Slender, Dark-Skinned Wretch Bleeds Two Omaha Women for Money.

MRS. KIMP SWINDLED BY A CLAIRVOYANT

Induced to Give Up Over Three Hundred Dollars to An Alleged Representative of the Spirit World-Noian Recaptured-Minor Police Matters.

Mrs. Lizzie Kimp, who lives in a little brick house at 1905 Farnam street, has had an experience with a clairvoyant that she will not soon forget. An acquaintance with this woman, who alleged she was a member of the spirit world and a representative of the Almighty, cost the Kimp family an even $330, and all the victims have to show for their hard-earned money are two small Carribean sea beans. These beans are supposed o keep evil spirits from the person who carries or wears them.

But to get down to the story as told by Mrs. Kimp to Chief Detective Haze yesterday. She said that about a month ago a tall, slim, dark-skinned woman rapped at her door and said that she had come to tell the fortunes of the inmates of the house. The stranger was admitted and predicted the future for both Mr. and Mrs. Kimp. The husband then left for Burkley's printing establishment, where he is employed as pressman.

It was after the departure of Mr. Kimp that the clairvoyant began to work her victim for money. She claimed to have been sent by the spirits to collect money and money she must have. Those who refused her demand would meet with a horrible

Unfortunately for Mrs. Kimp, she had some time before drawn $240 from a bank and placed it under the carpet under the stove because she was afraid the banks might break and the savings of a year might be lost.

The fortune teller assured Mrs. Kimp that all she gave would be returned and that the spirits would reward her. So without more ado Mrs. Kimp tore up the carpet and counted out $25 and gave it to the woman. When the money was handed over the clairvoyant told her victim not to say a word to a single person. If she did the spirits would cause her to go crazy and that inside of three months she would wither up and die. The next day the fortune teller called again and told her victim that years ago four brothers had lived in that very house; that they had gone to the war and were killed. Before leaving home for the battle-field these brothers had planted $5,000 in gold in the cellar. Now if Mrs. Kimp would give more money her reward for her kindness to the spirits would be the pile of gold The deluded woman believed this and went to work and handed over a $100 bill. The same threats were made and Mrs. Kimp was afraid to tell her husband.

SHE KEPT COMING. Again and again this strange woman called, each time going away with a roll of money. Finally the Kimp family's funds were exhausted. The medium kept on coming and kept up her demands for bank

With the Kimp family lives Mrs. Borson, the mother of Mrs. Kimp. This old lady had $90 laid away for a rainy day. She fell under the influence of the clairvoyant and handed over her savings.

"Her threats of the terrible things that would happen to us," said Mrs Kimp to Haze, "were something awful. My mother and myself were completely under her influence and I especially could not help doing what she told me to. She said that if she touched me I would go crazy in a moment. was so frightened that I believed her. S seemed to exercise some mysterious influence over me. One day I began to get frightened because my reward promised had not come and I went out to hunt for this woman. When I returned home I found her standing at the door. She said: "You have been hunting for me." I denied it, but she passed her hand in front of my face and I was con pelled to admit the truth. For several days the woman did not come and I worried. Then I told my husband. He wanted to tell the police, but I was so afraid something awful would happen to me that I persuaded him not to do it." It has been thirteen days since the clairvoyant has called at the Kimp resi-dence and the chances are that the swindler is far away by this time.

During all of these visits the medium did not give her name. When asked who she was she said that she was a spirit and came from God. Mrs. Kimp describes the medium as being about 25 years of age, medium height, slim built, yellow complexion, black hair and eyes, hair was generally tied with a yellow Another evidence of the nerve of the woman was given. After getting the $90 from Mrs. Borson she went to a store and purchased material for an underskirt. This was carried to the Kimp house and the victim was directed to make a skirt. Mrs. Kimp had no sewing machine, but took the cloth and paid a seamstress for making the garment There are several clairvoyants in the city who partially answer the description given, but Detective Haze hardly thinks that any

Bee Reporter Cited to Appear Before Judge Scott Next Saturday.

