VICTIMS OF MARTIN'S GREED

MILY SEE

Find it Necessary to Yield to Every Demand He Makes.

WHITE SLAVES TELL OF THEIR TREATMENT

Martin's Cinch on Exorbitant Rent Exactions Strengthened by His Boasted Friendship With the Chief of Police-

Some of His Methods Exposed.

When M. F. Martin undertook to refute The Bee's statements about his methods of dealing with the women living within the proscribed limits of the city known as the 'burnt district" he made it appear that he was the one who was being imposed upon, but the women keeping the leading resorts of this kind do not agree with Mr. Martin in any particular, and without exception they allege that they have felt the oppression of Martin's methods to a more or less degree. The rents of these houses more than pay for the buildings and grounds in a few years and in nearly every instance the landladies have had to expend their own money to decorate and make the interior of the houses fine enough to suit the fancy of the mistresses, who have to be in style or lose cus-

A reporter called at a number of these places since Mr. Martin's statement in Sunday's Bee and at each place was told how the landlady had been bled of her money through this netarlous system of exorbitant rentals. Georgia Patton pays $150 per month for a house of thirteen rooms. This woman is sick in the hospital and has hard work keeping Martin from getting hold of her furniture. Through the dishonesty of the person to whom Georgia rold the furniture before she went to the mountains for her health Martin was enabled to gain possession of notes and mortgages covering the fixtures. The housekeeper at this place said that Mr. Martin had not offered to reduce the rent of the place and it took about all that could be made to pay him.

MARTIN & MANN. Miss Bertie Mann said that she and Martin went into partnership in running her place. Martin put in the rent as his share, and wanted half of the receipts. She and wanted hair of the receipts. She thought that he was getting the best of the bargain, and forced him to dissolve their business relations. "I am having a lawsuit with Martin now," said Miss Mann, "and he is trying to get me out of here. He has been trying to collect an exorbitant rent, and I am going to test the matter in the courts, for we women are made to pay twice as much as a place is worth for the privilege of living flown in the district after we have been driven here by the police. I was forced to buy some furniture from Martin, and agreed to pay him $4,500 with 10 per cent interest. After I had settled with him, he remarked one day that the stuff cost him about $1,200. I rented two houses of him for about two years, and had to pay him at the rate of $320 per month during that time. When I came in here I had to pay him $400 per month, but as I only occupy half of the "castle" now, the rent is $200. I have not paid him for some time as I want the courts to settle whether he has the right to go ahead and actually take all the money we can make for ronts or not. After I quit paying him his rent, he used to stand in front of this place and tell his troubles to a policeman. My case comes up Wednesday for a hearing in the district

"Last year I moved up to the old Elkhorn house at the northeast corner of Eleventh and Dodge streets and began to keep a hotel. Martin came there one day and said to me: 'Bertle, you can't keep this place, you will have to go back on Ninth street.' He said that Chief of Police Seavey was his bosom friend, and would make me move back into the district, so you see I was forced back here, and this was about the only house that I could get at that time. I have had to pay for the plumbing and other improvements, as he would not do a thing for me in fixing the place. I tell you it is no joke, when I say that it takes all the women down here can make to pay Marin, and their other creditors have to wait for him to be paid first. He has threatened to put several of us into the streets, and I know of one instance where he had a girl and her trunk put out onto the sidewalk in the winter when it was bitterly cold. He has a negro to do a good deal of his dirty work. Since times became so dull, we have not had enough money left after paying our rent and other living expenses to purchase decent clothing for ourselves. If this house was appraised at its real value for a resi-dence or hotel or anything else, I don't believe that it would bring more than $60 to Minnie Fairchild has lived in the district for about five and one-half years. She formerly occupied her own house, but was forced to move further down when the confines of the district were made more narrow by the city officials. She could find no suitable location at the time she was compelled to move, so the had to rent from Martin the place she now occupies. She had plenty of fine furni-ture then, but Martin had this house furnished and he would not rent her the house unless she bought the furniture, which she was compelled to pay him $4,500 for. Miss Fairchild says that during the time she has occupied this house she has paid Martin $175 per month, making her rent for that period amount to nearly $12,000. Besides this she has expended from $4,000 to $5,000 on keeping the house in repair. On the advice of her attorney she is trying to make up some of her rent out of the money paid out for repairs, and Martin is now trying to get her out of her place. Her lease expired some time ago and Martin at once proposed to raise the rent to $200 per month Lottle Lee, who is one of Martin's tenants, is compelled to pay $180 per month for a two-story frame, which cost probably $10,000 when it was new. She owes Martin some money for furniture and has to pay him for this and the rent at the rate of $225 per month. "I don't owe Martin a cent, but I want to tell you that any time any of us people owe him a cent he goes around after it every day and politicly raises the devil with us. He won't spend a cent in making repairs for us, and it is a wonder that the building inspector does not condemn this old shell, as it is all sagged down in the center. Martin don't care if we don't pay any one else of our creditors so that we pay him, and he bragged the other day about going to throw a couple of landladies out the same as he did Jennie Holmes. But he has got a on most of us, and what can we do about it? OTHER CASES IN POINT.

