Papers Read at the Sessions of the Day-Swapping Stories of Surgery-List of Those Present-Members Received.

The Nebraska State Homeopathic Medical society began its twenty-first annual meeting at the Commercial club yesterday aftermoon. It expects to be in session three days and will give a banquet at the Commercial club Tuesday evening. An extended program has been arranged and many of the lectures will be accompanied by practical demonstrations.

The committee on arrangements is: Dr. Hanchett, Omaha, chairman; Drs. Connell, Breckenridge, Omaha; Balley and Righter, Lincoln. The officers of the society are President, Dr. Amelia Burroughs, Omaha; first vice president, Dr. S. Davis, Omaha; second vice president, Dr. A. H. Dorris, Lincoln; treasurer, Dr. O. S. Wood, Omaha; corresponding secretary, Dr. G. H. Neal, Falls City, recording secretary, Dr. J. W. Hingston, North Platte; censor, 1895, Dr. Finney, Lincoln; legislative committee, Dr.

B. F. Bailey, Lincoln. It is estimated that 100 members will be present and an effort will be made to secure the attendance of a number of eastern dele-gates to the national convention in Denver, who will have to pass through Omaha. The who will have to pass through Omaha. The state officers are working hard to make this the most interesting meeting that has been held in the history of the organization.

The meeting was opened at 2:30 p. m. with prayer by Rev. T. J. Mackay. Mayor Bemis delivered a short address of welcome to which President Burroughs and Dr. H. P. Holmes responded. Dr. Mackay was called upon for a speech. He advised that a spirit of brotherly love should animate physicians their dealings with each other and the

PAYNE'S DENIAL COMPLETE

Says He Knows Nothing About the Murder of Mand Rubel.

DECLARES HE NEVER SAW THE GIFL

Got Possession of Her Rings and Slippers Because Dr. Brown Gave Them to Him-Latter's Preliminary Hearing Resumed.

Officer Russell reached this city with Sam Payne at 9:50 o'clock yesterday forencon. Word had been sent ahead and Captain Mos tyn went to the depot with the patrol wagon. Payne was hustled off the cars and into the 'hurry-up hearse' before anyone at the depot knew that the much-wanted man was really in their midst. The wagen was driven hastily to the city jail, and Payne was locked up after the usual preliminaries. In speaking about his prisoner and his trip, Officer Russell said: "When I walked up to Payne's cell in the fail at Mystic he appeared greatly surprised to see me, and after a faint bluff he extended his hand and asked how I was. He agreed to return without papers. I was afraid that the colored miners at Mystic might make trouble and try to release Payne, so as soon as night came I moved my prisoner to Centerville, nine miles distant.

"On the trip down on the train I tried to get Payne to talk, but he absolutely refused to say a word. From his actions and looks I am certain that he knows all about the murder of Maud Rubel." When arrested the prisoner gave his name as Fred Payne, which is the name of his brother, who is now several police officers and Janitor Mason took a look at the man and positively identified him. Payne is well known here, having worked in various hotels about town for a number of years. About 11:30 o'clock Captain Mostyn took Payne up to Chief Seavey's private office in the city hall, and Samuel was placed on

He declared that he did not know the girl and had noth-ing to do with her death. When asked how ing to do with her death. When asked how the rings and slippers came into Mrs. Payne's possession the prisoner said that or Tuesday evening he met a man on the stree who stopped and asked him if he had a girl Sam had and the man gave him a package remarking: "Well, give these to you

Payne opened the paper and found a cor set, a pair of slippers, a white shirt and two rings. All of these articles were found on Mrs. Payne's premises.

The prisoner's description of the man who gave him the package tallied with Dr. Brown and in the afternoon Payne identified Brown as the party.

A complaint charging murder has been filed against Payne. In the police court yesterday afternoon the preliminary hearing of Dr. Brown, charged with the murder of Maud Rubel, was continued. The first witness called was William Sloan f South Omaha. He said he had known Maud Rubel about three years. During the last two years he had frequently visited at the Rubel home. He saw her at home the day before she disappeared. At the request of Mrs. Rubel he called at the morgue quest of Mrs. Rubel he called at the morgue to see if the body then lying there was that of the missing girl. He at once pronounced the body that of Maud Rubel. He identified it by the hair, lips, nose and hands. He claimed to have looked for a birthmark which Maud had on the neck and also for the pock marks on her face, but the skin had peeled off and the face was so badly swollen that these marks could not be discerned. The clothing found on the body was identified by him as the same he had seen Maud wear. The cape and hat found in the building near the body were also identified. Coroner Maul produced the clothing found on the body and then described the body's Wilhelm Webersick said that he was look ing over the building with the intention or renting it for a rooming house when he letected a foul odor and discovered the body He notified the police and went back to the place with the officers. He also described the body and surroundings.

