Ten days ago we had our annual cloak opening, and what a grand success it was. Every person was satisfied, and, as the old saying goes, "One fish at a time is good fishing," so we thought it better not to have our fur opening at the same time, so as to give those who wanted to buy a few garments a good chance of inspecting a line that was not mixed up and giving you a better chance to find what you want. On Tuesday we will have with us a representa-tive of A. E. Burkhardt & Co., one of the largest importers of furs, and manufacturers of the renowned sealette plushes. He also has with him a large line of sealskins, which you can have made up in any style. DAILY BEE NEWS FROM COUNCIL BLUFFS

Close of the Campaign Finds the Republicans in Good Fighting Condition.

DEMOCRATS DECIDEDLY DESPONDENT

Causes for Blue Bourboes Are Numerous-Brooks Reed's Case the Most Sertous-His Peculiarly Embarrassing Situation,

Tomorrow's election is the theme which has captured the minds of the people during the past few weeks, and there is but little now that the average citizen takes interest in outside of the question of who will win at the polls. A meeting of the democrats was held yesterday afternoon at the court house. Most of the party leaders were there, including C. D. Walters, Thomas Bowman, Brooks Reed and others, and the preparations for the final charge on the enemy were made. Just what took place behind the doors is not known, but on the best of democratic authority it is learned that the democrats feel somewhat blue over the prospects. They affect a great deal of assurance, claiming everything from governor down, but when it comes to putting up money to back their claims they contrive to change the subject. Some gambling is done on the result in Pottawattamie county, but even there the democrats; who used to gave a corner on everything, have not the hardihood to claim very strongly that their whole ticket will be successful. No one can be found who will bet even money on Boles, and even some of the strongest democrats concede that Jackson is as good as elected.

Effects of the Canvass. Dof the republican candidates, John M. Scanlan, who is running for county sheriff, is said to have the best chances for election. Sheriff Hazen, his opponent, his caused some complaint by the laxity of his rules governing the prisoners, while Scanlan, during his two years of service as chief of police, has raised a good resourcing to a service as chief of police. has gained a good reputation as an officer. Both men have made a thorough canvass of the county, and aithough each claims to have the inside track, each admits that if he is elected it will be by a very close shave.

is elected it will be by a very close shave.

The fight that was inaugurated against Brooks Reed, the democratic candidate for treasurer, has been going merrily on for the last week. It is now charged that Reed's books show that the interest he received from the deposit of the county funds in the various banks has been turned into the treasury. This information has leaked out in conversations with friends of Reed, but there has been no opportunity as yet for confirming the report. Mr. Reed was seen yesterday and asked as to the truth of the report, but he stated that he was both deaf and dumb and intended to remain in that and dumb and intended to remain in that happy condition until after election.

Some of these newspapers seem to know more about my affairs than I do; you go and as them for any information you want." He refused to open up his office for the purpose of allowing his books to be ex-amined, on the ground that it was Sunday. He still says, however, that any one who wants to look over his books will be welcome any time today or after election, particularly after election.

Reed's "Christmas Presents," If this report is true and Treasurer Reed has really turned the interest, otherwise known as "Christmas presents," over to the county, it is only recently. An examination has been made into the report which he turned in to the Board of Supervisors last July, and it contained no mention of any interest. If he has "doctored" his books so as to make this item ap-pear, it has been done merely for the purpose of evading the storm of displeasure that has fallen upon him since the first damaging disclosures were made. It is admitted on all sides that for him to try to get out of the scrape in this way is the very worst thing he could do, as it is a tacit admission that he has been nipping funds to which he had no right. He refuses to deny that his books have been "doctored," so that it seems reasonable enough to suppose that Some of Reed's democratic friends claim some of Reed's democratic friends claim that all the talk that has gone the rounds about his alleged crookedness has really helped him, but it is hard to see how it could have such an effect. At any rate the friends of C. B. Waite, the republican nominee, are tage of the anti-Reed agitation and his prospects for success are considered good.

For the Legislature.

N. M. Pusey and F. G. Weeks have been making one of the hottest fights for election to the legislature that has ever been seen in Pottawattamie county. Pusey has talked before large audiences in every township in the county, and wherever he has appeared has made a most favorable impression. couraging reports come in from all sides. Both candidates on the republican ticket are first-class men, and if elected, will represent Pottawattamie county in the legislature

Dr. H. B. Jennings, the republican candidate for coroner, is another man whose chances for election are said to be excellent. He is well known in every part of the county, and wherever he is known he is highly respected, a thing which can hardly be said of the man who is opposing him on the democratic ticket.

