining and showed the bill to the police.

When the money was found the prisoner broke down and confessed. Later on a complaint was made by H. B. Rosen, managing Zink with grand larceny. He was brought up and pleaded guilty and was held by Judge Smith in $500 bonds.

This case is not, however, the first of a criminal nature that the young man has been guilty of. Since coming to Omaha Zink has stopped in the Union Depot several times for a short time for Herman Schroeder. While employed there he forged Mr. Schroeder's name to three checks for $10, $25 and $50, and a state complaint charging forgery will be filed yesterday afternoon. But this is not all. Zink, so it is claimed, has forged checks for small amounts on Ernest Stahl, and on a Howard street commission house.

Speaking about the affair to a reporter yesterday morning Zink said: "I don't know what made me do it. I have a good family in Maryland and I hope they won't hear of my actions. The prisoners seem to feel his disgrace keenly and are in hopes that since the express company had recovered their money that they would not prosecute him, but that isn't the way express companies treat men who steal from them.

Zink seemed surprised to learn that he was wanted for forgery, but under pressure admitted the crime.

CONCERNING CORN AND TIMOTHY. JACKSON PARK, CHICAGO, Aug. 15.—The Editor of THE BEE: I see a report circulated in several Nebraska papers to the effect that no corn in the ear is shown in the Nebraska exhibit or in the Nebraska building.

I want to say that there is no truth whatever in this exhibit in the Nebraska building, on the walls, on the columns and in the county cases in the Nebraska building and also in the Nebraska building, the Nebraska building, Opinions differ as to whether too much or too little corn is shown in the ear. Some think that there is too much and others that there is too little.

Some would have the exhibit all ear corn and others all baled hay and still others would have it all corn. But how any one could make an exhibit that has no corn in it is beyond my understanding.

The charge is also made that Nebraska corn was given to the exhibit in the Nebraska building. If this be true, I will only say that such action was without the knowledge of the management and that it was a clear case of fraud.

The report published in a Chicago telegram to the Lincoln Journal of last Tuesday to the effect that the commissioner general had given a pair of state timothy to help out in the same dispatch to the effect that special preparation had been made for the coming of Governor Crouse is likewise false, as no person connected with the Nebraska building knew of his coming until he arrived in Chicago. The fact is, the entire dispatch was manufactured by the Nebraska building.

Illustrations made from photographs, showing the interior of the Nebraska building and the Nebraska exhibit, will soon appear in the papers. I am sure that some liars have been abroad in the land circulating reports with reckless disregard of truth.

DISCORD IN LABOR CIRCLES. Surface Indications of a Colossal Row Brewing Among Wage Earners.

It is not an accident in organized labor circles as outward appearance would indicate and the leaders might wish. The smoke of battle in the Jones-Blake case had hardly cleared away when a new matter arose to cause other people sleepless nights and in which the gentler sex is pitted against the stronger.

The Working Women's home, maintained by members of Knights of Labor assemblies, went to pieces some little time ago on account of lack of funds. Resurrection of the scheme has furnished the topic for discussion in the weekly meeting of the Working Women's assembly on Tuesday night. It was decided to start a new home with funds to be collected from members of the order.

The subscriptions were quite liberal and the amounts were turned over to H. Cohen, then district master workman. Mrs. Fitch, president of the woman's assembly, then desired that this money be applied in the payment of the debts of the old institution before starting the new venture, but in this she was opposed by several of the subscribers to the new scheme.

At the present time there are some 150 members in the councils of members of railroad workers' localities, comprising about 82 of Denver and vicinity. These have been allowed a voice without objection whereby the plans of 125 were overturned.

Also in other ways some of these members have manifested objection to the plan. At the laboring of local assembly 644, Knights of Labor, T. C. Kelsey was elected one of the delegates to represent this assembly in Central Labor union.