When the criminal section of the district court convened yesterday the spectators were given an exhibition of the judiciary opening its vials of wrath and pouring the contents upon the head of a newspaper reporter, after which one of the famous lectures was delivered. Last Friday afternoon The Bee published ome of the facts connected with the case of the state against T. F. Jardine, who, with George Smith, was charged with having stolen several barrels of sugar from the warehouse of the Burlington Railroad company, and which was afterward peddled out among the retail grocers of the city.

During the time when Judge Keysor was upon the criminal bench Smith was tried and convicted of grand larceny, afterward being sentenced to a term of five years in the penitentiary, the case against Jardine being continued until the present term of the district court.
When Jardine was arraigned he pleaded not guilty to the charge, but last week, however, he changed his mind and appeared before Judge Scott, withdrawing his plea of not guilty and entering a plea of guilty as charged in the information. Upon entering this plea, the imposing of the sentence was deferred until the September term of court.

These facts were published in The Bee, the introduction of the article reading, "Perons who were around the criminal section is to be possessed of a pull. These same persons were also given an illustration of how easy it is for a man to keep out of the penitentlary if the pull is worked for all it worth.' Following the publication of the Jardine natter County Attorney Kaley wrote a long letter to The Ree defending Judge Scott, notwithstanding the fact that in an interview he stated that in the main the whole of the report was true. With the publica-tion of this letter the anger of Judge Scott worked itself up to the boiling point, and Wednesday he stated upon the streets that he had a great mind to have W. D. Percival, the court reporter of The Bee, arrested for Yesterday, after Clerk Moores had read the journal, Judge Scott commenced a tirade upon the reporter, stating that the report of the Jardine case was a base libel upon the court, saying that it stated that some person, or persons had a pull upon the court, when, in fact, nothing of the kind appeared in print. Warming up to the subject, the judge said that he cared nothing for himself. pursonally, but he wanted to sustain the dignity of the bench from attack. The article, he maintained, reflected upon the honor and dignity of the bench and was an offense that could not go unpunished. ordered a capias to issue for the arrest of Percival, returnable at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning, at which time the reporter is cited to appear before Judge Scott and justify, or show cause why he should not be fined for contempt.

TWO SIDES TO THE STORY. Banker Johnson Tells of His Trouble with Mrs. Rev. Campbell.

Frank C. Johnson, the banker who has been sued by Rev. Larrabee M. Campbell, for $50,000 in a somewhat sensational damage suit, tells a story that throws a different light upon the whole proceedings. Mr. Johnson, in speaking of the matter yesterday, stated that he was thoroughly convinced that the suit was instituted for the purpose of evying blackmail, and that in his opinion Campbell and his wife were playing their ards together, assisted by some lawyers at Lincoln. In support of the theory, Mr. Johnson has some letters in his possession, written by the attorneys for Mrs. Campbell, which intimate as much, although no price is named. He also has letters from Campbell which are upon the same lines, indicating that a money consideration might be entertained. These propo-sitions Mr. Johnson has ignored and has stated that he will fight the case to a finish and prove to the world that he is an innocent Regarding the alleged intimacy with Mrs. Campbell, Mr. Johnson denies that there is a word of truth in the deposition which charges the wrongful acts. BANK OF ENGLAND. Ex-Cashier May's Irregularities Explained-

The governor, Mr. David Powell, said that the conduct of ex-Cashler May had been a very erious matter which had been thoroughly But, Mr. Powell added, it would not be right at this meeting to go into details.

The bank has set aside the sum of £250, 000 to meet all possible losses in respect to ex-Cashier May's advances. The governors learned last November that ex-Cashier May had seriously exceeded his authority and that has committed grave irregularities in connection with advances made to a certain number of customers, allowing overdrafts without authority and in violation of the strict rules of the bank that he had engaged in stock speculations, which had placed him in serious difficulties. Consequently the governors had no alternative but to require his immediate resignation. The report con-cludes with stating that all the securities which the bank holds in its own account are of the highest class, consisting mainly of government, colonial, Indian and corpora-tion securities, and they stand in the bank's books at considerably below the market value. DEMOCRATIC RALLY AT EXPOSITION HALL

Majority in Congress Has Had to Compromise Somewhat with Intense Opposition -Confident of the Ultimate Triamph

of Bimetallism.

