THE OMAHA DAILY BEE: THURSDAY, OCTOBER 5, 1893.

Declarations Made by the Bimetallic Coavention Yesterday. RESOLUTIONS THAT WERE REPORTED

They Strongly Endorse the Sentiments of the Advocates of the White Metal-A Combination Retween the West and South.

Sr. Louis, Oct. 4 .- Owing to the festivities of the veried prophet the Panamerican Blmetallic convention did not get together until nearly 10 o'clock.

Letters of regret for absence and sympathy from A. J. Warner, Washington, D. C., Congressman R. P. Bland, Governor William Fishback of Argansas, T. L. Nugent of Texas, David Obermeyer of Kansas and others were read. That of Governor Fishback was an extensive statistical argument for bimetallism and the use of water routes to the gulf and thence to Europe, thus reducing freight expenses and thereby, giving to the Mississippi valley the position it deserves in the commercial world,

With the finishing of the reading of the letters Walter N. Allen of Kansas was introduced and addressed the convention as a farmer, pleading for free coinage.

"No International Bimetallism with Great Britain Included is Possible," was the title of a paper read for the author by Captain Capower of Kansas. Its argument was that Great Britain as a creditor nation controlled the world

On behalf of the Knights of Labor delegates present T. A. Osborn of Kausas pre-sented to the convention an address en-dorsing its objects. After reviewing in general terms the present financial and labor situation it urges the increase of the medium of exchange; piedges opposition to the destruction of silver as money; favors the free an ! unlimited coinage of silver at the ratio of 16 to 1, and closes with a reso-lution to "lay aside all other issues for the present, and ask the south and west to unite for the remonetization of silver. . The Colorado delegates presented for the consideration of the convention the bullion bureau plan, which is to be urged upon the state legislature of Colorado.

Convention then took a recess until 2 p. m. At the afternoon session, the committee or resolutions being still at work on the plat-form, the convention listened to addresses by several delegates on the silver issue as it appeared to them.

Governor Stone's Ideas.

Governor W. J. Stone of Missouri was called for, and in responding spoke briefly. He said it was not his intention to make a Nevertheless he was satisfied from a profound conviction that it was for the best interests of the people that the free coinage of silver should be secured. He was also for the maintaining of the existing ratio of 16 to 1. Indeed, if it were not for the fact that large quan tities of silver were already coined and that debts were contracted upon that basis, he would favor a reduction to 1514 to 1. Any change in the ratio meant a payment of debts in a different amount from that in which they were contracted. He expressed the conviction that the supply of silver, instead of becoming too great for the demand would Betually prove too small. Turning to the use of money in commerce.

he held, despite the contention that the use of a double standard would result in the cheaper money driving the dearer out, de-spite the contention that cash did not usu-ally figure in international transactions beyond a limited amount, the money stayed in its own country, transactions being carried on by bills of exchange which met and bal-anced each other, or nearly so, the balances only being payable in cash, and the exportation of that cash so affecting exchange rates as to stimulate exportation of commodities, thus changing the balance.

Questions of Sectionalism.

Turning to the question of sectionalism, as brought up in connection with this con-tion, he declared it sumema no As far as the union was concerned, there was no danger to it to be found in the Mississuppi valley. No people would more quickly face danger for the flag. The inducary face ounger for the flag. The in-tegrity of the union was not at stake. He desired neither political, commercial nor financial independence of the east. He was simply tired of political, commercial and financial dependence upon the east. He had for years felt the necessity of a closer relation between the people of the bouth and west in protection of their even closer relation between the people of the south and west in protection of their own south and west in protection of their own interests; not in a hostile sense, but simply as a measure of self-protection. If the east were having an unduly powerful influence upon affairs it was time for the west and south to assert themselves. He but urged the union of the south and west for the pro-tection of their own interests. And any such movement should receive his hearty sympathy and support. sympathy and support. Coming to the currency question, he quoted statistics to show that the nine northeastern states, whether in national banks, state banks, loan and trust companies, or all together, possessed banking resources equal to about 55 per cent of all the country, against 45 per cent possessed by all the other states and territories. From this, he said, came a mute appeal from the conven-tion to matter the method from the convention to protect themselves, their wives and children from the cast, to assert their wives and children from the cast, to assert their re-fusal to be dependent further upon that sec-tion commercially, politically or financially. Not secession, but co-operation with the west and south in advancement of their own west and south in advancement of their own community of interests. It was necessary for the states here represented to spur pub-lic opinion; those in power may hold it in greater value than they may seem to.

Resolutions Reported.

When Governor Stone closed, the committee on resolutions announced its readiness to report what it did through its chairman, Governor Tillman of South Carolina, as fol-Park avenue lows:

We respectfully report the following resolu-tions for your consideration: Whereas, The producing, manufacturing, mercantile, financial, transportation and other business interests of the United States are paralyzed by a patent and universally confessed lack of sufficient actual money to meet the requirements of legitimate trade; and