May Coleman has occupied one Martin's houses for a couple of years. U last July she was compelled to pay $250 per month, but as times got so dull that she could not make her expenses she threatened to move and Martin reduced the rent to $200, which she paid until March of this year, and then she made him come down to $175. Later she tried to get Martin to reduce the rent to $150, but he said that he would not and was going to raise the rent again soon. Miss Coleman got behind one month's rent, and, although she had been a good tenant and had ex-pended $3,000 in fixing up the place, he had notice of removal served on her at once. "I had to pay out nearly $2,000 to fix up and decorate the parior floors," said Miss Coleman. "Since the place has been fixed up in good shape Mr. Martin has on several occasions brought his friends into the house and shown them through my rooms and practically giving them to under stand that he did all this, when not a cent of his money was used for that purpose. the has a powerful advantage over us from the fact that there is no other place for us to go unless we get out of town. But there other people who own and rent houses down here that are just as adept in charging hig rents as is Mr. Martin."

Blanche Wilson pays $180 per month for a two-story brick, and at one time, a few years ago, was compelled to pay as high as $240 a month. Martin pays for none of the repairs around the premises, which have cost the tenant about $2,000. She says that she does not owe Martin a cent, and says that she has advanced him money on a few occasions. She pays him at the rate of $45 per week, and says that promptly between the hours of 12 and 1 every Monday he appears at her door for his rent, and as promptly reseives the pay. Blanche was not inclined to talk for fear of incurring the ill will of her landlord, but she admitted that there had been times when it was hard to make all accounts balance, and she could never remember of Martin offering to reduce her rent unless he was forced by circumstances to do so.

The above mentioned persons run the larg est places "down on the row," and it is presumed that their receipts are larger than any of the others of Martin's tenants, so it would seem that the women running the smaller places and living in the miserable shantles which return a revenue of from $2 to $5 per day suffer greater hardships than their more stylish sisters living in the Martin's statement that his tenants are in arrears for rent is not borne out by the facts. BOABD OF EDUCATION. Insurance Plan Slightly Modified-Routine Business Transacted. At the meeting of the Board of Education last night communications were read from William Coburn and Wheeler & Wheeler requesting the payment of premiums on $11,000 of insurance on the Cass, Davenport and Pacific schools at short time rates. The insurance had been drawn up in February and held three months and had then been cancelled. The premium for the three months would be 30 per cent of that for three years. Considerable discussion was had and the board finally decided to continue ine insurance for the three years from last February. The insurance will be used to cover buildings on which insurance will expire this year.

A leave of absence of sixty days was granted John L. Pierson, a member of the A report was read from Secretary J. M.

Gillan, showing that $330,073.77 had been expended by the board since July 1, 1893. This sum is $7,410 less than the amount drawn for the corersponding months of the revious year and is considerably less than the estimate. The report was referred to the finance committee. A report was read from Superintendent Fitzpatrick, showing that there are at present 1,560 more pupils in the schools than at the corresponding time last year. The in-crease is distributed pretty evenly over the city. Several schools show a decrease on account of erection of new buildings.