An audience decidedly complimentary in proportions greeted Congressman Bryan at Exposition hall last evening and listened to a speech of nearly two hours in length with evident approbation. The speaker discussed for the most part the work which the democratic party had accomplished during its lease of power, and it was only briefly and at the close of his address that he alluded to the subject on which his opinions and utterances had caused so much adverse comment on the part of certain leaders in his party.

There was scarcely a vacant seat in the large auditorium when the Samoset club entered in a body and took seats on the platform. The speaker was only a few minutes behind, and his appearance was the signal for prolonged applause, W. D. McHugh was made chairman and introduced the speaker as one whose political progress had en followed with interest and special pride been followed with interest and special pride by Douglas county ever since it had given him 5,000 majority in his first campaign.

Mr. Bryan prefaced his address by ex-pressing his appreciation of the loyalty which the democrats of Douglas county had shown for him during the past six years and to which he was largely indebted for whatever of success he might have achieved. He then promised to review with the contraction of the country o He then promised to review what had been done by the party in congress toward fulfilling the pledges made in 1892 and to de-scribe what still remained to be accom-plished. He warned the audience that men were too apt to measure what they had done by what they would have liked to do. The democratic party had not been able to accomplish all that it had hoped for, but it must be remembered that it had met with serious opposition and that great reforms were not the work of a day.

HIS ESTIMATE OF WILSON BILL. The Wilson bill formed a text for the greater part of his address. This he did not regard as a perfect exponent of democratic principles. There were features in it that were objectionable to the western people and some that were the western people and some that were objectionable to other localities, but taken altogether, it included so many good things and promised so large a measure of relief that it was worthy of hearty support. The party had labored under many difficulties in framing a bill that would-carry out the party pledges and still be of such acter as to pass both houses. Ev Every step toward tariff reform had been met with a solid phalanx of opposition, which in too many cases had prevented the provisions of the bill from being what its promulgators had hoped to make them.

The speaker declared that the removal of the tariff on wool was, in his opinion, the most commendable feature of the bill. The had been fought with great vigor by the republican forces. They feared that when the wool growers were taken out from be-hind the ramparts there would not be enough left to defend the policy of protection. Many of those who had so per-sistently fought the measure had not done so out of sympathy for the wool growers, but because they realized that they were next in line and that when the democrats had removed the duty on wool they would proceed to attack another stronghold of the protectionists.

Some attention was devoted to the tariff on coal and lime, which, according to the speaker, had been the vehicle by which the money of the masses was conveyed into the pockets of the railroad and mine magnates. The most difficult question that the party had met in connection with the framing of the bill had been the sugar tariff. A sugar tax was obnoxious to the protection-ists because the money went into the treasury instead of into the pockets of the manufactures, and so they had removed the tax and substituted a bounty of 2 cents a pound. which went almost entirely to the manufac-turers. The democratic party did not want to put a tax on a necessity, but unless some concession was made it would have been im-possible to pass the bill, so it had concluded to compromise by providing for a gradual extinction of the bounty.

HIS PET MEASURE. When the speaker mentioned the income tax the audience manifested some measure of enthusiasm. He said that the income tax was a necessity, because as the tariff was reduced it had been found that some other means of revenue must be substituted to carry on the government, and this was at once the most just and feasible that could be devised. It was in considering what was still left for the democratic party to accomplish that the speaker touched upon the subject of bi-metallism. He affirmed that the repeal of the Sherman law had been found to be a mistake and that many of the members who had voted for the repeal were now endeavor-ing to do something for silver in order to clear their skirts. As soon as the tariff was out of the way there would be an attempt made to carry out that portion of the demo cratic platform that was not carried out by the repeal of the Sherman law. The pledge given by the party called not only for the repeal of the Sherman law, but for something in its place, and before congress ad-fourned an effort would be made to pass a bill that would put gold and silver on an equal footing as a basis of currency. It was not in the interests of the mine owners nor the silver states that this must be done. but for the humanity that was world wide. "You have been very kind to me here," continued the speaker, "but if every friend I have in the world should turn against me as long as I believe as I do on this I will preach it from every stump.

The applause which drowned the closing words seemed to indicate that his sentiments did not fall to find favor with some