He remained at home who otherwise had planned a trip to Courtland beach. Both the Leuvenmark dive and the balloon ascension were creditably successful last night. The threatening weather yesterday afternoon caused several thousand people to remain at home who otherwise had planned a trip to Courtland beach.

Manager Griffith is most generous to Courtland beach patrons. He believes in giving the best of attractions, and those who object to the small mission for non-acknowledged they get more than might be expected for several times the amount. The beach are the largest of the season, including an extra fine display of fireworks postponed from Tuesday last.

The grocers who surprised everybody in diving from such a lofty height into only eight feet of water, a feat accomplished by the grocers who were rescued by the dive team, are a wonder to the people. The dive team, who are a wonder to themselves in their aerial performance, will be at the Courtland beach on Tuesday, August 20, at 10:15 p. m. Lincoln at 8:15 a. m., 10:15 a. m., 4:50 p. m. and 6:50 p. m. City ticket office, 1324 Farnam street, W. F. Vall, agent.

"Cavalry Day" at Bellevue Rife Range. On Saturday, August 19, the Burlington route will run a special train to Bellevue, leaving the Union depot at 1 p. m. and returning from Bellevue at 6 p. m.

Tickets, only 35 cents for the round trip, will be on sale on Saturday at the Union depot and also at the Burlington's city ticket office, corner of Farnam and Fourteenth streets.

Thursday is "Cavalry Day" at the range and some splendid marksmanship may be expected. W. F. VAIL, City Ticket Agent.

SMOKE ORDINANCE

Evidence that Omaha's Industries Have No Abandoned Smokestacks.

The smoke nuisance ordinance went into effect yesterday and its provisions are to be enforced to the letter. The ninety days allotted to the owners of smokestacks or chimneys which emit large and offensive volumes of smoke or gases in which to abate the nuisance have expired and the city authorities will take steps against those who have failed to take advantage of the time given.

It is likely that not all the emissions of smoke in dense quantities and obnoxious gases from the stacks and chimneys be abated was passed by the council May 17 and immediately went into effect. The owners of stacks and chimneys were given ninety days time in which to abate the nuisance. Building Inspector Tilly issued nearly 300 notices with copies of the ordinance to the owners of buildings that would come under the provisions of the ordinance.

A large number took immediate steps to provide consumers for their boilers and in other ways to abate the smoke nuisance. But one man was found, a well known down town man, who refused to comply with the orders of the council. The remainder were heartily sick of the smoke nuisance and ready to join in a movement to abate it. While but a few of these notices have been taken steps to put them in and will resort to the use of anthracite coal. Others will resort to the use of anthracite coal.

The ordinance declares it a misdemeanor for the owner of any boiler to permit the same to emit or cause to be emitted any smoke or gas in violation of the ordinance and provides for a fine upon conviction. While the officials will not use undue haste and will show as much leniency as possible, yet those who manifest a disposition to ignore the ordinance and its provisions will probably hear something different. Pan-American Medical Congress. Mayor Bemis is in receipt of a communication calling attention to the Pan-American Medical congress, which will assemble in Washington September 5 to 8 inclusive.

The congress will be a representative body and delegates will be present from each country and each state of the United States. The Pan-American Medical congress was directed to invite the American countries to send delegates to the congress. The congress has been officially accepted by all of them.

Mayor Bemis is pleased to appoint an official delegate from this city, which he will probably do. Questions of importance to the people of the western hemisphere will be discussed and chief among the subjects will be those of controlling and treating cholera and yellow fever.

WRECK IN THE YARDS. Rock Island Engine Thrown from Track—Narrow Escape of the Crew.

F. A. Horne, engineer, and J. T. Craig, fireman, of Rock Island engine 822 had a narrow escape last evening from what came to be known as a serious accident. About 6:15 engine 822 with seven loaded and six empty cars was moving slowly out of the lower Union Pacific yards when the engine was struck by a moving locomotive.

The locomotive struck the engine and the sharp curve of the track for the accident, which had it occurred before the engine was stopped, might have seriously impeded travel.