W. C. Davis, republican candidate for superintendent of instruct ion, is one of the pest known educators in the county. Perry Kerney and E. Blanchard, candidates for supervisor and surveyor respectively, are men, for whom any republican can cast his ballot knowing that if they are elected they will be a credit to the people who put them into office.

Row on a Motor. Conductor Smith, who runs on an Omaha notor, and S. F. Overton, a former conductor on the line, met on board the former's train Saturday evening, near the corner of Broadway and Pearl street, and imediately proceeded to the settlement of an old grudge that was contracted before Overton left the employ of the company. According to the story told by Smith Overton was the aggressor, but the first blow he struck was quickly returned by the victim and there was an exceedingly gory time for a few minutes. In the fracas Smith shoved his arm through the window and his hand was badly lacerated by the broken glass. Overton's face was beaten out of shape and he will bear the evidences of the fight for several days. As soon as it was over Smith filed an information charging Overton with disturbing the peace and Overton was placed

Cline Was Held Up. A. B. Cline was held up a night or two ago as he was going to his home along North Eighth street, and it was the tall man and his shorter companion who did the deed, the same precious pair, evidently, who terrorized the people of the city so thoroughly two or three weeks ago. As Cline was passing the intersection of Eighth street with Avenue E. he saw two men who had been walking ahead of nim turn around and come back toward him. Just before they met they parted so as to allow Cline to pass between them. The taller man threw his arm around Cline's neck and bore him to the ground and, as he lay prostrate, the smaller man went through his pockets. Fortunately Cline's finances were depleted and his assailants were compelled to admit their dis appointment when they let him up. The victim was able to get a good look at the two men while they were going through his pockets, and thinks that if he ever sees them again he win know them

MARING MEN HOLY.

Mr. Patterson Says the Work Goes On Stowly but Sarely. At the First Presbyterian church yesterday morning the pastor, Rev. J. M. Patterson, preached on the parable of the leaven. The parable of the leaven teaches specifi-cally four lessons:

First—The need of a power exterior to man to bring him to his high destiny. Mr. Patterson did not dwell upon the doctrine of total depravity, but discussed the so-called doctrine of evolution. He acknowledged there was much in it, but also claimed that in the sphere of morals evolution was quite as likely to result in degeneration as in purification. He cited the facts of family discipline and civil government as evidence that people do not believe it is safe to leave men with license to do as they please. The leaven did not belong to the meal, but was a foreign element introduced; so the gospel was brought by Christ and hid in man. The second lesson is that this gospe leaven operates from within outward. leaven must be put in the meal, not on top of it. So the gospel must find lodgment in the human heart. Its chief concern is with the heart. It does not tell men to quit their bad habit, but to be converted, to give their heart to God. The work that begins thus ends in a revolution of the life.

The third lesson teaches that the leaven works by assimilation. It does not change the meal into something else, does not turn the corn meal into wheat flour, but it leavens it all, imparts its own character to the ele-ments as it finds them. So the gospel does not impart any new elements of character. but sanctifies those it finds. It does not make Peter over into John or Mary into Martha. It did not make David a musician. but it did make him the sweet singer of Israel. It did not make Moses a great general, but it did make him the leader of Israel. It simply consecrates man's natural talents meanness, to reform, to lop off this and that and tendencies and makes him a God-fearing man with all his peculiar tastes and tend-Fourth-The parable teaches the completeness of the work of grace. The leaven ceases not to operate till it effects every particle of the meal. So grace won't ceas-till it makes a saint out of the vilest inner. This work of making man holy is very slow. Life is always slow. Death alone is sudden. But though slow, it is certain. Holiness shall be written over the brain and heart and character of the Christian.

Then this suggests the universal sway of brist. A little leaven leaveneth the whole Christ. lump. This is the only leaven adapted to all men. It is the only one that makes its way by its present utility. Christianity inspires the brain and gives us the implements of our modern civilization, and all men begin to inquire after it.

Mr. Taber's Organ Recital.

Mr. Taber gave the first of his "Sunday afternoon recitals" at the First Congregational church yesterday, and judging from the appearance and intense interest of the audience, he should feel encouraged. Mr Taber has always been known as an artistic and earnest music lover as well as a briliant and talented organist of the highest grade, and his latest indea, viz., that of playing a series of "Sunday afternoon recitals is sure to be warmly received and apprectated by the music lovers of Omaha.

Mr. Taber played a program of great va-riety and he displayed remarkable versu-tility in his selections. His rendition of the "Magnificat," by Ed Lemaijre, a French composer, was fine, and his "Grand March," from Rienzie, was excellent. The "Barca-rolle" of Hoffman was very much appreci-ated as was also Whiting's "Transcription of a Song," by Mendelssohu.