Officer Heelan told about Webersick's calling his attention to the body and notifying police headquarters. The hearing will be continued at 2 p. m.

BROWNELD HALL MUSICALE. Preiude to Commencement Exercises Which

Follow Today. The annual musicale at Brownell Hall, which comes as a prelude to the commence ment exercises at this well known girls school, was given last evening in the large hall of the institution, an immense audience filling the room and crowding into the small rooms grouped around the auditorium. The program was very carefully selected and had the delightful merit of not being too long, a fault exceedingly common with musicales which stand for a certain principle, as in this case. The first number, a "Minuet" by Mozart, introduced Misses N. Smith and L. McCracken to the audience, which was in good humor notwithstanding the torridity the evening, the number being nicely syed. Miss E. Norval then played with cleasing effect the "Spinning Song" by Spinder. Miss M. Collins was the first vocalist the program. The young lady, the not possessing a voice of the compass, showed a very sweet large contralto, suited particularly to her two songs, "Slumber Song" and "Two Maidens," the last by Nevin, one of this author's daintiest conceits. Miss G. Baldwin then played the Jensen "Serenade," a very catchy number. Miss C. Thomas sang in an exceedingly capable manner "Love Is a Dream," by Cowen, the young lady phrasing Dream, by Cowen, the young lady phrasing with pleasing intelligence. Moszkowski's "Serenata" was played with considerable show of technique by Misses L. Diebold and W. Catlle. Miss C. Howe followed with "La Cascade," by Bendel.

Miss K. Collins, one of the graduates, distinguished herself by singing Verdi's Sicilian Vesper song with fine feeling and artistic finish, later appearing as an instrumentalist by playing a Raff and Grieg numericalist by playing a Raff and Grieg nummentalist by playing a Raff and Grieg num-ber, and still later in the program singing "O Hush Thee, My Baby," by Henschel, and "Polly Willis," by Arne, one of the sweetest bits written in a long time. Part second was inaugurated with a chorus, "Dragon Files," which with a was well received, Miss Edith Smith, a daughter of Assistant General Freight Agent Smith of the Burlington, then playing "La Fileuse," by Raff, in a most acceptable manner for so young a player. Miss Louise Doherty, the daughter of the principal, gave two song numbers, "Snowflakes" and "One Spring Morning," by Nevin. Although a triffe nervous, the young lady showed that she had the requisites for a very good musician, and if her first year with yocal music is an earnest of subsequent years her parents may be proud of her work last night. Miss L. Diebold played Gottschalk's "Valse Poetique," the program closing with a trio of pretty gems by Miss M. Hetzel, who displayed a knowledge of the plane quite remarkable, her playing being decidedly out of the ordinary for so young a musician. In fact, she displayed real talent and was a positive treat to listen to, her Liszt num-ber being particularly worthy of the highest

The writ of habeas corpus and Andrew Anlerson had another round in the criminal court yesterday, though neither scored a victory, as the final hearing went over until the afternoon session. Anderson is the man who is wanted in Washington, there to answer to the charge of having forged $690 worth of district school warrants of the city of Spokane, and who afterwards fled the city of spokane, and who afterwards fled to this city, where he was arrested as a fugitive from justice. Yesterday when the case was called in the criminal section of the district court Detective Hudson detailed the manner in which the arrest of Anderson was made. When arrested Ander-son made a resistance and was booked at the central station on the charge of having interfered with an officer in the discharge of his duty. The judge of the criminal of his duty. The judge of the criminal court insisted that this was a trumped up charge and was a mere pretense for depriving the man of his liberty and rights as a citizen. He talked upon the subject of liberty, telling what a great thing it was, and dwelt at length upon the pride he felt in being satisfied in his own mind that every man who had been before him had always peen given a fair and impartial trial. When the criminal court convened in the afternoon Judge Scott ordered Anderson re-leased.