Secretary Gillan reported the estimated value of the books, furniture and apparatus of the High school to be $9.867.80. Of this sum $3,442.80 represents the value of books. A communication was read from Superintendent of Buildnigs MacLeod accepting the plumbing of the Lincoln and Train schools. The flushing system of the latter school was

A communication from M. Trauthen with-drew his contract for removing earth from the High school grounds. The work is now being done under the direction of the build-ings and property committee.

The bid of C. Kitchen to sod the north and west slopes of the High school grounds at 60 cents per square yard was accepted. The bid of Edward Rushart to fill the Mason school grounds at 8 cents per cubic yard was accepted.

A resolution to close the present term of of Friday, June 22, was lost. The term will close June 29. The use of the High school building was granted to the Omaha High School Alumni association for its annual meetings.

A resolution was passed to hold the examinations for teachers' certificates on June

The special committee on insurance recommended a slight redistribution of the insurance at present held on school buildings. Cook's Extra Dry Imperial Champagne has no equal for table use. Keep a few hottles university, Washigton, D. C. Dispatches announcing the dangerous illness of Father Bruen were received at the cathedral Sunday morning, and their con-tents made known to the congregation. The news was a shocking surprise to he parish-loners, none of whom were aware of his illness, and were disposed to believe the report exaggerated. Yesterday Mr. John Bruen, brother of the deceased, received a dispatch confirming his fears. Father Bruen passed away surrounded by fellow students. his brother Timothy, and members of the university faculty. The cause of death was

Father Bruen was 30 years of age. He was born in Kilfinane, Limerick, county, Ireland, received a preliminary education for the priesthood in Mungaret college, Limerick, completing the theological course in Collegio Capranica, Rome, being ordatned in that city for the diocese of Omaha early in 1890. He arrived in this city in September of that year and was assigned to St. Philomena's cathedral as assistant. He labored in the parish two years, and was transferred to Kearney, Neb. He remained at Kearney up to September, 1893, when he accepted the invitation of Bishop Scannell to take a postgraduate course at the Catholic university in Washington.

The deceased was a man of more than ordinary ability and promise. His temperament was hopeful and most engaging. Added to it was a sunny disposition, the faculty of fringing sorrow with cheer and making those weary of life's bugdens look on the bright side. Speaking six languages fluently, he was admirably fitted to minister to the spiritual wants of a cosmopolitan congrega-tion. Friends and admirers were legion, both in and out of the church. NERRASKA AND IRRIGATION. How the Delegation in Congress Let an Opportunity Slip By.

CHADRON, Neb., June 3 .- To the Editor of The Bee: It is with a sentiment of something more than ordinary indignation that a resident of western Nebraska reads the Congressional Record and marks the attendance and attitude of Nebraska's representatives upon the consideration of a question vitally affecting the interests of Nebraska as well as the entire west. The appropriation for the Department of Agriculture had the floor, and the item for "investigating the amount of water neces-sary to irrigate, the evaporation from the same, special observations of snowfall and rainfall in irrigated regions, and for temporary local assistance" was under cinsideration Eight thousand dollars was the amount of the item. Congressmen from the Pacific slope and the mountain states made a splen-did fight to increase the amount to $25,000, justly declaring that $5,000 was entirely in-significant for so great a work. At the out-set of the debate they were met by a letter of the day before from Secretary J. Sterling Morton to Congressman Crain of Texas, in which the secretary answered Crain's request for a larger appropriation to be recommended by the secretary be recommended by the secretary by saying the settlers in the semi-arid regions should "at once discover how much water can be taken from the streams and underground supply for the purposes of irrigation and must not improve lands beyond the limits of that supply." In other words, as Congressman Crain (himself a democrat) aptly said, the people of the west were coolly told by the head of the Department of Agriculture that they should know for themselves the very data that the appropriation was made to find out.