Honors for Nebracka.

The Nebraska silver candelabrum exhib ited in the Woman's building at the World's fair will be returned to Omaha with the distinction of a prize winner. A letter that was received yesterday by Mrs. F. M. Russel, wife of the designer and maker of the beau-tiful piece of metallic art work, from Susan G. Cooke, secretary of the board of lady managers, stated that the candelabrum had been voted a medal by the committee on awards. It will be placed in position in the new public library building as soon as that structure is completed. structure is completed.

ASKED ROCCEN TO RESIGN

Charles F. Drexel Slated as His Successor for a Secretaryahip.

CHANGES AT THE COMMERCIAL CLUB

Request Met with Refusal-General Meeting of the Ciub Called for Tuesday-Reason for the Change as Specified-Probable Action.

The executive committee of the Commercial club held a meeting last Saturday afternoon and decided to make a change in the secretaryship of that organization. Chairman Gibbon was authorized to see Secretary Roggen and ask for his resignation. It was also decided by the committee to install Charles F. Drexel as the new secretary. Mr. Gibbon yesterday notified Secretary Roggen of the result of the committee meeting, and asked for Mr. Roggen's resignation. The latter was not forthcoming. In fact, the secretary positively refused to resign. This was unexpected, and Chairman Gibbon consulted G. H. Payne and other members of the executive committee, who insisted on the resignation of the present secretary on the ground that he was not 'quick enough Mr. Roggen was duly notified of the reasons why a change was desired, but he would not resign and still holds the chair. Chartes F. Drexel Chosen.

Charles F. Drexel admitted yesterday that Charles F. Drexel admitted yesterday that he had been offered the position and would assume his duties in the near future, pos-sibly Tuesday or Wednesday. He declined to talk on the subject further than this. He is a young man who is at present in the em-ploy of General Agent Fischer of the New England Mutual Life Insurance company, and one of the committee says that "he is a great rustler." The committee unanimously decided on Drexel as a successor to Roggen One committeeman states positively that Drexel will be installed, notwithstanding Roggen's refusal to resign.

Secretary Roggen was seen yesterday by a Bez reporter. He refused to talk for publication at that time, but said that he had been requested to resign yesterday and that he had refused to do so. He wanted the com-mittee to state its reasons for desiring George H. Payne, a member of the execu-tive committee, was interviewed last evening upon the subject.

Mr. Payne's Statement. "It is just this," said Mr. Payne. "Per-sonally I admire Mr. Roggen. He is honest as the day is long. The change is made simply because Mr. Roggen is not possessed of hustling ability sufficient to hold down the job. We have got to have a man in the position who is more lively-one who will get out on the streets and rustle up mem-bership, make prompt collections of money due the club and attend to all details in that and other respects, with dispatch. We hired Roggen over three months ago, on trial. He was taken for ninety days with the understanding that if ninety days with the understanding that if his work was not satisfactory, he was to vacate. After he had been in the position thirty days it was plainly evident to me that he could not fill the bill. We have allowed him to remain over the expiration of ninety days time. Now we have got another man for reasons above stated, and we propose to put him in. Mr. Roggen's accounts are all right, but he is not as good a bookkeeper as Drexel. All the members of the committee esteem Mr. Roggood a bookkeeper as Drexel. All the members of the committee esteem Mr. Roggen highly from a personal standpoint, but he is not a success as a secretary. The posi-tion pays $100 a month, and we have had a number of applicants for the place. Mr. Drexel we regarded as the best man, and he will assume the duties of the position Tues-day evening, when the club meets. A resolu-tion will be adopted declaring Mr. Roggen's piace vacant, and I have no doubt but that the choice of the committee will be promptly ratified. Mr. Roggen's friends in the club are inclined to give his case a hearing. The club will meet next Tu s tay evening and settle the matter.

AKESON'S A SASSING WEAKEN.

Benwell's Confession of the Crime Cause Hill to Lose flis Nerva. Yesterday when Harry Hill was shown the confession of his partner in the cruel murder of Matthew Akeson he completely wilted and said: "My God! that will hang us both. He retired to the further recesses of his cell and refused to talk any more about the matter. After the officers withdrew he nervously paced his cell and for the first time seemed to realize the enormity of his crime. Heretofore he has steadily refused to talk and has at various times denied that he had anything to do with the crime. He alleged that he had never seen any of the Akeson family, and although he was posiidentified by the son of the murdered man he said that it was all a mistake While he was reading a copy of the confes-sion of Benwell, perspiration stood out on his face in great beads and he trembled.

