Domestic soap outlasts cheap soap. Romantic Betrothal.

About two months ago Josie Hulbert was in front of her house when she saw her mother, Mrs. Rhodes, and a hired man named David Long going past in a buggy. She called to them to stop, but as Josie and her mother were not on very good terms, Mrs. Rhodes told Long to drive on. Josie there-upon became quite vehement, and, pulling a large revolver with several loads in it to the surface of her toilet, she fired a couple of shots at Long, one of the balls bitting him in the head. Josie was arrested and ever since that memorable day has been lying on cot in the county jail. Yesterday a second chapter was added to the story, which goes to show that the days of chivalry and romance are not over yet. It seems that Long had never understood just how charming Josie was until the day she shot at him. As soon as the ball hit him the thought flashed through his brain that there was the girl he had been looking for. Yesterday he had a talk with the county attorney, in which he stated that he did not believe that the girl meant to kill him; he thought she was merely suffering from an overdose of something intoxicating. He was willing to overlook all that if they would let him marry the girl and take her out of Jall. So a marriage license was procured, and the prospects are that the betrothal which was so remantically commenced will end in Juste leaving Sheriff Hasen's hotel, for the time being at least.

For a while yesterday it looked as though the work on Fairmount park, which had been started by the commissioners mainly in order to keep the wolf away from the door of a part at least of the laborers of Council Bluffs, would result in trouble. As stated in The Bee, a plan was formed Tuesday evening for the men who had not been able to get work at the park to form in a body yesterday morning and present themmelves at the work with a demand that those who had been given work already should be discharged so that others might take their places. A large crowd did as was agreed, but Vic Keller, the foreman of the work, they claimed, ordered them off and their visft was barren of results.

In the afternoon the crowd gathered again at the corner of Bayliss park to repeat the operation, and this time some of them had blood in their eyes. Some hotheaded individuals spoke merrily of what real enjoyment there would be in taking Vic Keller down to the Fairmount park basin and drowning him. When the army finally started it consisted of about 100 men.

When they arrived at the head of Tenth avenue one man, who, by the way, is said never to have done a day's work since he came to Council Bluffs, appointed himself a committee of one to call Commissioners Graham and Casper down from the hillside to have a conference. The talk that ensued was considerably more quiet than had been feared. The spokesman of the crowd stated the general wish, and the park commissioners declared their willingness to do all in their power to help them. They threw the blame on the city council. "for," said Graham, "if the council would do as we want them to and fill up the streets about Cochran park with the dirt we're taking out of this hill we'd be able to give you all

CITY COUNCIL MEETING.

Discussed Improvements to Provide Work for Laborers but Took No Action. The council met in Mayor Cleaver's office and Aldermen Nicholson, Grahl, Gleason and Rishton occupied seats on the west side of the room, while on the east were Aldermen White and Brewick, with hizzoner the mayor and the clerk in the mid-City Attorney Hazelton had a seat by the window.

There was considerable other business brought up, however, besides that with reference to the unemployed. The jail was in horrible shape, and some of the aldermen thought it ought to be fixed, in order to stop the everlasting reports of the grand jury about it, but a majority said let it

A petition that was presented several weeks ago by James McCabe and 400 other property owners asking for the cutting down of Canning hill, the paving of east Pierce street and a lot of other improvements for the benefit of the unemployed, was brought up. Rishton moved that it be laid over, and that was the end of it.

The petition for paying North Twentieth street, read by George Hunter at the Monday night meeting, was also read, amid much laughter. When the request that Oakland avenue be paved came up one of the aldermen asked if DeHaven's name was affixed to the petition. Attorney Hazelton replied that DeHaven, Sapp and Saguin were prepared to enjoin any attempt they might make to pave the avenue. It was finally decided to report for passage the ordinance for sewering Oakland avenue, and

The question was then talked of whether or not the dirt from Fairmout park should be used in filling up the streets around Cochran park. Alderman Keller said the city had no right to do this. As a sop to the laboring classes, however, it was finally decided to allow Twenty-first street to be filled, provided the property owners on that street between First and Second avenues didn't kick, but it was noticeable that the council didn't agree to pay for any of the work. "If we ever get this gang after us," said Keller, referring to the laboring men, "we never will get any rest."

CLAIMS FIFTEEN MILLION

Government Sets Up a Lien Against the Property of a California Croesus.

STANFORD ESTATE'S, DEBT TO UNCLE SAM

Attorney General Olney Files a Claim for the Late Senator's Share of What the Central Pacific Owes the Government,

WASHINGTON, June 6 .- Representative Meguire of California vowches for the statement that Attorney General Olney has filed in behalf of the United States a claim against the estate of the late Senator Stanford for $15,000,000. The clafm will be presented to Mrs. Stanford, who is the executrix of the estate. Mrs. Stanford is not in the city, but is ebelieved to be either in San Francisco or at Menlo park. It cannot be said what action she will take in the matter, but it is believed she will reject the claim. The claim is that the proportionate share of the debt of the Central Pacific railroad which the Department of Justice estimates that the estate owes the United States upon the theory that the personal assets of individual members of the original Central Pacific syndicate are liable for the debt of that corporation now due or which will become due the government If Mrs. Stanford rejects the claim the Department of Justice will have to decide what further steps will be taken. It is un derstood that the claim was filed under the California statute so that the statute of limitation may not prevail against it. The claim is filed now in order to protect every possible interest the United States may have in the Stanford estate through the affairs of the Central Pacific road. The attorney general explains that the claim was filed under the Califonia statutes in order to prevent the statute of limitation from running against it. That is, he ex-plained, while the statute of limitation cannot run against the United States, yet an estate against which the United States has a claim may be probated, settled and di-vided without regard to the United States' claim unless such claim is filed within the period provided in the state laws for such filing. Otherwise an estate against which the United States had a possible claim ould never be settled.