In another part of the same letter Secretary Morton stated that the remedy for people who lived in the regions where irrigation was necessary was "not to overstock or overcultivate" the land, Immediately following this letter from Secretary Morton Congressman Harter of Ohio, the well known gold standard demoerat, took the floor and endeavored to have the entire appropriation stricken out, say-ing that overproduction was the trouble with the country and that farms could be beught in his district in Ohio for less than $1 an acre, after deducting the cost of $1 an acre, after deducting the cost of buildings, etc. He was opposed to taxing the east in order to help develop the west by irrigation, and thus bring more acres under the plow and bushels in the market. Then Congressman Hatch, in charge of the bill, tried to shut off debate by limiting it to ten minutes, but the western members made a plucky fight for more time to present the needs of this work. Finally a motion to limite debate to thirty minutes was passed by a vote of 151 to 63, and after another plucky fight by the western members crease the amount to $25,000 was lost by 71 to Now where was the Nebraska delegation when this item was under consideration? Only two of them answered to the roll call, Bryan and McKeighan, and both of them voted to limit debate to thirty minutes. Kem was excused on account of sickness. Not one of the whole delegation appears to have put in a stroke for an increase in the amount of the appropriation or an increase in the scope of the work, both of which amendments were proposed. Where were the magnificent rustling qualities which Annin is never tired of ascribing to Mercer, Hainer and Meiklejohn? What were Bryan and McKeighan doing when the western men asked for two hours to present the importance of government surveys and investigations to prepare the way for spreading the waters out upon the valleys and table lands of the west and the managers cut them off at thirty minutes? Here was peculiarly a fight of the west for recognition and development, and from the Nebraska secretary of agriculture down through the ranks, republican popullst and democrat, the whole Nebraska base ball nine appears to have thrown the game. I do not write as a partisan, but if I were disposed to do so I should want to know why Mercer, Meiklejohn and Hainer, who are constantly performing the most wonderful feats for Nebraska, according to the republican literary bureau, didn't even have the sand to vote on the question, although present, as the roll call for quorum disclosed? disclosed?

For what purpose have we been holding irrigation conventions here in Nebraska and passing resolutions asking congress for exactly this kind of investigation and work by the government if our congressmen give the subject the cold shoulder and our secretary of agriculture gives it a eye? Here in this land district records show that settlers have paid the United States government over $1,000,000 for their lands. We have been asking that a very small part of this be expended here in sinking artesian wells, in gauging water supply, in surveying routes of water dis-tribution and storage, in furnishing the data for us to know the means and cost of irrigating. And Secretary Morton tells us the remedy for dry weather is not to overcultivate the soil, and to "discover at once how much water can be got from streams and underground for irrigation," while our whole congressional delegation jumps the track and goes out to get a drink when the subject is under fire and eastern mem-bers are clamoring against taxing the east in order to help develop the west.

Great shadow of the Alleghanies! I turn to the appropriation bills for 1892-3 and find such fat items as these:

Repairs, Army and Navy hospital, Hot Springs, Ark., $50,000; firing morning and evening gun at military posts, $20,600; public pumps, District of Columbia, $5,000; for secondines and temperature observations in Gulf stream, $8,406; for manure for parks, District of Columbia, $5,000; for repairs to greenhouse, executive mansion, $4,000; for furniture and ammunition at New York ordnance proving ground, $89,000; for platform for mortar batteries, $50,000; for improving Great Kanawha river, West Virginia, $60,000.

Page after page of appropriations of money for eastern towns and rivers, of appropriations to bury dead congressmen and give extra pay and junketing expeditions to live ones. Money to survey Crawfish creek Ohio, in order to ascertain whether it would do for an ice harbor; money to hang fog bells along the shores of Lake Eric and buy flowers and plants for the presidential conservatory at Washington; money by the conservatory at washington, money by the millions for government expenses and excesses, but merely a pittance of $8,000 to map out the work of reclaiming the desert and making it blossom like the garden of Paradise, because there is too much land under the plow already, and too many opportunities for the labor that cries in the streets or marches on to Washington' Versions. streets or marches on to Washington? Verily this is a strange land that we live in, where it is "paternalism" to bein the ploneers of the plains plan a campaign against the snows that glisten on the summits of the Rocky mountains, but "business judgment" to spend millions of dollars to keep Carnegie's mills busy turning out rotten ateel plates and buying cannon to smash them. And in this strange land Nebraska's representatives at Washington seem to no strangers. A. E. SHELDON.