After the prisoners were captured in Lincoln they were brought to Omaha for safekeeping. Saturday night Sheriff Tighe of Cass county and one or two others visited John Benwell in his cell, and after severe John Benwell in his cell, and after severe questioning Benwell broke down and confessed that he and Hill committed the crime. He said that he met Hill at Union last Monday. They went to Weeping Water and on Tuesday went to work for Akeson husking corn. They worked there one day and were paid off. Then they went to Weeping Water and nurshased a sevelyer of them. and purchased a revolver of cheap make. After a few drinks they concluded to return to Akeson's and rob him. When they entered the house Hill had the gun and Benwell had a big club. Hill shot old man Akeson almost immediately after entering the kitchen because he would not hold up his hands. The men made their escape after murdering Akeson and after tramping through the country for two days concluded to go to Lincoln and separate. They were stotted by Chief Cooper and Detective Ma-lone within a half hour after they reached Lincoln and were placed under arrest and turned over to the sheriff of Cass county. Benwell and Hill have been identified as rmer Omaha crooks who were run out of the city for trying to fleece drunken men. When it was learned that the murderers were to be kept in Omaha until the time for their hearing, the crowd which had assembled at Plattsmouth to receive them with a rope, dispersed ...

M. B. CURTIS' TROUBLE.

Accused of Flying from California in the Guise of a Tramp, Colorado Springs, Colo., Nov. 5 .- M. B Curtis, the actor, recently acquitted of murdering Police Officer Grant of San Francisco and now said to be wanted there on charges of bribing the jury which acquitted him, passed through here on the Rock Island, on his way east. Mr. Curtis is not in a very amiable mood, and refused to say a word about the last charge.

"I am on my way east," was all he would "I did not skip from California, but loft there to go to New York to make arrangements about my new play, If you want to talk about that, all right."
"It is said, Mr. Curtis, that you fled from California in the disguise of a tramp."

"I did nothing of the kind. My lawyers said that I could come away if I wanted to and I guess they knew what they were talk-ing about."

With this Mr. Curtis lost himself in the fastnesses of his Pullman, and soon after the train drew out.

A dispatch from San Francisco stated that Mr. Curtis had escaped on a train from California Mr. fornia disguised as a tramp and that when he reached the Nevada state line and feit tolerably secure from arrest, he discarded the old garments, which his experience as a character actor enabled him to don over his ordinary dress, washed the "tramp" make up from his face and made his way back into the Pullman. The colored porters on the train were so noncommittal on this subject that it is probably true.

"How does it feel to be blown up with dynamite?" he said, in answer to the question. "Well, I can hardly tell you. You see, it's so sudden. It's over just about the time you begin to understand that something is happening. You know I had the satchel in my hand, and had put it down. Then I got afraid of it. All at once everything was light. I don't think I saw the flash. Anyway, my face was not exactly toward the explosion. But then everything got light, lighter than day-kind of blinding. There was an awful crash. I was scared, of course, and wanted to get away. It was just as if I was having a nightmare. "Some way, though, I knew just what the matter was. A man can think faster than he has any idea of. I knew that some of the others were nearer the explosion, and I said to myself: 'They're blown overboard, sure.' You understand this was all in a second, all at once, really. Then it was exactly the same as if I had been hit with a club. I thought it was a big club, bigger than any man could swing, and that it must be worked by machinery. It hit me on the head and all over. I went sailing into the air a long, long way. My ears roared and the wind blew into my face. "I knew when I struck the ground, for remember saying to myself: I'm done for.' I don't know just when I lost my right senses or when they came back. It seemed queer that I was there yet. I thought I had been thrown somewhere else. I could feet fire burning me. It was my clothes. They were smoking and almost blazing. "I was lame all over, and could not hear very well. My voice sounded like somebody else was talking. That's all I can tell you about being blown up. I can tell you about being blown up. I just wonder that it didn't kill me like it did the others.

Milesian Misapprehension. The Boston Budget tells a story of two Irishmen who were tramping along the road near Manchester. One of them could not read at all: the other could read only sufficiently well to be proud of airing his accomplishment before his companion. Their journeyings had brought them into the neighborhood of Manchester-by-the-Sea.

Presently they encountered a sign post. Mike stopped to read it and Pat stopped to hear him. Now the sign was very simple and it said "Manchester, Seven Miles," but it seemed to bother Mike and he looked puzzled. Pat waited until his patience gave out.

"What does it say?" he demanded.
"Mon-chased-her," returned Mike, owiy. "Mon chased her siven moiles." Pat picked up his bundle in disgust. "Sure," he remarked, "if he wanted her that bad Oi hope to hivin he got