The general theory upon which the department is proceeding seems to be that the original Central Pacific syndicate, Hunting-ton, Sanford, Hopkins, Crocker and Colton, really constituted a co-partnership, con-trolling at all times and absolutely all the construction companies and other corpora-tions connected with or engaged in building the road, and used such companies and side corporations as a mere agency to further their personal ends and to erect the fabric of their fortunes. Under this theory, the failure of the Central Pacific to meet its engagements was caused by the diversion of the road's assets through these agencies to the members of the syndicate and these perpersons were involuntary trustees of the funds thus diverted, and that therefore their private fortunes, being the ultimate pro eeds of such diverted earnings of the road, are properly holden for the debts, created and left unpaid. ESTATE IS NOT LARGE ENOUGH. SAN FRANCISCO, June 6 .- The claim for $15,000,000 filed against the Stanford estate by Attorney General Olney as a preliminary step to force the government's claim against the original holders of the Central Pacific grant, has caused the great est excitement. It is now learned that the government's claims were presented May 26. but that an attempt was made to keen the proceedings secret in order that the financial operations of the estate need not be embar rassed. The late Senator Stanford's estate was recently appraised at $17,600,000. Since was recently appraised at $17,600,000. Since the appraisement heavy obligations have been met, and it is stated now that the enforcement of the government claim would practically wipe out the estate, not only leaving the widow penniless, but cutting off the beneficiaries under the late senator's will, including the endowment of $2,500,000 to the Stanford mytorsity. It is even said that the ford university. It is even said that the estate, after the liquidation of its acknowlmay not equal the amount of the claim of the government. In this event Senator Stanford's deed of trust under which Stanford university was founded would not stand, in case the decision of the courts should be in favor of the government and the university would necessarily be sacrificed to satisfy the judgment.

Mrs. Stanford, in an interview, has stated that the government's claim will be resisted to the fullest extent of her ability. She regards the proceedings in the nature of a test case and was not surprised at the filing of the claim. Further than these statements she would not talk.

MORTGAGE NOT A DEBT. An idea of the probable defense was given last night by Mr. Wilson, Mrs. Stanford's attorney. In an interview he said: "The attorney. In an interview he said: "The opinion of the attorney general of the United States is entitled to a great deal of consideration, but he is proceeding on a wrong assumption. I am free to say that I don't think the government will ever be able to collect anything from the estate of the late Leland Stanford. The government issued the bonds to aid in the construction of the Central Pacific railroad, but neither Mr. Stanford nor any one else ever agreed to pay the government back. The bonds operate on a second mortgage. It is not a debt, and on a second mortgage. It is not a debt, and while the attorney general is perfectly right that in California the members of a corporation are personally responsible for the debts of the corporation he is wrong in assuming that the mortgage is a debt."

"You cannot compel a man to pay a mortgage. If I borrow $1,000 on a piece of property valued at $500 the holder of the mortgage cannot compel me to pay it when it becomes due. He can foreclose the mortgage and take the property and that is it becomes due. He can foreclose the mortgage and take the property and that is all.. So in this case of the Central Pacific rallroad, the government holds a second mortgage on the company's property of $60,000,000. The government by paying the flist mortgage of $60,00,000 can foreclose the second mortgage and get control of the road. But it is not to be presumed that the United States would care to expend $120,000,000 to get control of a rallroad that could be built for one-third that amount."

William F. Harris, the rallroad company's William F. Harris, the railroad company's chief counsel, gave a similar expression of opinion. Neither of these lawyers, howopinion. Neither of these lawyers, how-ever, enter into discussion of the allegations offered by Congressman Maguire and others loudest in the demand for prosecution of the claims against C. P. Huntington and the Stanford and Croker, Searls and other

Today is the last day under the law which Mrs. Stanford has to accept or reject the government's claim. It is believed she will simply ignore the claim, which in law amounts to rejection. It will then be in order for the government to institute suit either in the United States courts or the superior court in San Francisco. At-torney General Olney's claim will be find in the probate court in San Francisco be-

PARKERSBURG, W. Va., June 6 .- Frye's army was refused aid by the citizens here, and was obliged to sleep in the open air during a drenching raio. In the morning tions. One part under Colonel Bloundell started over the pike for Washington; another division marched in the same direction over the Baltimore & Ohio railroad tracks; while the third division, fifty-two in number, remained here. The fifty-two who remained behind went to the Baltimore & Ohio yards later in the day and took pos-session of a freight rain. They defied the sheriff, who telegraphed for troops, and with an increased force of deputies succeeded in arresting the army.

CAPE GIRARDEAU, Mo., June 6 .- Kelly's navy has arrived here, and after being remen to make a house-to-house canvass, after which they sailed for Cairo, apparently con-