SHE IS ON TRIAL ONCE MORE

Mrs. Rudiger Again Faces a Jury Charged with Murdering Baron Reiser.

INTERESTED IN SELECTION OF JURORS

Gertle Crosby Wants Fifty Thousand from Frank Parmalee for Breach of Promise-Other Cases in the District Court.

The second trial of Eloise Rudiger, charged with the murder of "Baron" Reiser, is on in the criminal section of the district court, where the whole of the afternoon was consumed in securing jurors who have not read of the case, or formed conclusions regarding its merits. Yesterday the case was called and the alleged murderess was escorted from the county jail to the court room by one of the deputy jailers and given a seat in the prisoner's dock. An unusually large crowd was in attendance to witness the proceedings, but there was disappointment in store for all, owing to the fact that the attorneys for the defense were engaged in the other courts. The case went over until afternoon, when the trial was commenced.

Mrs. Rudiger, the alleged slayer of Reiser, took a decided interest in the selection of the jury, and intently watched each man as he went into the box and answered the questions asked for the purpose of determining his competency. Aside from this, the prisoper paid little attention to the surrroundings, and appeared to be perfectly at ease and as unconcerned as parties who had no interest in the proceedings. In personal ap-pearance she has improved since the last trial, until she looks as though she had re-turned from a vacation. Her garb, consist-ing of a blue summer silk dress, gloves and hat to match gave her a girl like air, and was sufficient to make her the center of attraction. In this case it is charged that during the evening of October 25, 1893. Reiser was walking along one of the streets in South Omaha, when he was met by the woman now charged with murder. They had some words, after which she pulled a revolver and fired, inflicting a severe wound. Having shot Reiser she turned the pistol upon herself. She was arrested, and Reiser was taken to the Presbyterian hospital in this city, where he remained until December 15, when he died from the result of the wounds. It was charged that the two had been criminally intimate for some time, and that they had a row, which was the immediate cause of the shooting.

Mrs. Tuster's Will.

Proceedings looking to the probating of the will of the late Catherine M. Tusler, who died at Madison, Wis., on March 22, were instituted in the probate court yesterday. The deceased was the mother of Stella M Stoddard, wife of Henry P. Stoddard of this city, and resided here for a time some years ago. She owned a large stock ranch in the western part of the state, some property in this city and considerable in Wisconsin, the value of which aggregates something like $50,000. By the terms of the will all of the plate, jewelry and household effects go to Mrs. Stoddard. She is also given the sum of $900, semi-annually, so long as she lives. In the event that she dies before her husband, the property all goes to her children, if there are any surviving, but if there are no children then the property goes to the relatives of Mrs. Tusler. Should Mrs. Sted-dard survive her husband, upon his death all of the property, both real and personal, at once passes into her possession. The executors named in the will are Drs. Fox and Broatch and others of this city for $1,250, alleging that this amount is a balance that is due and unpaid. The suit is one of the echoes of the military drill, held in this city during he month of June, 1892. The petitioner, the captain of the company, alleges that at great expense he brought his men to the city to compete for the principal prize, a ourse of $5,000 in cash. This prize, he alleges, he won in an open and fair contest, Breach of Fromise Suit. In the district court Gertle Crosby has brought a $50,000 damage suit against Frank S. Parmalee. She alleges that during the month of November, 1891, under a promise of marriage, she commenced living with the defendant, and from that time until May 13, 1894, they sustained all of the relations of husband and wife. On the last mentioned date the plaintiff avers that the defendant absolutely refused to make good his promises, and as a result the suit has been brought.

Suit Against Ex-Judge Eller. The county attorney has brought suit in the name of the county of Douglas against J. W. Eller, the man who was formerly the county judge of this county. The petition sets forth the statement that Eller, as a public officer, collected the sum of $2,060.66 in fees and costs and failed to account for the same. It also charges that he failed to faithfully perform the duties of the office.

The suit is also against the men who are on Eller's bond. Edgerton Promises to Be Good Charles W.
